STATE NEWS

Solver Lake Leader: With all the heavy snows of last winter, Silver Lake begins to look like it will not fill up. At this time the water edge is about where it was one year ago, with most of the watershed which supplies the water dry and dusty. The riparian owners along the border have this spring seeded about 600 acres to grain. Former years have proven that the riparian lands of Silver Lake are very productive. For instance, last year one farmer had 18 acres of beach land seeded to oats. The oats grew so rank that they could not be bound with a self-binder, and so the idea was conceived to cut high enough with the binder to catch the hay and mow the stubble for hay. The oats threshed out 57 bushels per acre, besides producing seven tons of oat straw heads and 18 tons of hay from the second cutting.

Lake County Examiner: F. L. Young, of the American Soda Deposits company, has been spending several days in Lakeview from Alkali lake in the interest of his firm. Mr. Young states that at the present time they are putting in the floor of the glass house which will be used for the drying of the soda after it has been taken from the pot holes. The building will be 50x100 when completed, but it will be no trouble to enlarge when the company deems it necessary. The auto truck is making regular trips at the present time with lumber and other necessary supplies. It will probably be only a short time until the product is being shipped to the San Francisco market.

Lake County Examiner: "The work of constructing a permanent plant at Alkali Lake for the purpose of securing the soda deposits from that place will be started immediately," was the statement made by F. L. Young, manager of the company, while in Lakeview on business the first of the week.

J. D. Speckles, sugar manufacturer of San Francisco and who is interested in the project, accompanied by W. J. Dinmore, chemist, arrived in Lakeview a few days ago and immediately left for Alkali Lake to look over the situation and further plans for the construction of the permanent plant. They returned to Lakeview Sunday night and left for San Francisco the following morning.

Pendleton Tribune: With an area of 2173 square miles, nearly as large as the island of Porto Rico, twice the area of the kingdom of Brunswick, Umatilla county, is the banner wheat county of Oregon, and the richest in the world. It is first in average yield per acre and total production; first in value of farm property and second in railroad mileage, and last, but not least, almost at the very bottom of the list in rural population, rural school

NEBRASKANS HAD PICNIC YESTERDAY

Assembled At Fair Ground and Talked Over Old Times "In Nebrasky"

Former residents of the Windy State of Nebraska, the state from which William J. Bryan cometh, assembled to the number of 150 yesterday at the state fair grounds to celebrate and tell stories about Cherry county where the wind blows most of the time and about the eastern part of the state where the farmers all travel by automobile.

All officers of the past year were re-elected, placing the interests of the Nebraska society for the coming year with the following persons: R. R. Ryan, president; Rena Schott, secretary; Mrs. A. L. Johnson, chairman of the committee on entertainment; J. E. Pettys, chairman on arrangements; Mrs. J. J. Newmyer, committee on refreshments.

Besides an entertainment of songs, recitations and races, the following poems were read:

NEBRASKA

God made this earth so wondrous fair. He made it all, both great and small. With wisdom kind and loving care. He called it good, just as He should. He made it all so very grand. But some He blest more than the rest. And this He called Nebraska land.

CHORUS.
Nebraska land, Nebraska land, As on thy fertile plains I stand, And look away across the sea, This land is just the land for me.

Its soil is rich as soil can be, I love its hills, its brooks and rills, Its valleys too are fair to see; The crops produce for peoples use, All kinds of grain it yields so great, What mortal man could hope or plan, For better than Nebraska state.

The grandest men and women too, We find them here, in this grand sphere; We think none fairer ever grew, Blessings we know to us below, We sing and shout with joy and glee, Lived in this state, proud to relate, None like old Nebraska you see.

When I am called from earth I know, I cannot say you hike away, Don't bother me I will not go, The home above I dearly love, Its realms of bliss I understand, In Him I trust and go I must, But hate to leave Nebraska land, L. H. Suter, 1905 North Seventeenth street, Salem, Ore.

OREGON

We oft times think how hard our lot, And in our gloom we fail to see, In all the earth one lone bright spot, Though very large it chance to be; A better place than all the rest, Where there's the pleasure by the ton, Is way out in the north and west, In the grand old state of Oregon.

Where apples large as pumpkins grow, And cherries in the trees so high, Potatoes in the ground below, That often weigh five pounds or nine, With peaches, pears and berries too, Of all the place beneath the sun, This is the place for me and you, In this great state of Oregon.

Our soil is rich as soil can be, houses and inhabitants per acre of land. The great wealth-producing section produces nothing but wheat, no children, no school houses, no churches and no rural life.

Medford Mail: The Opp mine, near Jacksonville, in which new machinery has been installed, is about ready again for power. W. F. Downie, representing the Hallidie company of Seattle, which deals largely in the manufacture of mining machinery, has about completed the installation of the machinery for the oil flotation process. He will put in a Chilean mill, which is conceded superior to the ordinary stamp mill increasing the capacity for the same horse-power. The Opp mine will then have a capacity of 200 tons a day.

Bend Bulletin: June 23 has been set as the date upon which the wool sale will be held this year in Bend. The sale will be held at the United Warehouse and all the sheep men in Central Oregon who are making deliveries to Bend for future shipment are expected to be here.

Shearing and lambing are now in full blast in the sheep raising section of Central Oregon, and reports are that the clip is equal to that of last year despite the extremely hard winter.

Gold Beach Globe: Gamma Warder Adams came in from the hills and says stock on the back ranges is looking well, but the grass on the high mountains is a month later than usual. He usually drives his stock back in May but will have to wait several weeks yet. Coyotes are getting numerous along the upper river and are killing a good many lambs.

Baker Herald: Because of the unusual number of ground squirrels this year, threatening the rich meadows where they stockmen pasture their horses and cattle, a movement was launched at Bly yesterday to wage a systematic war upon these animals. This promises to do much toward the elimination of the squirrels, and later on eradicate coyotes and jackrabbits.

Because of the further spread of rabies in Grant county, the sheriff has sent notices to all parts notifying the owners of dogs to keep them chained night and day, or keep them muzzled. The action was taken because many dogs have been exposed to animals that are known to have rabies.

MUNICIPAL BATHING BEACH IS ASSURED (FOR COMING SUMMER)

Salem will soon have a municipal bathing beach. This is assured by the committee working for the Civic department of the commercial club, composed of Dr. W. H. Byrl, chairman; Fred E. Mangis, Ivan G. McDaniel, L. H. McMahon and H. O. White.

After investigating the site of the bathing beach of one year ago and making soundings up and down the river, the committee has come to the conclusion that two sites are available. One is between the wagon and railroad bridge, on the Polk county side, and the other is on North Mill creek, at Commercial street.

The Mill creek location could only be used by damming the creek just north of Commercial street and the city engineer will investigate this afternoon. But the impression of the committee is that the site just across the river not far from the wagon bridge is the most available. The beach used one year ago on Minto island cannot be used as the Salem Sand & Gravel company has been taking sand from this point, resulting in several deep holes and making it dangerous for bathers.

As the river is too high at present, it will probably two weeks before arrangements can be made, and steps from the bridge built leading down to the beach.

Anyhow, a municipal bathing beach is assured. There will be no charges if the point between the two bridges is selected unless the committee finds it advisable to assess all bathers, excepting children, five cents each to defray the expenses of having a man in charge.

The timber forests mighty great, The fairest women too you see, We have them all in this great state With plenty of game, fishing fine, The hunter he has lots of fun, The angler too can use his line, In this old state of Oregon.

So portly, straight and large around, These grand old trees they grow so tall, It takes a week to chop one down, And makes you sigh to see it fall, Of waters pure and clear we boast, In its mad rush it leaping on, The grandest scenes along the coast, Are in this old state of Oregon.

The mountains rise in peaks so high, From the great valleys far below, They look like spires that reach the sky, Whose tops are white with frost and snow; Our lands are fine, our crops are great, A better place we know there's none, In this wide world like our old state, Which we with pride call Oregon.

These fertile valley plains and hills, Adorned with beauty rich and rare, The grand old babbling brooks and rills, God made them all with wondrous care.

Old Hood and Jeff and Sisters Three, From Maine to Gulf and Washington, No other place such sights you see, Like here in this old Oregon.

L. H. Suter, 1905 North Seventeenth street, Salem, Ore.

Who Can Vote at School Elections

Any citizen, male or female, over the age of 21, may vote at the election for school director next Monday, provided they have lived in the school district 30 days and have property in the district as shown by the last county assessment. If any parties have moved into the district since the last assessment, they may vote on a proper showing to the election judges or directors that they have property subject to assessment.

Although a party may not have any property appearing on the tax rolls, yet he is permitted to vote if he can prove that he owns stock or shares or has ownership in any corporation or firm or partnership which appears on the tax rolls.

If the home property is in the name of the wife, she may vote and the husband, unless he owns taxable property in his own name, may stay at home next Monday.

Any vote may be challenged at the election next Monday and the voter will be obliged to show ownership of property, real or personal.

In districts of the third class, which include country districts, although a man may have no property whatever, he may vote providing he has children of school age. For the city man, the records of the tax assessor is the only qualification.
