To Organize Regiments

Funston has been authorized to organize the following regiments: Thirty Fourth infantry at El Paso; Thirty Fifth infantry at Douglas; Thirty Sixth infantry at Brownsville; Thirty Seventh infantry at Fort Sam Houston; Sixteenth cavalry at Fort Sam Houston; Seventeenth cavalry at El Paso, Seventh and Eighth field artillery; First and Second regiment of engineers. Two companies of engineers will be organized at Vancouver and a mounted battalion at Columbus, and the remainder at Fort Sam Houston.

Kalisted men will be transferred from other regiments to form the nucleus for the regiments. The officers will be designated by the war department. There will be no second lieutenants in these regiments under the new army bill.

Their Fate Unknown

El Paso, Texas, June 24.—The fate of 60 men reported to have escaped from the scene of the Carranzista ambush at Carrizal was still unknown here early today. Whether they were pursued by the Mexican cavalry and cut down on the desert or perished from lack of water was unascertainable.

Army officers and state department agents here, believing the two troops of the Fourth cavalry were, virtually wiped out, declared today that war probably could not be avoided. The absence of word from the relief column of the Eleventh cavalry increased fears that they also may have been engaged by the Carranzistas, or are combating the hilly barren country around Carrizal for survivors of Wednesday's unequal battle.

An embargo on exports to Mexico, particularly arms, ammunition and food stuffs, is in force along the border. Information received by army officers indicates that the Carranzistas plan to evacuate practically all border points in case of war. Occupation of Juarez is considered certain to follow open hostilities.

Captain Lewis Morcy and two lieutenants, names unknown, are reported to have been among the escaped American troopers. If Morcy was desperately wounded and without proper medical attention he must have died, it is feared. Word from the rescue column was anxiously awaited. A report is expected that the dead American troopers have been buried where found.

NEW ROAD IN PINE SHAPE

The road to Newport via Falls City is now in excellent condition for travel, according to Roadmaster Finn, who made two trips over this highway last week. Leaving Dallas at 7:30 Friday morning he went to the Lincoln county line without interruption because of poor roads, making the distance of 37 miles in a little less than two hours. The roadmaster liked the trip so well that he returned Saturday evening for a fishing trip, but stopped on Rock Creek, where he enjoyed a season of splendid angling. He says the Newport highway, by this route, was never in better physical condition than at this time, and he recommends travel to the coast resort this way. There is not a bad place within Palk county, he says, and the Lincoln county roadmaster, Mr. Porter, has assured him that the road within that boundary may be traveled on high.—Dallas Observer.

Patrolman Varney is busy answering his friends' queries as to why he is out of the race for constable. His answer is that he is not out of the race. Varney, Robertson, Pratt and Robertson tied for the Progressive nomination for the office, receiving one vote each and on the draw Robertson was selected as Progressive nominee. Varney was chosen by the Republicans and will come up for the November election.

R. R. BUSINESS HEAVY

Owing to the heavy volume of passenger business which has developed during the last few months, the Willamette Valley Southern may soon purchase some new passenger coaches to add to their present equipment.

The company which operates from Portland to Mt. Angel through Oregon City has been forced to rent several coaches from the Oregon Electric company for use on Sunday. An excursion from Portland to Mt. Angel in addition to the usual heavy Sunday business over the lines has caused a shortage in the equipment.

The line is thriving with not only the passenger business, but the freight business has increased greatly during the past months, and the officials of the lines are enthusiastic over the future outlook for the company.—Silverton Appeal.

HUBBARD SOCIAL NOTES

Last Thursday, June 16th was the sixth birthday of Lucette Gable and her mamma, Mrs. R. W. Gable, invited the little folk of about her age to join in a good time at Wolfers' springs in the afternoon in honor of the event. The little people had a good time. Tea cream and cake were served. Lucette's guests were: Carmine Scholl, Orva Barrett, Maxine Beck, Lorraine Kinzer, Harryette Kinzer, Johnny Painter, Otis Painter, Floyd Kinzer, Ralph Kinzer, Charles Mayer, Anita Bevina, Vesta Scholl, Velma Scholl, Katherine Pook, Jeannette Pook and Elizabeth Hiedrich.

Tuesday afternoon Lois Melvin celebrated her twelfth birthday with a class party at Wolfers' grove. The guests were members of the Rose and Junior Workers, classes of the Congressional Sunday school. The Rose class taught by Miss Mae Crittenden and the Junior Workers, a boys class, taught by Mrs. H. C. Mack. The young people thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon. A lunch of sandwiches, ice cream and cake was served.—Esterprise.

HOPE OF AVOIDING

ed to General Pershing are the only men back in camp since the Mexicans mowed down the Tenth. Twenty four men, including seven reported today as being picked up by Carranzistas, are prisoners in Chihuahua. The strength of the partial troops probably was only 95 or 100 thus leaving 64 to 89 "unaccounted for." This estimate, however, may be too low.

Carranza apparently is making a final endeavor to stave off war by suppressing the last note, thus keeping the public opinion in check. The highest officials, however, believed any rehabilitation at this time is impossible. The first militia troops to move to the border probably will go forward Monday. Every effort is being made to muster the full strength. All reports to Adjutant General McCain show satisfactory efforts on the part of all commanding officers.

BIG CROWD AT RACES

A big crowd visited Butteville on Saturday and Sunday to witness the motor boat races and other races. Upon the occasion of the annual cruise of the Portland Motor Boat club. About 40 boats made the cruise, and the members of the club were royally entertained by the people of Butteville. The result of the races were as follows:

Cruiser race 1-1-2 miles—First, Peggy, No. 2, time, 11:46; second, Mist, time, 12:29.
Runabout race 3 miles—First, Peerless, Commodore Boehs, owner, time, 20:08; second, White Bear, B. Dorr, owner, time, 21.
Sixteen-foot speedboat race 4-1-2 miles.—First, Vogler Boy, No. 2, time, 8:45; second, Willamette Bug, time, 8:58. This was a very close and exciting race.

There was no free for all race because of the inability of the Vogler Boy 111 and the Oregon Wolf IV to compete.

OREGON HORTICULTURISTS TAKE ORCHARD TRAINING

Summer pruning is suggesting the attention of the Willamette valley horticulturists who have been making a systematic study of pruning and other orchard practices in connection with the extension service of the Agricultural College.

The work was begun last winter under the supervision of Professor W. S. Brown, extension horticulturist. It consisted of a week's school in various fruit districts, with growers as students. Instruction in spraying, pruning, thinning, etc., were given, after which the work was followed by demonstrations in orchards and by practice in pruning. This work was followed up by the present series of summer pruning schools in which the effect of the winter pruning is studied criticised, and its proper results remedied as far as possible. The growers then do the necessary summer pruning under the direction of Professor Brown.

Schools of this kind have been conducted at Sothein, Newberg and Albany.

SCENE FROM "PLAYING WITH FIRE"
Mme. Petrova, the gifted Metro star who was last seen on the screen here in "What Will People Say?" "The Soul Market," "My Madonna" and other masterpieces of the silent drama will be the next attraction here at Oregon theatre Sunday and Monday in "Playing With Fire." This elaborate five part feature was produced for the Metro program by the Popular Plays and Players, and is considered the best work of Mme. Petrova on either the screen or stage.

There is a strong supporting cast headed by Arthur Hoops. Mr. Hoops was formerly the leading man for Mary Pickford, Marguerite Clark and other screen celebrities, and before coming to motion pictures had achieved an enviable position on the speaking stage. He appeared in several all-star casts, and toured the world with Nat Goodwin. Mr. Hoops is accounted one of the best leading men in motion pictures.

Another prominent member of the cast is Pierre Le May. Mr. Le May was a successful broker in Wall street until five years ago, when the panic wiped out his fortune. He is a college man with a good appearance, and he had no difficulty finding a place on the speaking stage. In his second engagement he was playing a leading part.

Philip Hahn, who incidentally plays the role of an artist, was in reality a successful painter until eight years ago. At that time he became color blind and was obliged to abandon his career. He was then living in his native city of Amsterdam, Holland. Mr. Hahn took up theatricals there and was so successful that he decided to come to America. His first work in pictures was the role of the Christ in the Passion Play, produced by the Famous Players. Others in the strong supporting cast include Evelyn Brent and Catherine Cahoon.

photoplay, based upon Israel Zangwill's powerful play, "The Moment Before," directed by Robert G. Vignola, photographed in the most picturesque localities in Florida, and emceed by a notable Famous Players cast will appear at the Ye Liberty next week, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Madge's troubles commence from the very day of her wedding, for she is married to the worst and most brutal man in the entire camp. Anxious to peer into the future, Madge has her palm read; the marriage to a nobleman is predicted, also the hour of her death. While meditating over her visit to the fortune-teller, accompanied by her husband, she meets Harold, the youngest son of the Duke of Maldon. After many thrilling scenes, in one of which she stabs her husband, Madge seeks aid of Harold, who willingly gives her employment in his father's household. Recovering from his wound, John, Madge's enraged husband, enters the mansion in search of her. At that moment, Lionel, the heir to the Maldon title and brother to Harold, is arguing with Madge, the situation is misunderstood and Lionel is killed by John.

The story as it progresses is seasoned by just these same antics of Fate. The scenes depicting the adventures and strife of its victims are laid in England and her distant possession, Australia and should prove one of the most fascinating of all the splendid Famous Players photoplays—starring Pauline Frederick.

Realism in motion pictures and realistic acting are two things that William Farnum, famous star of the William Fox production, "A Man of Sorrow," insists upon, or rather did insist upon until the other day when a bit of realistic acting in the part of "Peggy," one of the leading canine actors of the world, placed Farnum on the hospital list for a day.

It came about thus: Farnum, who has been justly termed the greatest fighter on the screen, was engaged in dragging up the street the villain of the play, when "Peggy" cast in a prominent part, took it upon herself to defend the villain.

As "Fighting Bill" dragged the villain along by the neck, with a howling mob in pursuit, "Peggy" made a flying leap and her jaws snapped like a vice on Farnum's left leg.

Not wishing to spoil the picture, and realizing that "Peggy's" acting was all that he could demand in the way of realism, Farnum continued to drag his victim another block or so with "Peggy" clinging to him. So intent was he on playing his part that he did not know how seriously he had been injured until the scene was finished.

Farnum had the wound cauterized and was able to resume the leading role in the production next day, but he says hereafter he will take care that "Peggy" does not participate in any of his fighting scenes.

A valuable hound awaits its owner at Dr. Moorehouse's office. The animal was found on State street yesterday afternoon apparently suffering from poison. Patrolman Nicholson took it to the veterinarian for examination.

Suppose you were a woman longing for love and sympathy and found yourself married to a hard-hearted villain. Would you take the same course that a gypsy maid, Madge, by name, pursues in the new Famous Players production on the Paramount program, "That Moment Before"? Perhaps you would, but even then, do you suppose you could endure the trials this unfortunate little woman undergoes? These and many other difficult questions will be answered by Pauline Frederick, who plays the leading role of Madge in this romantic
