WORLD'S WHEAT CROP SHOWS BIG DECREASE

Acreege In Pacific Northwest 475,000 Acres Below Last Year

By Ryman H. Cohen.
(Written for the United Press.)
Portland, Ore., April 18.—All over the world the 1916 wheat crop promises to show a most serious decrease from that of 1915.

In most sections of the world the decreased production outlook is due to the falling off in the area planted to this cereal, but in many instances the crop has passed through the winter with a very liberal amount of winter-killing of plants and other damage.

In the Pacific Northwest the condition of the crop is most excellent and better than an average yield per acre is the present outlook. Notwithstanding this, the total production of wheat in Oregon, Idaho and Washington now promises to show a decrease from 1915.

There is a very material decrease in the acreage. This is the leading reason for the expected drop in the total volume expected during the coming harvest.

While previous to the cold snap it was believed that the crop would move above that of 1916, even though the acreage of winter planting was somewhat less than a year ago, a considerable amount of seeded land was winter-killed, and the returns received at this time indicate that the spring planting will prove one of the smallest in years as far as wheat is concerned. A considerable portion of the land usually sown to wheat will be planted to oats, but accurate reports regarding this are not yet obtainable.

From over 200 special crop correspondents located in practically every growing district in the northwest, returns indicate that the area of winter wheat available at this time for the coming harvest is showing a total of but 2,075,000 acres compared with a showing at this time in 1915 of 2,450,000 acres.

The spring planting returns of the three states indicate a total area of 1,350,000 acres sown with 1,390,000 acres in 1915. Therefore, the total spring area planted is showing a heavy decrease from a year ago instead of the increase expected earlier as a result of the smaller fall sowing.

Total area planted to wheat in the three states for the 1916 crop reaches 3,314,000 acres, compared with 3,840,000 acres in 1915 and 3,927,000 acres in 1914. Therefore the present crop area is the smallest in three years.

On the face of these figures of the wheat acreage, it would look as if the Pacific Northwest is doomed to produce one of the smallest wheat crops in many years. This is rather severe, and is not exactly a fact. The condition of the planting is somewhat better than normal in the three states. This is especially true of the light land sections, which this season have apparently an overabundance of moisture. This means that Oregon, with a greater percentage of light land sowing than either Idaho or Washington, will fare somewhat better and will bring the total crop in this state to within a fraction of a year ago.

On the basis of normal production on the acreage indicated, the wheat crop in Oregon now looks like 20,000,000 bushels, Idaho 11,000,000 bushels and Washington 35,000,000 bushels—a grand total of 66,000,000 bushels. The last returns of the 1915 crop showed a grand total of 71,000,000 bushels.

The total acreage planted to wheat in the Pacific Northwest for the three years is as follows:

1914	3,927,000
1915	3,840,000
1916	3,314,000

Winter and spring wheat acreage for two years in the three states of the Pacific Northwest show the following:

	Winter		Spring
	1916	1915	1916	1915
Oregon	850,000	900,000	1,000,000	1,000,000
Washington	900,000	1,000,000	1,000,000	1,000,000
Idaho	375,000	550,000	500,000	500,000
Totals	2,075,000	2,450,000	2,500,000	2,500,000

1916

Oregon	170,000	180,000
Washington	380,000	1,000,000
Idaho	180,000	210,000
Totals	1,240,000	1,390,000

Got Rid of My Corns With Magic "Gets-It"

When corns make you almost "limp with your boots on," when you've soaked them and picked them and sliced them, when corn-swelling salvers,

Why Have Corns At All When "Gets-It" Removes Them the New, Dead-Sure Way? and tapes, bandages, and plasters that make corns pop-eyed have only made your corns grow faster, just hold your heart a moment and figure this: Put two drops of "Gets-It" on the corn. moved into the Robinson house on Church street.

Mrs. S. W. Woods, who has been in the hospital for some time, had an operation for appendicitis Saturday. She is getting along nicely.

The regular weekly meeting of the Priscilla club was held Wednesday p. m. at the home of Mrs. Wm. Strayer, who has a local fame for her generous hospitality and maintained that reputation at this meeting. At the business meeting several important matters were disposed of and the day of meeting changed to Friday instead of Wednesday as formerly, also the club membership will be restricted to 20 instead of 25 members.

The Aumsville grange had its meeting regular first Thursday of each month and third Thursday night. At the last meeting the subject of chicken raising and care was brought up and a vote was passed requesting the extension service of O. A. G. to send an expert on poultry husbandry to be given at the regular meeting in May. Possibly an open session in the afternoon.

Saturday, April 22, will be a big day educationally for Aumsville. Eight of the adjoining districts have been invited to be present and several have indicated their intentions to be present.

County Superintendent Smith with his county workers and two or three good speakers will be present. Superintendent Smith has had charge of the program and all arrangements except local. Three contests, including one on declamatory ability, will be held between the schools. Good speakers are promised and each school will have several numbers. A ball game of the county high school series will be held in the afternoon. The executive committee of the Parent-Teachers' association has taken charge of the arrangements for the large basket dinner to be held at noon. The program will commence at 10 o'clock sharp at the high school.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to Central Pharmacy or any good druggist and get a box of Oil of Kava capsules, take one after each meal, one before retiring at night. Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body. It costs little, is absolutely harmless and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.

Nothing takes the conceit out of a flirt like encountering a marvellous heart that is unbreakable.
