

SERBIANS AGAIN FIGHT ON NATIVE SOIL; REFUGEES AWAIT REPATRIATION IN SALONIKA

The attack by the Serbians on the Bulgarians has brought them over the Servian-Greek border, and the Servian soldiers are fighting again on their native soil from which they were expelled by the Teutonic advances last year.

Germany's victory over the Serbians ousted from the conquered kingdom not only the remnants of the Servian army which was completely routed, but also great masses of the populace, who took refuge in Greece. Now, these Serbians are awaiting the day when they may return to their native land, a contingency dependent, of course, on the success of the Servian operations against the Bulgarians.

Court House News

After one of the shortest terms of court in the history of the county, the jury in department No. 1 of the circuit court was discharged this morning. It was given barely three days work during the session.

As nearly as can be reckoned this afternoon, the total registration at the office of the county clerk for the coming general election will fall about 1,000 short of the registration two years ago. This shortage however may be more seeming than otherwise, owing to the fact that two years ago every voter who desired to register a change of residence was required to bring two freeholders with him to the registration office.

The will of the late Carl Johnson, of Silverton, has been admitted to probate in the county court. R. S. Pettit is executor, and M. T. Pettit, G. W. Hubbs and ... Pettit have been named as appraisers.

Republican leaders considered today that the speech of Charles W. Fairbanks, r n public vice presidential nominee at the army here was one of the best campaign orations ever delivered in the northwest.

Fairbanks addressed a crowd of 5,000 people, packing the building to its capacity. He directed his attack principally at the democratic slogan: "Wilson kept us out of war."

"Ask the fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters of the brave boys who fell at Vera Cruz if there was not war in Mexico," he demanded.

The mention of Charles E. Hughes name provoked a riotous demonstration. There was another outbreak of cheering when Fairbanks chanced to mention President Wilson.

Bay of Rio De Janeiro Is Belled With Diamonds

By MARGARET MASON. Before the beauty of the bay At Rio, all I wish to say Is surging deep within my breast Too wonderful to be expressed. My tongue is mute, my pen is dry Before the glories of the eye, And yet I hear on every hand The clamor of the tourist band Exclaiming loudly "It's just grand!"

Antonio Gama is the name of my versatile young Brazilian guide and aside from his native Portuguese he has acquired his knowledge of French, German, Italian, Spanish and English at night school. This linguistic ability is not uncommon among the ambitious young working men of Brazil. And they are always most polite and obliging. Just imagine how delighted we North Americans would be if our subway guards and street car conductors could even speak English—as for their even being polite and obliging—this is too Utopian a dream.

GERMAN SUBMARINE

GENERAL ROWLAND INITIATED.

General Rowland, one of the leaders in the Y. M. C. A. membership contest, was initiated into a society of which he does not know the name, at least all he knows about it is that it is called the "B. B." club. He knows more about the workings of its initiatory ritual however. The other evening, Thursday, several of his friends—Robin Fisher, Armin Berger, Clifford Townsend, Warren Brasher, and Loran Simpson—captured him and took him in an automobile to State street and dumped him out barefooted in front of a cigar store with instructions to meet them at the Congregational church later. Barefooted and alone in the big city he maneuvered to the church, where he was picked up and given his shoes. Then the automobile took him out in the country five miles and dumped him again. He had to walk back. Now he wears a brilliant red and green necktie and must write all his letters in red ink or suffer a fine. The club is a private one and he expects to enjoy being a member if he ever passes the initiatory portals.

BURCK-KAUFFMAN WEDDING

Last Sunday evening Mr. Melvin Burck and Miss Grace Kauffman were married at Albany by Bishop J. P. Bontrager, at the residence of the bishop.
