

Mrs. Brown tells her grocer: "Please send me some tea—black tea." And he does!

But Mrs. Brown, perhaps, doesn't realize that there are two distinct types of black tea: English Breakfast and Ceylon. And that she might like one better than the other. The way to choose tea is by taste. If you will send ten cents, we'll mail you the Taste Packet—the simplest, surest way to know good tea.

The Taste Packet contains four parchment envelopes of Schilling's Tea—Japan, English Breakfast, Ceylon and Oolong—enough to make five or six cups of each taste. Address: A Schilling & Company, 333 Second Street, San Francisco

Market Opened Strong Was Weak at Close

New York, Sept. 1.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today says: Early advances in prices were general throughout the list with special improvement reported in the steel and copper shares and in some of the specialties, but the movement, which was brief, did not accompany an active inquiry from the public or from important Wall Street interests.

There was little public participation in any department of the market. Following the forenoon improvement in market values, the whole list became weak under the influence of selling by the professional element, declines carrying prices for the greater number of issues to points well under the early high range and in most instances under Thursday's closing.

United States Steel was offered in round amounts and active realizing sales were made in the coppers while Mercantile Marine preferred, which had sold to a new high in the early dealing, moved off slightly with the general list.

The entire market was weak in the late trading, especially in Studebaker and some rails. JAP CONSULS ORDERED HOME Seattle, Wash., Sept. 1.—Japanese consuls at Seattle, Portland and Vancouver, B. "PROHIBITION IS HELP TO BUSINESS"

Mr. Howard Presents Statistics to Prove His Assertion As Above

Russell H. Howard, founder and president of the Anti-Saloon league in his address last evening at the First Christian church, declared emphatically that big business throughout the country was in favor of prohibition. Mr. Russell had statistics from large steel foundries and from coal companies that employ a large percentage of foreign-born labor, showing that the general efficiency of the men had increased in some cases 11 per cent and that the accidents in the mines had been reduced fully 50 per cent. The statistic also showed that while formerly the mills and mines where short of men on Mondays, known as the sobering up day, with prohibition the output of the mines and mills on Monday averaged with other days of the week. All of which the mine owners said was due to the fact that liquor was not so easily obtained by the man.

In discussing the proposed amendment permitting the breweries to return to the state, Mr. Russell declared that the return of breweries would in part destroy Oregon's latest industry, that of manufacturing loganberry juice. And for this reason, he felt that every loganberry grower should vote against the beer amendment.

Dr. Russell claimed that since Oregon became dry, local arrests have been reduced 42 per cent, drunk arrests 77 per cent, disorderly arrests 36 per cent, and vagrancy arrests 56 per cent. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Carl Gregg Doney, president of Willamette university. The prayer was offered by the Rev. F. T. Porter and R. H. Hutton, of Portland, introduced Mr. Russell.

Oregon dry has reduced our importation of beer at Portland to one-tenth what it was when we simply imported what we needed to piece out after absorbing the output of four big local breweries. The Internal Revenue office says we imported 70,000 barrels last year. This year, if we could turn every quart of importation of whiskey, brandy, rum and sacramental wine and alcohol for family use, into 25 quarts of beer, and add it to the beer which is imported, we should still have but one barrel where we used to get seven barrels of imported beer to pour into our stomachs which already held the output of the four large local breweries.

Benton county records disprove the statement that the decreased consumption of beer has been purchased at the price of increased consumption of hard liquors. The decrease in Benton county is all the more remarkable, as Benton had been dry for so long under local option that it was felt that state prohibition would make little change. Benton county had had such rigid law enforcement that even her prairie trees dared to produce nothing save evaporated prunes. Yet here is the comparative record. After being cut off from the liquors formerly imported from Independence by wagon loads, auto loads—say nothing of stomach loads—the records show the following decreases in favor of 1916 and Oregon dry: Beer from 5,731 quarts to 2,146 quarts, a 60 per cent decrease. Whiskey 1,407 1-2 quarts to 738 quarts, a 50 per cent decrease. Brandy from seven quarts to four quarts, a 45 per cent decrease. Gin from 10 quarts to two quarts, an 80 per cent decrease. Wine from 399 quarts to 61 quarts, an 85 per cent decrease, or a 95 per cent decrease after counting off 40 quarts which were imported for sacramental use.

Furthermore, prohibition gives the lie and a black eye and a knock-out to the brewers' assumption that prohibition increased bootlegging. For the first five months of last year, while Oregon was still wet, Benton county had 13 cases for illicit liquor selling. For the first five months of 1916 under Oregon dry she had five cases, four of which were held over from 1915 wet; so the ratio stands 15 to 1, which 13 is unlikely for some one, and that some one is not the drys. Vote "315-X-No" against the amendment to open breweries; and "permit the manufacture and regulated sale of malt liquors containing four per cent or less of alcohol." Kill the brewers' amendment and keep Oregon dry.
