Wonderful to relate, the price of sugar is not advancing and the canning season is already with us. All of which was the occasion of a few remarks on the sugar situation by a leading grocer, in which he stated that at present the price was so high the eastern refiners didn't have the nerve to advance it, even with the canning season coming on.

Miss Anne D. Sweeney, librarian of the Salem public library is enjoying a month's vacation at Seattle and in the Sound country. Mrs. Blanche Howard first assistant, is now in charge. Miss Laura Cummings, who has been assistant for two years, will leave tomorrow to accept the position of first assistant and superintendent of the children's department of the public library at Everett, Wash. Miss Alma Ashby, formerly in charge of the Washington Junior high school library, has been elected second assistant.

There is a job for a light housekeeper, with the accent on the light. Through the civil service department at Portland, the information is given out that applications will be received at Portland until the 17th for light house positions in District No. 17. There is no examination to pass. The job is for an assistant, who must be over 18 years of age but there is no age limit. The government is willing to pay $540 a year. It is a 365 day a year job and a fine summer climate guaranteed. Apply by letter.

Short, age 18, son of Horace Short, 1745 South Capital street, passed the examination yesterday.

SALEM'S CHAUTAUQUA WILL BEGIN TONIGHT

President H. C. Epley Will Ring the Bell for the Great Start

We have with us tonight, the Salem Chautauqua.

The tent men are here and already everything is ready on the university grounds. The 1916 Chautauqua will be opened promptly at 8:15 o'clock with a few introductory remarks by President H. C. Epley, presenting J. M. Erickson, superintendent, who will have complete charge during the week and who will give four lectures during the course.

The Comus players, presenting tonight scenes from Shakespeare and "Carson of the North Woods," are all Oregon people. Mr. Reddy is head of the school of expression at the University of Oregon and Miss Jennette Young, a graduate of the school. Other members of the company are also from the university. They carry their own scenery and reports indicate they have been very favorably received by Chautauqua audiences on the coast.

Tomorrow morning, the Junior Chautauqua will be told the story of the Knights and Ladies. The afternoon session tomorrow will be given to the International Operatic company, who will also furnish the evening's program.

The lecture tomorrow afternoon by Justice R. M. Wanamaker, of the supreme court of Ohio, has the average interest. The supreme judges in Ohio are given a three months' vacation and Judge Wanamaker prefers to give this time to lecturing. He is the first supreme judge in Ohio to be elected on an independent ticket. Readers of the Saturday Evening Post are already acquainted with Judge Wanamaker through his articles in which he has taken the stand that the state supreme court should represent the people and that it should interpret the laws, rather than change them.

The following is tomorrow's program:

Morning--Junior Chautauqua--Stories of the Knights and Ladies.

Lecture--Mr. Erickson.

Afternoon--Concert, International Operatic company.

Lecture--Judge R. M. Wanamaker.

Admission, 50 cents.

Evening--Grand concert, International Operatic company.

Admission, 50 cents.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

Trygve Peterson Heidenstrom, formerly of Norway but since 1904 a resident of this country, has declared his intention of becoming a United States citizen. He resides at Silverton.

The first prosecution in this country under the prohibition law is scheduled to begin tomorrow morning when the case of the State versus B. Canfield is set for trial. Canfield is alleged to have sworn falsely to an affidavit to secure alcohol.

The suit of the Geer-Krueger Furniture company against R. S. Southwick and Grace Southwick has been settled out of court and a motion for dismissal filed.

The fire department responded at midnight to an alarm turned in from the Kay Woolen mill. A blaze in one of the dryers was easily brought under control. The loss is negligible.

L. L. Stahl, of Portland, is in the city and will be associated with Gale & Co. in disposing of the Chicago store stock. He was formerly with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul at Seattle.

To replace the water tank at the Kay Woolen mill, which has done duty for some 25 years, a new one is to be erected. It will have a capacity of 15,000 gallons and is to cost several hundred dollars.

Gale & Co., of Portland, who bought the Chicago Store stock at 57 cents on the dollar, already have a force at work preparing the stock for the sale to be put on within a few days. As far as possible, they will engage help that is familiar with the stock. The firm of Gale & Co. is composed of M. Gale, who has been in business for the past 18 years and his son Lawrence Gale. M. Brill, who has been located at Dallas eight years, is also associated with the firm. After closing out the stock, the firm will consider the advisability of locating in Salem. His is the second bankrupt stock they have handled.

The Cherrian special for Marshfield will leave Salem on the morning of Friday, August 25, at 9 o'clock. The excursion, which will be the greatest in number as well as enthusiasm that ever departed from the city, will travel "de luxe," which means that the excursionists will have the best there is in railroad accommodations and in the way of victuals during their three days' vacation. The Southern Pacific will place at the disposal of the Salem tourists its finest Pullmans, and it is on these the Cherrians and their families will live during the entire trip. Leaving Salem at 9 o'clock in the morning, the special will arrive in Marshfield late in the afternoon. Saturday and part of Sunday will be given to celebrating the special leaving Sunday afternoon. Figuring on 35 passengers to the Pullman, the railroad has made a return price of $18.00, this amount to include board and lodging in the Pullman and safe delivery Sunday evening at Salem. Committees will be announced in a few days, and it is needless to say that the Cherrians and their friends will do things up about right, and one of the most assurances that everything will be carried out in a true Salem spirit is the announcement that George F. Rodgers has been urged to accept the chairmanship of the general committee.

Getting Away With Great Mass of Papers

Inroads are being made upon the mass of papers submitted in the recent teachers' examinations by the county superintendents, in session at the state house. Hundreds of papers have been graded but there are several days' work ahead yet.

Following the grading the state superintendent's office will begin tabulating the results and August 10 has been tentatively decided on as the date on which the grades will be made public.

Today's program observed by the county superintendents included discussions of the following subjects:

Should the County Superintendents Accept and File a Clerk's Bond if They Think It Is Not Sufficient Surety? O. H. Byland, S. E. Notson and C. E. Oliver.

Should Clerks of Joint Districts Give Bonds in Each County? O. C. Brown, Lincoln Savage and R. P. Goin.

County School Board Convention. Clyde T. Bonney, W. L. Jackson and Fay Clark.

Here is a chance for an enterprising citizen who happens to own a small gasoline lunch. With the establishment of the municipal bathing beach across the river between the two bridges, there will be a big demand for transportation. Everybody does not own an auto, at least not yet, and the weather will probably be too warm for walking. For this reason, there will be a great demand for means of transportation at five cents per ride. The Commercial club can furnish figures as to how many enjoyed a ride last summer on the ferry boat to Minto island. This year the bathing grounds will be superior to those of a year ago, and somebody will be given the opportunity of carrying across the hundreds who will not walk nor be invited to ride.

COMMERCIAL CLUB WITHHELD SANCTION

Declines to Authorize Asking Subscriptions to Proposed Hospital

After discussing for two hours the proposition as to whether F. B. Wedel of American Falls, Idaho, should be given a card permitting him to solicit subscriptions for a deaconess hospital in Salem, the Mercantile department of the Commercial club stood pat.

Which means that having refused Mr. Wedel that privilege, the department did not feel like reconsidering its action of several months ago when the director and the executive committee decided that the business men of the city had plenty of troubles of their own, and that the business men of the city should not be called on to offer assistance.

Mr. Wedel, representing the Menonite Deaconess people of American Falls, Idaho, with $30,000 invested, a hospital at Newton, Kansas, with $85,000 invested and Beatrice, Neb., with a $40,000 hospital, appeared before the meeting last evening asking permission to solicit for the establishing of a hospital in Salem.

It was not so much money he wanted, as the favorable consideration of the people in Salem, and although the citizens should only give him $1,000, he felt that with this start, he could eventually establish a Menonite institution equal a least to that of American Falls.

Henry L. Meyer declared that his firm would do as much as any house in the city and that he favored the hospital, only he was strongly opposed to any soliciting at present. He did not mind the idea of the Mercantile department asking its director and executive committee to reverse itself on its former ruling of refusing Mr. Wedel permission to solicit.

Z. J. Riggs thought there was a good field for another hospital. Walter Denton was not especially pleased with the petition that had been presented asking the department to back up on its former action.

Joseph Albert, president of the Commercial club, thought that the department was working against its own interests in not favoring the deaconess hospital. If this town is to grow, we must ask outside institutions to come in, he said.

W. H. Gahldorf, member of the executive committee of the Mercantile department opined that the merchants were not in position this summer to support any other propositions in which they would be solicited for funds.

Hal D. Patton was inclined to favor giving Mr. Wedel permission to solicit and Benjamin Brick, director of the publicity, tourist and convention department, felt the same way about it.

After a free discussion as to whether Salem wanted to support new institutions in which funds would have to be solicited, and also as to whether the executive committee of the department should be asked to do a motion was passed that the petition presented to the meeting in which they were asked to favor Mr. Wedel, be referred back to the executive committee for consideration.

All of which means that just at present, Mr. Wedel has no authority from the executive department of the Commercial club to solicit subscriptions for the proposed Deaconess hospital at Salem.

BOARD OF HEALTH

The state board of health has sent out an order to the heads of the health departments in the various Oregon cities. This order may be changed as a result of the meeting in Portland Saturday but, unless the scourge shows signs of abating in the east, believes Dr. W. B. Morse, president of the state board of health, the regulations will not be modified.

Health Officer Miles has received the following instructions:

1--The state board of health has ordered that quarantine quarters be established at every railroad depot in which incoming eastern passengers may arrive.

2--The city and county health officers are ordered by the board to inspect all incoming passengers under fifteen years of age.

3--To keep a record of the children's names, date and point of departure and destination, all points of stop over and length of time of stop over.

4--To keep a record of temperature of each child under fifteen years of age.

5--Any child showing a rise of temperature or symptoms indicative of infantile paralysis to be immediately quarantined in the local quarantine quarters provided for that purpose.

6--To keep suspected children in quarantine until the temperature drops to normal and there is no evidence of infection with the virus of infantile paralysis.

7--To quarantine for thirty days if necessary to establish absolutely that the child is not infected.

8--The finding of any infectious of infantile paralysis to be immediately telegraphed or telephoned to the state board of health.

It is felt by the authorities that the danger of cases of the disease arising in this locality is slight; the chief source of danger is that it will be introduced here by outsiders. The matter is most serious to the community and to the children themselves. No disease peculiar to adolescence is more serious in its results.

While the mortality is not higher than in some of the other diseases, it leaves the victim a cripple for life in many cases. In the primary stage fever is always present and this is easily recognized symptom. Sometimes there is pain, although this does not commonly attend the development of the case.

The victim may lose the use of one arm, one leg or both arms and legs. Sometimes the right arm and left leg are affected or vice versa. Not infrequently only a portion of a member is affected. The disease reaches its height in from two to 8 days and from this moment improvement, such as it is, begins.

After the so called improvement starts, the muscles waste and the joints relax. Care is necessary in providing plenty of nutritious food in this stage. Cases are on record in which complete recovery but the rule is that the disease leaves its victim in a feeble state, a cripple for the remainder of his days and an object of pity.

For this reason the city authorities appeal to all parents who discover symptoms of the malady in their children to communicate with their family physician or the health department at once in order that the trouble may be fought in its early stages.

and the health department these institutions today put into effect a new campaign of precautionary measures. These include new sanitary regulations and a report of any sickness in any theatre.

Ruth Hochfelder, four years old, who arrives this afternoon from the epidemic area in New York, will be taken from the train at Oakland, and hurried to the county hospital to undergo two weeks observation.
