OUR FARFICAL JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The strongest possible arraignment of the American system of criminal procedure is the time and manner of securing a jury in the Orpet case. The trial was called May 15, 24 days ago and a jury of twelve men has just been secured.

Reels of red tape and volumes of precedent; oceans of technicalities and libraries of rules; but justice an unknown quantity.

It provides one code of morals for the citizen and another for the lawyers. A citizen who aids and assists a criminal in getting free and clear, becomes under the code a party after the fact.

Under our system we allow the defendant an attorney at the state's expense if necessary, in order to insure him a fair trial. This is eminently correct.

It is not the criminal law alone that has become helplessly entangled in a maze of red tape and precedents, but the civil law is just as bad.

It is a maze of redundant language and a wilderness of distorted vocabulary. Civilly, in making a deed to a piece of real estate the grantor grants, bargains, sells, remises, releases and quitclaims, before he can make himself intelligible to the law.

If you would prepare to die and would make a will you must "give, devise, and bequeath;" and so it goes through the whole list.

It is noted that our friend Dean Collins in Sunday's Oregonian gives the Capital Journal credit for almost guessing the shortest poem which was a single period.

The democrats hold their convention at St. Louis beginning Monday. It will not have the varied stunts of the other party conventions having nothing to do but painting the platform, which is already built, and nominate President Wilson to succeed himself.

Roosevelt says he will support Lodge for president. More proof that the colonel is absolutely fearless.

ROOSEVELT GETS OVATION

Colonel Roosevelt was certainly given a great ovation in the republican convention yesterday, when Senator Fall of New Mexico, concluding his nominating speech mentioned his name bedlam broke loose.

It however was not a general expression of the convention's sentiment, but rather that of the admirers of the Colonel, who like their hero, are some noise makers.

The real sentiment was shown by the action of the old leaders, and this not only showed the feeling but gave an intimation of the conventions course.

Hilles sat biting his finger nails. Smoot was rather amused, DePew quit joking, and Crane never batted an eye.

Uncle Joe Cannon remarked "the demonstration was interesting, but not important," adding: "If you will look around you'll see that not 10 per cent of the gallery is participating and not two per cent of the delegates."

This however was the situation last night when this was written. What the result will be will probably be told on the front page of the Capital Journal Saturday.

Whatever else has been done the conventions have been run according to schedule. Last night the republicans adjourned after taking two ballots just as they had agreed to do.

Mr. Roosevelt's offer this morning to accept Lodge as a compromise candidate, was so raw an attempt to put himself in the position of offering a real compromise which the republicans refused.

Henry Ford is already an "also ran," his supporters dropping him after the first ballot. Which reminds me of the lettering on the old English tombstone over a baby: "If so soon I'm cut and done for, what in — was I begun for?"

The Capital Journal has been giving all the national convention news ahead of its morning contemporaries every day. This paper has printed the most complete and best-written reports of any paper in the state.

The Cherrians carried away another first prize at the Portland festival yesterday.

THE GLAD MONTH

I love the balmy month of June, when all the sunlit plain is strewn with handsome growing things; when every bird's so full of glee it takes its perch upon a tree, and humps itself and sings.

FAVORITE SONS ARE NOT VERY CHEERFUL

They Cannot Agree On One of Themselves, But Are Ready for Hughes

By Carl D. Groat. (United Press staff correspondent.) Chicago, June 10.—The second break in the ranks of the favorite sons came early today.

Favorite sons' row was not a cheery spot about 4 a. m. today. Frazzled managers slipped away for a few hours rest after a series of long conferences, but it was evident the pow wows had availed nothing in the way of a combination to head off Hughes.

The managers of Burton, Fairbanks, Cummins and Root were ready to renew the battle, but they had not agreed on one of their candidates to be the recipient of their combined strength.

Unstructured delegations were being watched by the favorite sons. Word was coming in early today that first one unstructured state and then another would break away and go to Hughes.
