The story of a romance that did not run smoothly was told in a complaint which was filed in the circuit court today by Emma Treash, who wants a divorce from George J. Treash. The plaintiff was 66 years old and the defendant 64 when they were married at Mehamn, September 16, 1913. The plaintiff alleges that she was forced to cook for the defendant's grown sons who came to make their home with the couple and that the extra work constituted cruel and inhuman treatment. She asks to be allowed to resume her former name of Emma Hamman.

These lectures have been attracting large crowds, as Mr. Reed tells of his actual experiences.

If the residents of Salem living near North Fourth and Shipping streets have their way about it, one of the old landmark cottonwood trees in that part of the city, will soon be a thing of the past. A petition was circulated today, to be presented to the city council at its next meeting, in which it is stated that the large elm tree at the intersection of North Fourth and Shipping streets, has become a nuisance, and that the petitioners would most respectfully ask that the same be removed.

The old song about looking for the letter that never came will be appropriate singing in the present day, as long as people are careless in directing letters, or fail to put a return address on the envelope. Three people who are perhaps looking for a letter every day are as follows, each is addressed wrong: Mrs. J. C. Spaulding, 217 Broad street, Salem, Oregon; Mrs. Ellen Dadele, 1118 East Second street, Salem, Oregon; Mrs. Hannah Johnson, R. F. D. 3, Box 65, Washington county, Oregon. These letters are on display in the glass case in the lobby of the post office.

S. A. R. CELEBRATE WITH BIG BANQUET

Senator Burton a Guest. Governor Present—Hammond Toastmaster

The Sons of the American Revolution and their friends celebrated the one hundred and forty first anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord with a banquet last evening at the Marion hotel, with an attendance of sixty-seven. Present as their guests were Theodore E. Burton, former senator from Ohio; Governor Withycombe, Wallace McCannant, of Portland, president of the Oregon chapter of the S. A. R. and distinguished guests representing the state and city.

Winthrop Hammond, who has been instrumental in the organizing of a local chapter in Salem, presided as toastmaster. Preceding the banquet, a reception was held in which Senator Burton was introduced.

The paper of the evening was read by Prof. E. S. Gannett, principal of the Washington junior high, in which he dealt with the social and economic causes of the Revolution, and the various acts of shortsightedness of the English government which finally brought the American colonies into rebellion, although at first they had no thought of separation from the mother country.

"I cannot tell you how happy we are to break into Salem," said Wallace McCannant, president of the Oregon society. "We are now assured of a prosperous chapter, through the efforts of Mr. Hammond."

Mr. McCannant explained the object of the Sons of the American Revolution, the perpetuating of the names of men and women who fought and worked for American independence. Also to duly impress those who are made citizens by naturalization with the responsibilities of citizenship. Another object of the society, said Mr. McCannant, is to aid in distributing literature of a patriotic nature and to place these books in the state library where they may be sent into all parts of the state. Winthrop Hammond was complimented by Mr. McCannant on his address at the anniversary banquet of the Battle of Bunker Hill, delivered in Portland some time ago. "The habit of hero worship should be discouraged, as the greatest story is of the man who aided and fought for our independence," concluded Mr. McCannant.

Governor Withycombe welcomed Senator Burton as a friend of Oregon as he had shown himself interested in our welfare when chairman of the rivers and harbor committee while in the House of Representatives. "Right now," said the governor, "I want to emphasize the appeal for a nobler and higher patriotism, like that of our forefathers who fought in the Revolutionary war. There was never a time when we needed red blooded men more than now. We are confronted with great problems, but I believe that America will be able to solve them in a patriotic way."

Senator Burton approves of the objects of the S. A. R. and he so stated in his opening remarks. "I certainly approve of the objects of the society, one of which is to commemorate the events of that day." As to the present situation in the world, the senator was of the opinion that we are now living in fearful times, when the ordinary course of civilization has been stopped. "We must be better Americans, and more fit to be in the front of every movement." Approval of the placing of a flag where it may be seen when naturalization papers are taken out was expressed by the senator. "The flag should be an inspiration to those applying for naturalization, that hereafter they are not to live to die for a king, but to live for the republic."

In introducing Mayor White, toastmaster Hammond stated that Salem was one of the truly typical cities of the country, a beautiful city and the city of ideal homes. "Salem is glad to have a chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution. I know from those who have applied for citizenship, that the lessons and responsibilities of becoming a citizen have been duly impressed by the sight of the flag," said the mayor. Judge Galloway read a paper telling of the trials of the American colonists during the Revolutionary period. Welcoming Senator Burton, the judge said: "I can truthfully say, we heartily welcome you to this, the capital city of Oregon, as a resident of Ohio and also as a citizen of the United States. You are too big a man for any one of the 48 states to claim exclusively. We love and respect you for your courage and fidelity to our country's interest."

Mr. Hammond, as toastmaster, appropriately introduced the speakers and in his preliminary remarks, stated the patriotic motives of the Sons of the American Revolution, and that he hoped within a short time an active chapter would be formed in Salem, as already a number had secured their papers and there was a general interest in the work and purposes of the society.

Alaska Railway Men May Strike Saturday

Anchorage, Alaska, April 20.—By a vote of about 1200, to six out of a total membership of almost 2,000, the Alaska labor union last night set noon Saturday next as the time for a general strike on the government railway, provided the arbitration committee does not, in the meantime, accept a new wage schedule as favorable as he one asked for six weeks ago when a strike was deferred, under an agreement with the officials pending the arrival of, and action by the federal arbitrators. The patience of the men became exhausted, it is claimed, by reason of alleged double dealing on the part of the engineering commission. Allegations were also made that the wages of some employees is being cut and the foremen are circulating agreements for others to sign, reducing their wages. It is also alleged that large numbers of foreigners, coming over the trail are given work while former employees are denied re-employment.

Note Is Delivered to Minister Von Jagow

By Carl W. Ackerman.
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Berlin, April 20.—Ambassador Gerard delivered the American submarine note to Foreign Minister Von Jagow at 5:30 p. m. today.
After the last section of the note was received from the cable office and the whole had been translated and gone over carefully, Gerard obtained an immediate appointment with Von Jagow and motored to his chambers. Newspapers announced that Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg had gone to the front to spend Easter with the Kaiser. It is assumed that the decision with regard to the American demands will be framed at this meeting.
