FIVE BOMB SUSPECTS ARRAIGNED TODAY

Judge Says He Will Stand No More Foolishness, Will Expedite Trials

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—When arraigned today on three charges of murder in connection with the San Francisco suitcase dynamiting, in the court of Superior Judge Dunne, Thomas J. Mooney, indicted bomb suspect, refused to answer to the name of Thomas Mooney, as contained in the indictment. The court then proceeded to arraign under that name. Mrs. Rena Mooney, Warren K. Billings, Edward Nolan and Israel Weinberg, who were also indicted, were arraigned at the same time.

The charges on which the five defendants appeared were ones on which they had not previously been called into court.

Despite the objections of Mooney, Judge Dunne appointed Attorney Sidney Robertson counsel for the defendant and his wife.

"I will stand for no more nonsense," said the court, "either from the defendants, or the district attorney's office. These cases are going to be expedited."

Billings and Nolan were then arraigned on three murder indictments before Superior Judge Cabaniss. Nolan's attorneys demanded a full transcript of the testimony taken before the grand jury which indicted the men.

Counsel for both Billings and Nolan moved that the indictments be set aside on the ground that they did not conform to the requirements of the penal code. Arguments on the motion will be heard Monday.

Attorneys for Billings also alleged that the grand jury was prejudiced and coerced by District Attorney Fickert.

All of the suspects are scheduled to plead to three more murder indictments Saturday before Superior Judge Dunne. It is probably that trials dates will be set at that time.

Park of Salem as testamentary trustee of the estate of the late Mrs. Moody, in whose will her son-in-law, E. P. McCormack, recently deceased, was named as executor and sole trustee. Mr. McCormack's final account as executor was filed several months ago, and the property of the estate, amounting to about $40,000, was transferred to him as trustee. The complaint is made merely in order that formal requirements of the law may be complied with.

City Library Gains Books and Patronage

During the month of June, the city public library gained 76 volumes as there was no withdrawals and 76 were received from gifts and purchase. This gives the library at the close of June a total of 11,968 books and pamphlets.

The total circulation for June was 4,042. The adult readers preferred mostly fiction as 2,091 titles were made for this kind of literature. The children also preferred fiction although not to such an extent as the older folks.

The largest day's business in June was 261 and the smallest 94. The average daily circulation was 165. During the summer months the per cent of fiction reading grows and this is probably the reason 80 per cent of the older folks preferred stories and 60 per cent of the young folks.

The record for June is especially gratifying to the librarian, Miss Anne D. Swezey, as the increase for June this year over that of a year ago was 195, making the month the largest June in the history of the library.

didate will attempt to strike a new blow at his political opponents by citation of specific instances supporting his claims.

Seattle Turned Out

Seattle last night accorded the republican aspirant for presidential honors the greatest demonstration he has yet received. Eight thousand jammed the hall and a thousand more jostled outside pounding vainly on the doors for admission. Even above this din Hughes' voice could be heard. This vast audience cheered every shaft which Hughes shot at the democratic administration with a vim and enthusiasm that echoed and re-echoed through the hall. Stimulated by the warmth of the reception the nominee gave them what members of his party declared was his best speech of the tour.

Vociferous cheers greeted Hughes' first direct reference on tour to Roosevelt. He did not mention the name of the former president but the reference was unmistakable. It was in connection with a satirical reference to the democratic claim of "excitability" when preparedness first became an issue, Hughes said:

"Then a stalwart figure appeared before the American people. He told them a few things and then the administration changed his mind."

Hughes bitterly assailed democratic control of the army and navy and promised "competent and efficient men" in the army and navy portfolios if he was elected.

Whooper Up Alaska

"You've got an empire here in Alaska," he said, "I want to see it developed," and the crowd yelled its approval in roof raising volume. Again the cheers came when, after declaring he had been associated in correcting abuses he declared not in Alaska or elsewhere, "is anyone going to pull anything out if I know of it."

"If we ever fall so low as to recognize it as unnecessary to protect American citizens," he asserted, "we might as well haul down the flag."

"The administration," he declared at another juncture, "knocked Huerta out of the box. It amuses me when I am asked whether I favor intervention. Why the administration intervened when it sought to oust Huerta."

The republican nominee has added a new feature or two to his repertory and he is now in such form that he simply has to spring a few laugh getters. He "pulls" them with a quizzical smile and acts mightily pleased with their invariable result in laughter. Despite the fact that he has polished off his speech now so that it is a completely finished product, the governor now talks at a slower rate than he has in years. James C. Marriott, one of the official stenographers on the transcontinental trip, who has "taken" Hughes speeches for the last 12 years, said today he was hitting it up at about 150 words a minute.

Mrs. Hughes Treats to Candy

"I recall times," he said, "when the governor talked at a rate of 180 or even 200 words a minute rate. He is an extraordinarily easy man to take because he has splendid enunciation and talks at an even rate of speed."

Mrs. Hughes joined the campaign party late last night, greatly refreshed after a water trip from Tacoma to Seattle. Mrs. Hughes so far hasn't missed sending a post card to each of the three Hughes girls—Helen, Catherine and Elizabeth—back at Bridgehampton, at every city in which her husband has remained for more than a few minutes. She has also taken the newspaper men of the party under her wing. Today she sent a huge box of candy into the newspaper cars. When some of the writers bustled back to the observation platform at one stop, and didn't have time
