WONDERFUL SKIN AND WRINKLE REMOVERS
*****

The method of removing had complexion by absorption seems to have come into general use in this country. Ordinary mercuric wash, applied nightly like cold cream and erased mornings with warm water, gradually absorbs skin in an almost invisible particles. Soon there is a brand new complexion, formed by the younger, healthier under-skin. No cosmetic or artificial treatment can possibly produce a complexion of such radiant, youthful loveliness. Druggists all have mercuric wash; it is seldom that more than one ounce is necessary.

Thousands have also reported great success with the famous saxolite wrinkle-removing formula. One ounce of pure powdered saxolite is dissolved in a half-pint witch hazel and the solution used as a face wash. The effect is almost magical. The deepest wrinkles and crow's feet, as well as the fine, creases—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. No one need hesitate to try this simple lotion, as it won't harm any skin.

S. A. R. Organized with 20 Charter Members

The Sons of the American Revolution now have a fully established chapter in Salem, with 20 charter members. At the meeting held last evening at the Commercial club, by-laws and a constitution were adopted and address taken for two weeks in order that several who have not completed their papers, may have the honor as joining as charter members.

Plans were discussed regarding the publishing of a booklet containing the genealogy of the charter members of the Sons of the American Revolution and information telling of the services of the ancestors of each during the Revolutionary war. This can be easily done as in the state archives of the 13 original colonies and in the Smithsonian Institute at Washington are to be found the record of every volunteer from the day of the Battle of Bunker Hill until the discharge of the state troops after the signing of peace.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN

war is declared, and without war at all, is preparedness."

Then he shook the children's hands and fought his way through the throng to his room. In the streets outside five thousand citizens set up a clamor that was not to be denied. "Teddy! Teddy!" they demanded.

The colonel clambered to a window and stood on top of the porte cochere, where he waved his hat.

"Speech!" went up in a mighty roar from the crowd. There was a moment of silence while Roosevelt gave a brief appeal on "Americanism." He bitterly denounced those who "put a pigtail on Uncle Sam." This was greeted with a thunder of applause.

Excerpts From Colonel's Speech.

"When this war is over it is possible that some one of the combatants being fully armed, will assail us because we offer ourselves as a rich and helpless prize.

"I believe in International Duty. I hold that we cannot assert that we are entirely guiltless of responsibility for the outrages committed on well-behaved nations, particularly on Belgium, and on non-combatants, particularly on women and children, in the present war. Prior to the war we had become parties to the various conventions and treaties designed to mitigate the horrors of war, and to limit the offenses that can, with impunity, be committed by belligerents either on neutrals or non-combatants. When we declined to take any action under these conventions and treaties we ourselves treated them "scraps of paper."

"But the navy and the regular army are not enough. Exactly as lack of the navy should stand the regular army, so lack of the regular army should stand the navy.

"Universal training and universal service represent the only service and training a democracy should accept.

"The thousands of non-combatants, men, women and children, including many hundreds of American men, women and children, who have been killed on the high seas, owe the loss of their lives primarily to the supine inaction of this nation; to our failure to prepare, and our failure in instant insistence on our own rights and on those rights of others which we had guaranteed to protect.

"Our people of today must apply your spirit to the changed circumstances of today. It is never possible to treat the past as giving the exact precedent for given action in the present.

"In order to make this country worth living in we must develop a real national purpose controlled not only by moral motives but by cool, later logic."

Roosevelt, speaking at the Commercial club, warned Henry Ford and Andrew Carnegie that the enemy was a respecter of persons, and that they might some day be held hostages if the country was invaded.

Lecturer Has Vital Message For Women-- Will Emphasize Value of Home Happiness ---Mrs. Vaughn Talks on Cost of Foods

Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn, talented Better Foods Better Homes lecturer, who has been secured for the second time to give a series of lectures and cookery lessons in the Armory has a vital message for homemaking and home loving women. This message is not so much that of lecturer to audience as it is that of one wife, one mother to another. To further encourage the work along Better Foods Better Homes lines already accomplished by the progressive housewives of Salem and to convince any housekeeper who still entertains a doubt as to the worth of good wholesome home cooking, the Capital Journal has again arranged for a short course in Better Foods Better Homes teachings to be held in the Armory every afternoon next week.

Mrs. Kate Brew Vaughn, who has been secured to have charge of this second Better Foods Better Homes school, needs no introduction or recommendation to Salem housewives. They all remember her as a famous cook and have delightful recollections of the treat of good things provided for them during her previous visit to this city. Similar treats are in store for those who attend her lectures here next week. New kinds of cakes and pies and salads are contained in her program for this season and these will be demonstrated and served at her school here.

When a few years ago Mrs. Vaughn's attention was attracted by the national Better Foods Better Homes movement, she saw in it wide possibilities for better home making. When she was asked to become a lecturer in the interest of this work, she welcomed the opportunity it offered to carry to thousands of discouraged housekeepers a message of cheer and inspiration and to say to incompetent cooks that there is a worthwhile job and that the efficiency of every worker going out from the home depends upon their food. She has been able to lead many discontented mothers to see that there is a wondrous opportunity. She criticizes and condemns the woman who would rather pet and care for a poodle dog than to have children. It is the aim of her work to teach all women that through their knowledge of food and its influence and their skill in choosing and preparing foods for their family, they may build up a splendid race of womanhood and manhood with all objectionable traits eliminated. The tactful way in which Mrs. Vaughn presents her ideas about good food and good cooking wins all hearts and the many friends she made during her previous visit to Salem are pleased with the announcement that she will again lecture and give cookery lessons here. All such women and others who did not hear the privilege of hearing Mrs. Vaughn at that time are invited to hear her in the Armory next week.
