Peace Will Bring New Conditions to America

New York, June 17, 1916. Because of numerous and strongly conflicting forces a very mixed situation exists in the financial district. The war is being more vigorously pushed than ever and, aside from a fearful waste of life, is costing over $30,000,000 daily, a costly portion of which is coming this way. This latter sum is not all additional loss, because many millions were spent in any event for feeding and clothing the millions of men engaged in peaceful pursuits. Armies and navies would have to be paid for even in time of peace, and it should be remembered that the territory and industrial plants of two of the most important belligerents have escaped thus far without damage. The awful struggle has cost terribly in blood and wealth, some losses being entirely beyond calculation; but some deductions have to be made from current outlays, and nothing is gained by exaggeration or miscalculation. The financial position of some of the belligerents will be a serious matter of adjustment when peace comes, and that period cannot be safely predicted. There is a very suggestive growth of optimism in this direction, and belief grows with strange persistence that the war will end during the present year rather than face another dreadful winter.

Expectations of peace must have some foundation; though whether it has its origin in weariness of spirit among those who suffer or recognition of coming disaster by those who govern, cannot be determined. Perhaps war madness is giving way to peace sanity—at least let us hope so. As peace approaches this country will gradually adjust itself to the new conditions. A few departments of industry may suffer, but many more will benefit by return to the normal. Temporary reactions may come with or after peace, but it stands to reason that in the long run the world will benefit by the restoration of productive efforts and the stoppage of destruction. Very likely the recuperative powers of all the contestants will be greater than expected. We will lose much of the munitions traffic, but may look for expansion in steel and other industries, in foreign trade, in shipping, and in development of the many enterprises deferred by war. This country is wonderfully strong industrially and financially, and is better prepared in many respects—costs of production expected—for trade expansion than any other nation.

Another favorable factor is the political outlook at home. Many business interests are gratified at the nomination of Mr. Hughes as the Republican candidate, since his leadership not only strengthens their hope of success, but also assures a campaign free of unnecessary animosities and disturbances. The nomination of Mr. Wilson means a check to extreme radicalism. As already stated in these articles, the chief issues will be patriotism, preparedness and the tariff, the two former including a more vigorous though peaceful foreign policy. Since there is no great division of opinion about these problems, the outlook is for a comparatively quiet, although lively campaign. The output of new legislation will be at a minimum.

Longshoremen Will Coal Uncle Sam's Ships
San Diego, Cal., June 23.—Striking longshoremen continued to work out at the L. A. Playa Fuel depot, that Uncle Sam's big fighting machines might not be delayed.
But that was the only stevedoring work done today by union men in San Diego.
'We will play fair with the government,' said one of the officers today. 'The government has been fair with us, and no matter what may be the developments, we will see that there is no delay in coaling the ships of the navy.'
To discharge the steamer Harvard last night the entire office force, led by Captain H. A. Goodall, president of the Pacific Navigation company, stripped off coat, rolled up sleeves and pushed trucks, and otherwise performed manual labor that caused some few blisters.
