Donald Co-Operative Cheese Factory Succeeds

The Donald co-operative cheese factory, which opened for business on June 1, has been running in full operation since that date, and the business has been going along as smoothly as in an old established institution, thus showing the carefulness with which the details of organization were perfected in advance.

Twenty-six hundred pounds of milk came to the factory the first day, and this amount has been increased to over 3,200 pounds.

Because of the excellent grade of milk, containing a high percentage of butterfat, that is coming to the factory, as high as 11.9 pounds of cheese per 100 pounds of milk has been produced, the average being about 11.5.

W. A. Gray, who has had sixteen years' experience in Tillamook and Woodland factories, is cheesemaker in charge at the factory, and he was also here to direct the installation of the plant.

Quite a number of the farmers tributary to Donald expect to increase the number of cows in their herds, and in this connection also a number of silos will be built and more corn and ensilage crops will be raised. It is apparent that with the building of this cheese factory the farmers in this vicinity will go in much stronger for dairying than has been the case in the past. The farmers themselves will own the factory, as it is a co-operative institution.

The officers of the company are: President, Henry Zorn; vice president, M. D. Leabo; secretary, O. O. Freeman; treasurer, C. A. Adams; directors, Henry Zorn, M. D. Leabo, G. A. Cone, Jas. P. Fuller, S. P. Mohrberg.

The factory building is a well built and commodious structure, and it is equipped with the most modern machinery for the manufacture of cheese.

Donald is located in the center of a rich farming community, where the need for such an institution has long been felt, and everything points to a successful career for the plant.

Only two milk routes are in operation as yet, but a third route is to be established, and in addition considerable milk will be shipped in over the Oregon Electric railway as soon as the tributary territory has been canvassed.

Cheesemaker W. A. Gray states that the milk is coming in in first-class condition, and cheese of the very highest quality is being manufactured by the factory.

The factory is turning out triplets and Young Americans.

The establishment of this cheese factory at Donald not only means a great deal to the farmers in this vicinity, but to the town as well, for anything that helps the one also helps the other. It means that the farmers who go into dairying will have a ready and reliable market for their milk at the best price that it is possible to pay, and the benefits even reach to the land, which will be improved by the increased acreage of forage crops that will be raised.

It is one more step in the development of a rich locality which has all the most unlimited possibilities for future growth and which is sure to come when full advantage is taken of the opportunities which exist.—Donald Record.

Monmouth News

Monmouth, Or., June 21.—The summer course at the Oregon State Normal school started Monday. The whole day was occupied with the registration of students and many more were obliged to register today on account of the rush. Up to date, the total number of students registered for the summer work is seven hundred and forty. Actual work of each class began today at the regular scheduled time and all of the students met in chapel this morning for the first session during this summer school. Every seat in the gallery, including the ones in the gallery. In order to accommodate all of the students with seats, chairs have been arranged to occupy every bit of stage space where the members of the faculty and the chorus students sit. The regular chapel exercises will be held every morning and every student is required to be present. Tomorrow, besides the regular morning chapel exercises, there will be a special assembly of all the students immediately after luncheon at which time the Normal school will be visited by the state board of regents.

Miss Hoham, the music instructor of the Normal school, met the summer glee club students in the assembly hall in the training school. Over one hundred students have registered for glee club work and as nearly all of this number have had glee club work before, Miss Hoham expects some very fine music from this large class.

She outlined the work to be done by the glee club during the summer session and made everyone feel intensely interested to get busy. The glee club will present the cantata "Joan of Arc" the Thursday during the last week of the summer school which ends July 28th.

A special penmanship teacher, Miss Ambrose Murphy has been secured by the State Normal school to teach the Palmer method of business writing during the summer course. A large number of students have registered for this course.

Due to the very large number of girls and women in Monmouth for the summer normal the dormitory could accommodate only a very small percentage of them. However, previous arrangements were made by the matron of the dormitory for accommodating more students by furnishing the training school with one hundred beds. The larger percentage of the students are boarding with private families.

Summer 12, Ostrom of the Pacific Auto and Gas Engine school in Portland came down last Sunday in a Palmer-Singer car and spent the day with his folks. He came down in two hours and fifteen minutes.
