

SOCIETY

By ALINE THOMPSON

An engagement that will be of much interest to society maids of Salem has just been made known in Portland. The attractive bride-to-be is Miss Ione Lambert, who has visited here frequently and has many friends in the younger set.

Miss Lambert has announced her engagement to George P. Engley, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Engley, an old and prominent Vermont family. Their former home was in Burlington, Vt., and for some time they have been residents of Washington, D. C.

Miss Lambert is a charming girl and very popular in Portland society. She is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lambert and a sister of Clementine and Joseph H. Lambert. She received her earlier education at St. Helena Hall in Portland, later attending the University of Oregon, where she was a popular member of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. A great deal of Miss Lambert's leisure time is devoted to philanthropy.

The Lambert family is among the oldest and best known in Portland, the late J. H. Lambert, grandfather of the bride-to-be, being one of Oregon's oldest pioneers. Her father is identified with banking and realty circles. Mr. Engley is a well known timber man, and is associated with a big lumber concern in Eastern Oregon with headquarters at La Grande. He is also very popular socially and visited in Portland last week when he and his prospective bride made known the happy news to a few close friends and their relatives.

The wedding will be a smart event of the early fall. Miss Minnetta Magers had as her guest over the week end Miss Gertrude Kay Irwin of Dallas. Miss Irwin is supervisor of music in the Dalles public schools.

Mrs. Victor Murdock and small daughter Kathryn, of Wichita, Kansas, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Volk at Volkland, left Saturday for Albany where they visited Mrs. Murdock's cousins the Misses Kate and Alice Allen until Sunday when they joined ex-Congressman Murdock for a few days sojourn in Newport.

Mrs. O. W. Moon entertained Sunday with an informal dinner in honor of Mr. Moon and son, Max, on the occasion of their birthday anniversaries. The house was prettily decorated with garden flowers, a color scheme of yellow and pink being adopted throughout the rooms. An array of sweet peas and nasturtiums and two huge birthday cakes adorned the table around which covers were placed for ten.

Frederic D. Thielsen returned Monday from a week's sojourn in Agate Beach. Mr. Thielsen was accompanied to the shore by Mrs. Thielsen and children, who will remain all season. They are occupying their cottage and will entertain a number of guests during the summer.

Mrs. Fred S. Bynon and daughter Edith, have returned from a few days visit in Portland.

Miss Peggy Marie Hanna of Portland is visiting at the country home of her cousin, Miss Bertha Oliver.

Miss Ida Kerr and Miss Alice Palmer have gone to Nye Beach for a few weeks outing.

Judge and Mrs. Lawrence T. Harris who have been the guests of friends in Eugene for a few days returned Monday.

WANTS STEAMER LINE BETWEEN COUNTRIES

Premier Ryan of Queensland
Would Enlarge Trade with America

New York, July 18.—America needs Australia's goods—and Australia desires American products—therefore there should be a direct steamer service between the two nations, in the opinion of Premier Thomas J. Ryan of Queensland.

I am a strong believer in the possibilities of greater trade between Australia and the United States, the premier declared today. "One of the things I want is a direct steamer service between Brisbane, the capital of Queensland, and San Francisco. This could be given by the Oceanic line of steamers making Brisbane their first and last port of call. At present Sydney is the sole Australian destination notwithstanding that Brisbane is nearer San Francisco. Such a service as I suggest would lead to greater trade and would give a quicker passenger service. The service would lead to increased exports of wool and meat to the United States from Queensland after the war."

The premier, who is returning to the antipodes from London, said except for darkness at night it would be hard to imagine London was the capital of a nation at war. "As for the attitude of the people generally," he said, "not one in a hundred seems to think that England will be actually invaded or that Zeppelins can work any serious damage. All seem convinced that Germany has done her best and her worst and that henceforth she will be playing a losing game."

Pongee and shantung are on the boards for summer fabrics. Striped, checked and figured pongee is a favorite, and this blouse is checked off in wool brown in the natural tone. Fronts, collar and cuffs are hemstitched, and a natty moire tie lends a smart dash.

Each is to be placed in charge of a recruiting squad composed of a sergeant, a corporal and a private. The men are to thoroughly canvass every section of the state for "rookies." The recruits will be sent to Camp Withycombe for training and then hurried south in batches of 150. Acting Adjutant General Wilson expects to begin 500 enlistments by this method.

When Baronets Were Bled.
It was in the reign of good King James that baronets first came into existence. Today you could hardly tell a baronet from a banker. But in the year 1611, when James I. needed ready money and created 200 "little baronets" to supply him with cash, they swaggared about in their baldrics and sashes and behaved in the courtiest of fashion. Each baronet in order to justify his title had to maintain a small army of thirty soldiers for three years. In this way the crafty king not only increased his revenues, but actually lightened his expenses.

When the train stopped at the little southern station the tourist from the north sauntered out and gazed curiously at a lean animal with scrappy bristles, which was rubbing itself against a scrub oak. "What do you call that?" he asked curiously of the native. "Razorback hawg, sub." "What is he doing rubbing himself against that tree?" "He's stropping hisself, sub, just as you do."

"WHY the laughter, Bridie?"

"It's a joke on mother. She came over this afternoon and started the old sob about my having to live in this little coop after father's magnificent home. So just to ease her feelings I took her out to the kitchen to see our new gas range. You know hers was the second one made and only one burner gives anything more than a glow.

"Ours nearly broke her heart. Then one after another, I had her compare my hard wood floors with her splintery ones; my open plumbing to hers, my lighting fixtures to her wabby ones. The final blow was our bathroom. When she turned on the hot water and saw it instantly gush out steaming hot although there wasn't a suggestion of fire in my cool kitchen, she fairly collapsed. Said she was going to divorce father and marry a poor man, so she could get a few modern improvements.

"I told her she could get the hot water anyway, just by telling the Gas Company to put in a Ruud Automatic Hot Water Heater. She's going to break the news to father tonight."
