Gas in Salem in 1869

Gas was first manufactured in Salem in 1869. The wise people had their houses piped at once and their families have enjoyed the convenience for forty-seven years. Others said "We will put it in next year"—and are still saying it.

They are still carrying wood, emptying ashes, and standing on their heads to look in the old wood range oven. They have not advanced in their cooking in forty-seven years. Is it economy to use the old worn out methods? Would a business service long on such antique methods? Is it fair to run your house less efficiently than your business?
