THINK THEY HAVE

The district attorney also announced that he has information indicating that a second bomb was to have been exploded under a United Railroads car. This alleged plot was not carried out, he said, owing to premature explosion of the first bomb.

James Crockett, a municipal railway employee, and former private detective, told the police today that he saw Billings on the roof of the Perry Exchange saloon just prior to the explosion at the base of the building. He identified brown clothes taken from Billings' room as the suit worn by Billings while on the saloon roof.

Woman Sure of Billings.

San Francisco, July 28.—Thomas Mooney, street strike agitator, and his wife, brought here from Sonoma county as suspects in connection with the recent suit case dynamite outrage, were examined by members of the police bomb squad today in an effort to ascertain whether they can throw any light on the conspiracy which is alleged to have caused the outrage. After a preliminary examination District Attorney Fiskert announced that Mooney would be held but that for the present no charge would be lodged against him.

Both Mooney and his wife declare their innocence and assert that they will have little difficulty in clearing themselves of suspicion. They arrived here at 1 a. m.

Detectives meanwhile again questioned Ed Nolan, a member of the machinists' union, regarding the presence in his home of various kinds of acids, which were found when police made a search of the premises yesterday. These are being analyzed by the city chemist, whose preliminary report indicated that they are harmless. Officers of the machinists' union predicted today that Nolan would be speedily released.

Miss Estelle Smith, who identified Warren Billings, the first suspect arrested, as a man she saw on Market street, carrying a heavy suit case shortly before Saturday's explosion, was again confronted with the prisoner today, in order to clear any doubts she might entertain as to his identity. When she first saw Billings she immediately pointed him out as the man she had seen and said she could not be mistaken, despite Billings' pleadings not to cast suspicion on him.

Meanwhile experts on explosives are examining an infernal machine found June 23 near San Bruno, south of here. The police believe the bomb was intended to blow up the transmission towers of the Sierra and San Francisco Power company, and that there may be some connection between the "job" and the outrage of Saturday. The bomb was in a suit case and carried a clockwork attachment. It was found before it had had time to explode. It contained 52 sticks of 40 per cent dynamite.

Conferred With Mooney.

Oakland, Cal., July 28.—The mysterious man who called at the county jail here three days before the bomb explosion in San Francisco and asked for information of Warren K. Billings, has been identified as Thomas Mooney by detectives at the county jail. Pictures of Mooney were brought over today and the identification made. Connection with the San Francisco bomb inci-
