The Grand Army of the Republic!
Could there have been found another name so appropriate and which would have so clearly expressed the material of which it was made and the purposes for which it was formed. As we pronounce it our memories revert to the firing on our flag at Sumpter and the prompt call for volunteers to defend it made by that foremost American, the great and Godlike Abraham Lincoln. From every hamlet and town in every 25c loyal state from Maine to Oregon we 26c see the boys responding to that call the Republic founded your organization of poon the bases of fraternity, charity and loyalty. That further demonstrated the material of which you were made. You had just been discharged as members of a victorious army, fresh from scenes of blood and strife. Your great leader and president, whom you loved and adored, had but recently loved and loved and seen shot down by the fool hand of an assassin and many against whom you had seeured at so frigatful a cost. Yet in this crisis you formed your organization to preserve as citizens those indestructible principles you had advanced as soldiers, and since that day you have so worked your noble purposes into American laws and institutions that in all time to come there should never again be any question raised concerning the wisdom and permanency of any of the great chings for which you have contended.
