Johnson Challenges Cleveland's Humanity

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 5.—"Jim Johnson," who admits he has worn prison stripes a good part of his life, arrived in Cleveland today and threw down the gauntlet to the whole city.

"I want a chance to go straight," Jim said, "and I'm here to see whether Cleveland will give me the chance."

"I spent nine years in jail learning to go straight. But they preach the straight road to us guys and then they don't never give us a chance when we shake the stripes. I want a job—any kind of a job. Just give me a chance, Cleveland."

Johnson isn't his real name. He is 57 and the pallor of the prison still lingers on his cheeks but he is full of hope.

"I'm challenging Cleveland's humanity," Jim said, as he started out in search of "that job."

Trotting Record Broken

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 5.—One world's record and two season records were broken at the third day of the Kentucky Horsebreeders' association meeting yesterday. The world's record was broken when Lee Axworthy, in an effort to break the track record of 2:02 for trotting stallions, made by Peter Volo last year, lowered his own world's record to 1:59 1-2.

Lucile Spier, the world's champion mare on a half-mile track went out to beat 2:05 and trotted the mile in 2:03 1-2, which is the season's mark for trotting mares, and Roan Hal, in winning the Board of Commerce stake, for 2:00 pacers, went the second mile in 2:00 3-4, which also is the season's mark for pacing geldings. All the races today were decided by straight heats.

Sixteen Citizens Were Made Yesterday

Sixteen of the applicants for citizenship papers in Judge Galloway's court yesterday were successful, and four of them failed. The application of Ernest Harold Hunt, until recently a pianist in Salem moving picture theatres, now a resident of Portland, was denied because he failed to file for his final papers within seven years after making his first declaration, and he will be compelled to wait two more years.

The applicants of Emdon Fritz Slade, deputy state bar examiner, Jacob William Andersohn, of Salem, and Johann Julius E. Baumgartner, of Stockton, California were continued because they failed to appear for examination.

Worth-While Books at Public Library

On account of the war in Europe shutting off tourist travel to that corner of the globe, Americans have been forced to turn to other parts of the world for travel and excitement and as a result books telling of travel in the United States have become more popular than they have been in recent years. In the Salem library books of American travels are in demand.

Miss Anne D. Sweeney, librarian, has arranged one hundred good novels in a display case for the convenience of the reading public in the hope of diverting some of the attention usually given to trashy and worthless books. The novels are chosen from the list of really good books that are worth while reading and they are being taken out with gratifying regularity.

Of the non-fiction books, "The Story of a Pioneer," the life story of Anna H. Shaw, the great woman preacher who had such a struggle before she was ordained a minister, is in good demand and might be said to be popular. It is said to be very fascinating.

Another book that ranks high with readers in other cities but which has enjoyed only slight patronage in this city is the "Biography of John Hay," by William Roco Thayer. This book is the story of American public life and gives intimate side lights on American history and prominent persons. It is declared to be absorbing from start to finish and Miss Sweeney recommends it to any one who likes intimate studies of American great men.

CITY NEWS

Every thing is practically ready for the reception to Charles Fairbanks, vice presidential candidate on the republican ticket who will address the voters in the armory Friday afternoon. He will be in the city only two hours. Frank Davey, G. B. Warr, A. W. Ventch and N. D. Elliott were appointed yesterday as a committee on arrangements. The meeting of the republican county central committee met yesterday at the headquarters on High street for the purpose of getting the precinct committees to appoint ladies to assist them in the campaign work. Representatives from all parts of the county were present.

Judge Webster Wins Holds Until 1919

In an opinion handed down this afternoon at 1 o'clock the supreme court affirms the judgment of Circuit Judge Galloway in the case of Daniel Webster vs. U. G. Boyer.

This was a friendly action brought to determine whether justices of the peace were included with in the meaning of the constitutional amendment extending the tenure of office of judges from four to six years, and it was decided that the amendment did so apply by Judge Galloway.

The opinion was written by Justice McBride, concludes with the following words:

"We are of the opinion that a justice court is a court and a justice of the peace a judge within the meaning and intent of sections 1 and 2 of article 7 of the constitution as amended in 1910, and that the plaintiff is entitled to hold the office of justice of the peace for a term of six years from January 1, 1913."

Governor Withycombe and Judge Charles McNary Leave Salem This Afternoon

Both Charles H. Fisher, Tom Kay, Joe Albert and William S. Hamilton is in Portland this afternoon on industrial business connected with the Commercial club. The committee may be absent from the city for several days, according to the length of time necessary to transact its business.

The funeral of Rhoda H. Peterson, aged 79 years, who died in this city October 3, 1916, was buried yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. F. T. Porter at the chapel of Webb and Clough. Interment was in the I. O. O. F. cemetery.

Arvil Wilson of Watt Ships Gun House, was out hunting yesterday and bagged three fine birds.

He used three shells, so he says. The scene of the shooting was out on Howell prairie. Ed Rosten, of Rosten and Greenbaum's clothing store, was also out.

Some cigarettes may be mild, but they don't satisfy.

BUT—Chesterfields satisfy, yet they're mild!

This is a new kind of enjoyment for a cigarette to give. It is something that no cigarette, except Chesterfields can give you, regardless of price.

Why?

Because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend!

TEACHERS INSTITUTE NOW WELL UNDER WAY

Interesting Lectures Feature of Day—Mr. Finley Shows Pictures

What is conceded to be most interesting on this morning's program at the teacher's annual institute now being held in the Salem high school was the address by Florence C. Fox, primary specialist from Washington, D. C., on the subject "The Migration of the Story." Her story was enlivened by humorous anecdotes and entertaining incidents in putting over stories with a moral in such a way that they are impressed on the mind of the children. This, in her estimation, is a subtle and important part of the teacher's education. Her talk was given rapt attention and was a pointed illustration of the power of a simple story to hold the interest of the mind.

After the lecture of Florence Fox, the institute adjourned to Ye Liberty theater to hear the lecture of Wm. Finley on the subject "The Home Life of the Wild Birds and Animals." The lecture was illustrated with moving pictures of the animals and shows them in their native habitat. The pictures were filmed by Mr. Finley himself and of special interest.

This afternoon talks are being given by Florence C. Fox on Oral and Silent Reading; by Marie Ehmer and Mary Scollard on "Analysis and Composition"; by Ina Habbs and Louise Weniger on "Good English—How to Secure It." The "Question of Discipline" was taken up by J. E. Driette and Carrie Evans and a demonstration of the preparation and care of the school library given by Flora M. Case.

Hot Lunches in Schools.

"Hot Lunches in the Rural School," was developed by Maybelle Wagner and Jean M. Byers into an interesting lecture. Departmental talks occupied the afternoon until 3:40 o'clock when Mrs. Anna Rodgers Fish gave selected readings and M. S. Pittman gave an address upon a selected subject.

Yesterday afternoon the advanced departments under F. H. Durham, chairman, took up the subject of "Methods of Teaching Self-Reliance." J. F. Axley, of the Salem schools, demonstrated how self-reliance could be developed in history and civics and the curiosity of the pupils aroused to cause them to act without fear. Mrs. E. H. Bellchup warned the teachers against intimidating children and advised them never to do for a child what it can do for itself. She decried a petence a great requisite in this line. A general discussion followed.

In the discussion by Gladys Carson and H. C. Todd of the subject "How Should the Teacher Keep Abreast of the Times Professionally?" an interest in the work was deemed the first requisite. The second requirement is a thorough knowledge of the local environment, with study of the children and their home influences paramount. A good constructive parent-teacher association was declared to be a great asset to this end. The third requisite was said to be for the teacher to make the community his home for the time being, and the fourth was to keep in close touch with fellow teachers.

Pinck and Tact.

Pinck and tact, said H. C. Todd, were absolutely essential and a brand new diploma only evidence of a beginning.

"The Things That Are More Excellent" by Edwin T. Reed, proved to be an interesting address and he said that the teacher's privilege is not only in knowing where he will teach or what he will get but in being a mark for all bunco men and gold brick salesmen.

He compared the responsibility and importance of the teacher's profession with that of other professions. He declared teaching to be an art. He said the privileges of the teacher are to teach, to be trusted financially, trusted morally, to assume educational responsibility, to be honored and appreciated and loved, to be a factor in civic uplift, to enter the best society, to be loyal to the community, to enjoy the life of a scholar and revel in the spirit of research, and many phases of life.

He spoke of how the teacher could emphasize humanity, exercise professional authority, to inspire and lead, to be patriotic and teach world patriotism.

The lecture on play or "School Play Too Much," by E. A. Miller and W. C. Gaunt, was another interesting lecture of yesterday afternoon. Play, said Mr. Miller, is one of the human activities that has never died. This probably because play is a preparation for future life activities.

Charles R. Archard was elected at the meeting of the board of directors of the Salem Commercial club last night to fill the vacancy in the position of tourist publicity agent for the club in the place of Benjamin Brick, who recently resigned. At the meeting last night the resignation was accepted. Mr. Archard is proprietor of the implement house on State street formerly occupied by S. A. Manning and he promises already some active work in his department.
