

EXTREME Value Giving in Women's Suits

We have many less Suits now than we usually have at this time of the year, and these were mostly bought during the last of April.

They are all extremely snappy, as manufacturers tell us suits will be much higher in the Fall, and many of our suits will be suitable for Fall. We have hesitated in making any sacrifice, but as we only have a limited stock we have decided to sacrifice all suits for

The Ye Liberty male quartette will hold its annual reunion Saturday and Sunday. This quartette was well known in musical circles about six years ago and was composed of C. E. Knowland, Dr. R. V. Ellis, Hiram Ellis and Ray Chapler. Dr. Ellis is here from Treadwell, Alaska, and will leave for his home Saturday night. Hiram Ellis lives in Washington and will arrive today. Ray Chapler will also arrive today, from Cascade, where he is employed in the government forest service.

Try a special merchants lunch from 6 to 8:30, tonight at the Gray-Belle.

Now that the activities of the pupils of the Washington junior high school are governed to some extent by the student body, the pupils are allowed to get their political experience in nominating and electing officers of the student body. The election will be held next Wednesday and the candidates are as follows: President, John Griffith and Harold Friend; vice president, Gladys Page and Pauline Dick; secretary, Albert Bayne and Marion Emmons; treasurer, Wayne Allen and Kenneth Waters; editor, Elizabeth Dyer and Lindsey Spight.

A wonder exhibit of good fruits and vegetables is to be seen at Roth Groc. Co.

An ordinance will be introduced at the next regular meeting of the city council providing that hereafter in the construction of a building, the contractor shall not use more than two-fifths of the street for his building material and construction work. Nor can he use the sidewalk or obstruct the street of adjoining property, without the consent of the owner thereof. Another provision of the proposed ordinance is that after the building is completed, the street and sidewalk must be thoroughly cleaned in front of the building, and also that the sidewalk shall not be blocked, except for excavation purposes.

When you plan on building see us and get our estimates.—Falls City-Salem Lumber Co., 349 S. 12th. Phone 513.

The average person feels rather reluctant about getting in on a high-brow lecture, especially when the time might be spent in quiet and restful repose at a movie. While this may be true, the lecture this evening by Prof. Morton E. Peck at the public library, while it partakes of a subject requiring study, yet it also has many points of interest. The title of the lecture is "Between Two Kingdoms," which means that the professor will discuss certain forms of life that might be considered about 50 per cent animal kingdom and the same proportion vegetable kingdom, and that even those who spend most of their time in studying such deep subjects, have their doubts as to where to class these uncertain objects.

Prof. G. B. Posey, assistant plant pathologist of the O. A. C., will be in the city early next week, to make his third spraying experiments on a prune orchard in the Rosedale district. These experiments are being made to determine exactly what spray is most effective in fighting brown rot.

Mrs. Frank A. English, a member of the Salem Floral society, announces that she will plant dahlias in the vacant lot on North Commercial street tomorrow and that if any members of the society would like to assist in the work, they will be doubly welcome. The lot has already been prepared for the planting.

Miss Flora M. Case, school librarian, announces that for the story hour tomorrow morning at the public library, she will tell the "Just So" stories and that Miss Beck will tell a tale about "The Jackal". Plans will be made for the annual story hour party which will be held next Saturday, this being the last story hour of the year until next fall.

Twenty patients from the Oregon state hospital have been working this week at the fair grounds, preparing flower beds and planting 2,000 E. G. Hill geraniums, under the direction of J. W. Maraney, landscape gardener of the hospital, and president of the Salem Floral society. Other beds are now ready for the planting of 2,000 Salvia near the pavilion. Mr. Maraney expects to plant fully 8,000 plants within the next few weeks. The grass has been mowed down and weeds cut down this week and the grounds prepared for the great Cherry fair and Fourth of July celebration.

There is a boy living in town that needs the attention of the humane society. During the fire at the flax plant yesterday afternoon, he was seen riding a horse on the main line of the railroad towards Geer, and as he came to a bridge about 50 feet across, the boy dismounted and led the horse across on the bridge. Several times the horse mis-stepped and fell but finally managed to get over.

The untold truth about Alaska will be told next Monday evening at the Bligh theatre by moving pictures and spoken words. The moving pictures were taken in the interior of the country by Dr. Suggden a surgeon of the Royal Northwest Mounted police. He will be accompanied by a seven piece orchestra, all members of the same family and all adults. He will tell not only how to earn a living in Alaska but devote much of his time to telling of his experiences in the main land of that unknown country.

At a meeting this morning between Mrs. Edyth Tozier Wethered and J. W. Maraney, representing the Salem Floral society, and W. H. Hamilton, Fred Thielsen and James Young, representing the Cherrianas and the dance committee of the Cherry fair, it was definitely decided that a grand ball shall be given at the armory on the evening of Monday, July 3, the first day of the fair. The committee was not in favor of a street dance and this idea was given up, in favor of a bigger affair in the armory. The floral society will do its share towards having the armory properly decorated. The dance committee is composed of Fred Thielsen, chairman, James Young and Carl Gabrielson.

Gypsy Caravan Has Cause to Complain of Salem's Hospitality

A modern up-to-date Gypsy caravan in automobiles was ushered right through Salem last night about 7:30 and escorted to the north city limits where they were told to keep moving and not to look back. There were eight cars in the caravan that left Albany and came upon the east side of the river. Eight more loads belonging to the same tribe left Corvallis about the same time and came through on the west side but did not reach this city.

Except that the gypsies and automobiles to ride in instead of wind broken, spavined, horses and wagons there was little to distinguish them from other gypsies. The members of the tribe all showed the usual disdain for a bath and were garbed in the usual scanty calico garments and negligee socks. The usual pack of nondescript dogs was the only noticeably absent feature but there was plenty of youngsters all about the same black and tan color and all appeared to be about the same age.

The gypsies claimed they were touring the country preparatory to a trip to Minneapolis where all of the gypsies in the United States will gather this summer for one grand convention. The gypsy chief who rode in the head machine said the women told fortunes, and the men traded horses and did tinker jobs about town and that they were strictly honest. One old lady who appeared to be the great grandmother of them all removed her cap long enough to confide in the reporter that she was born and raised in Boston but her accent was not of the approved Bostonese that is so frequently paraded in the west, though some strange characters come from Boston to Oregon.
