WILSON CHALLENGES ALL ANTI-AMERICANS

Says: Small But Active Disloyal Minority Must Be Crushed Out

Washington, June 14.—President Wilson this afternoon issued a practical challenge to the hyphenates of this country to defeat him in the forthcoming election. Standing in the shadow of this great monument to the first president and addressing one of the largest crowds ever assembled at Flag day exercises here, the president declared that a small but very active body of foreign born "disloyalists" were attempting a species of black mail in connection with the coming election.

"There is," he declared, "disloyalty active in the United States. It must be crushed out. It proceeds not only from a small minority of foreign born citizens but from a very active and subtle minority which works underground, but occasionally throws its ugly head into full view."

"These people are now trying to levy a species of political black mail, declaring 'do what we want you to do in the interest of one side in the war or we shall wreck you at the polls.' Loyalty is first test."

"America will teach these people that loyalty to the flag is the first test. That is the lesson that I come to remind you of and I want to ask you, are you, yourself, going to see to it that no man is tolerated who does not honor the flag?"

The speech of the president in respect to his reference to the disloyal hyphenates was greeted with prolonged applause.

"If you could have gone with me through the few years just passed," said the president, "you would have realized with me the subtle intrigue and sedition that have been going on."

The president was introduced by Secretary of State Lansing who referred to him as "one whose every thought, word and deed manifests true Americanism."

"I need not remind you how much sentiment has been poured out in honor of the flag of the United States. Some times we have been charged with being a propagandist power but it does not propel in the way that is serviceable to the nation unless it has a definite purpose behind it. This is not merely a day of sentiment, it is a day of purpose."

The Nation Tested. "Apparently this nation is again, and again and again to be tested not always tested in the same way. The last supreme test that this nation went through was the test of the Civil war. You know how deep was that test."

And you know how that ended. While it seemed a time of terror, it has turned out a proof of the validity of our hope—did you not see the blue and grey mingle this morning on the procession? Did you not see the sons of a subsequent generation walking together in happy comradeship?"

"And yet again the test is applied, my fellow countrymen. A new thought of a division of feeling has sprung up amongst us."

"You know that we are derived in our citizenship from every nation in the world. It is not singular that sentiment should be disturbed by what is going on on the other side of the water but while sentiment may be disturbed locally ought not to be. I believe that the vast majority of these men whose lineage is largely derived from the nations at war are just as loyal to the flag of the United States as any native citizen of this beloved land, but there are some men of that extraction who are not, and they not only in past months but at the present time are doing their best to undermine the influence of the government of the United States in the interest of matters which are foreign to us and which are not derived from the questions of our own politics."

"There is disloyalty active in the United States and it must be absolutely crushed. It proceeds from a minority, but a very active and subtle minority. It works underground, but it also shows its ugly head where we can see it and there are those at this moment who are trying to levy a species of political black mail, saying 'do what we wish in the interest of foreign sentiment or we will wreck our vengeance at the polls.' That is the sort of thing against which the American nation will turn with a might and triumph of sentiment which will teach those gentlemen once for all that loyalty to this flag is the first test of tolerance in the United States."

"That is the lesson that I have come to remind you of on this day—no mere sentiment."

A great saving in the way of licking stamps and placing them on third and fourth class matter is now offered the merchants of Salem besides other good people in the country.
