Dallas Theatre Will Test Sunday Closing Law

(Capital Journal Special Service.)
Dallas, Or., July 28.—O. C. Smith, proprietor of the Orpheum theatre, who was arrested last Sunday evening by Marshal Chase on a charge of violating a city ordinance in operating a moving picture on Sunday evening, was tried before Judge Gregory on Wednesday afternoon and through his attorney, Oscar Hyster, demurred to the complaint, which was sustained by Judge Gregory, and the city was given until Thursday afternoon to file an amended complaint. At the hearing Thursday afternoon Judge Gregory overruled the demurrer of Smith and his attorney immediately appealed the case to the circuit court. The ordinance in the dispute allows theatres to operate between the hours of 2 and 5 in the afternoon, and inasmuch as the Chautauqua company who were in Dallas the first of the month and operated a moving picture show on Sunday evening, and were not molested, and Mr. Smith was, the case will in all probability be carried to the highest court to test the law.

Special Election Monday

A special school election will be held in this district Monday for the purpose of voting a special tax for the maintenance of the schools for the coming year. Owing to a misunderstanding at the election held in June, the special tax was defeated and in so doing deprived the school board of a 6-mill tax voted last year. Members of the board say that the 6-mill increase in the levy this year is not due to a greater expense, but to the fact that no money has been collected from the O. & C. railway lands for the past year and will not even be collected this year. The Dallas schools have attained a high standard and for them to be deprived of the special levy at this time would put them far behind in the efficient work they have been accomplishing.

AURORA NEWS

More than a dozen bids were received for the $18,000 of water bond for the city of Canby, all bidders offering a premium.

John Lettemaier was in town Wednesday. He says the loganberry season is drawing to a close. His acre field yielded about four tons of berries.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Yergen and family were in the city Wednesday evening. Mr. Yergen is about to begin spraying his hops, as he will take no chances of having them overrun with vermin. He has one of the best yards in this section.

The vermin breeding weather of the last three or four days has caused many prudent growers to get ready to spray their hops. The lice have now mounted to the topmost foliage and growers will do well to carefully examine their yards. There is no doubt of the benefit of spraying. Among those getting ready to spray are H. L. Bents, H. J. Keil, Fred Yergen, Ernest Piper, C. S. Arnold and J. P. Feller.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smith were here yesterday on their way to Portland, returning from a trip up the valley where Mr. Smith, representing the Seavey Hoyer company, has been looking over the hop yards. Mr. Smith believes some independence yards will yield lighter than last year, though in general the prospects are good for a larger crop than last in most of the hop section. He fears the lice are a greater menace than the growers realize, the cold weather causing the vermin to seek the upper foliage where they are not noticed as much as when they infest the lower leaves.

Mrs. Diana Snyder and her mother, Mrs. J. S. Vandeleur were entertaining friends from Portland and Silverton Sunday. Their guests were Dr. and Mrs. M. E.
