Hood River is short of apple packers. A dispatch to Manager Paulus of the Salem Fruit union, this morning, says, "Are there any apple packers in your section that want jobs? Look up the matter for us and advise. We believe it is possible for us to offer an attractive proposition. Good, long season. Lenty of work. Can you refer me to any other points in the valley where packers might be obtained?" Manager Paulus states that he has found no difficulty in obtaining apple packers here. If there should be any such out of work it might be well for them to look up the Hood River proposition.

Harry Plant, who went to the Mexican border with Company M last June and who presided over the destinies of the kitchen as company cook, met his fate while on a ramble in San Diego one day when he was off duty. While in that southern city, which is replete with pretty, black-eyed, black-haired Mexican lassies, he met a fair damsel with Spanish blood flowing in her veins and the remainder of this story reads like a page from a romantic novel with a happy ending. The happy ending of the novel in this instance is just the beginning of happiness for Harry Plant because he married the girl, just slipped quietly out of camp at Imperial Beach and captured her. Her name was Miss Leo Berger, of San Diego. Mr. Plant, who is armorer now at the armory, received a letter recently stating that Mrs. Plant, who has been visiting in San Francisco, will arrive in Salem soon. The marriage took place August 29, 1916.

The forthcoming biennial report of Labor Commissioner Hoff makes the following statement in regard to Aurora, Marion county: "The town needs another meat market, drayman, creamery, cannery, furniture store, brick and tile plant, elder and vinegar plant, livery stable, millinery shop and bakery."

Charles Edgar Bayes, a member of Company M while on the Mexican border, and Joseph Edward Carver, of 653 North High street, were this morning sent to Goat Island, San Francisco, to the navy training station by Machinist J. E. Adams, navy recruiting officer stationed in the Salem postoffice. Machinist Adams has recently arrived to take charge of the station here and says that although young Bayes is somewhat under the height required for the navy, his physical condition was so good that it is probable permission may be granted for his admission into the ranks. The recruiting officer has had nine years experience in the navy and is competent to give correct information concerning this branch of the service. He expects to have all his apparatus in order shortly and his office ship shape and cleared for action.
