HUGHES CONTINUES TO SCOLD PRESIDENT

Norman Hapgood Gets a Rise and Hughes Denies the Accusation

By Perry Arnold (United Press staff correspondent) CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 11.—Candidate Hughes today made curt denial of charges made by Norman Hapgood that there is an understanding between himself and German propagandists. He did not mention the charges specifically, nor refer to Hapgood by name.

"I have no understanding, no agreements, no intrigues with anybody," Hughes said, "but I stand for the interests of the United States and the protection of American lives, American property and American commerce throughout the world."

Republican Nominee Hughes swung westward through West Virginia today with his indictment of the democratic policies. He was scheduled for four speeches, at Charleston, Parkersburg, Huntington and Charleston. In each of these he planned to direct the fire of his criticism mainly against the democratic failure to live up to the pledges of the 1912 platform promising protection of American lives abroad.

Speaking here early today he assailed the administration for its handling of the Mexican problem and solemnly warned his auditors of the evil days he said were bound to come, if after peace among the warring European nations had been arranged, the United States was forced to compete in world commerce under the Underwood tariff bill.

Hughes' voice was strong and clear—probably in the best shape it has been since he started to "come back" in August. Today for the first time since he assumed the responsibility of a party candidate he began to develop real orator's gestures and pull little tricks of speech of which Theodore Roosevelt would be proud. He halted out to view here today a first class puppet swing in driving home his pungent criticism of the Adamson eight hour bill. He mixed in a little slang—about "coming back" and "what do you know about that"—in his speeches, all of which struck his audience here favorably.

What was more to the point, the G. O. P. candidate has developed a very keen sense of publicity now. Until the present trip no one on his train could make the nominee see the necessity of preparing his speeches in advance. But since he left New York Monday, the governor has found time to dictate his principal addresses enabling the correspondents to get his "punchy stuff" into print earlier.

Mrs. Hughes was back with her husband after a brief visit to her home in Washington. She stood on the stage with him today, her hands and distributed them in between hand shakes.

BOSTON WINS EASILY

one, ball one, ball two, ball three, Janvrin fanned. Walker up, ball one, strike one, strike two, strike three, called. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Walker fanned on two fast ones, at which he swung and the third was a wide sharp-breaking curve. Marquard appears to be in the best of form.

Brooklyn: Johnston up. Johnston tripled to center on the first ball pitched. It was a hard line drive. The crowd had its first opportunity to yell right off the bat and went to it strong. Myers up, strike one, strike two. Myers singled to right scoring Johnston. It was a line drive past Janvrin. The infield was drawn in and there was not a chance even to stop the ball.

Brooklyn: Johnston up, strike one, ball one, ball two, foul strike one, ball three. Merkle walked. Myers on second. Wheat up, strike one. Wheat forced Merkle, Gardner to Janvrin, Myers taking third. Cutshaw up, ball one. Myers held at third. Ball two, strike one, foul strike two, ball three. Cutshaw was safe, Myers scoring when Janvrin fumbled Cutshaw's grounder and was given an error. Wheat stopped at third. It was a sharp grounder. Mowrey up, ball one, ball two, foul strike one, strike two. On an attempted double steal, Wheat was out at third. Carrigan to Janvrin to Gardner. Two and two on Mowrey. Mowrey fanned, swinging at the third strike. Two runs, two hits, one error.

Leonard was having lots of trouble. He had no control of his curves and was forced to use a fast ball at critical moments. Cleverness of the Boston infield in breaking up a double steal had much to do in preventing further scoring.

Second Inning. Boston: Hoblitzell up, ball one, strike one, ball two, strike two, ball three. Hoblitzell walked. Lewis up, ball one, strike one, ball two. Lewis doubled to right, Hoblitzell going to third. The ball hit the fence on the fly. Johnston made a great try for it but missed. Gardner up, ball one, ball two, ball three, strike one, strike two, foul. Gardner homed to center, scoring Hoblitzell and Lewis. The ball went clear to the fence in deep center, so far that fast fielding by Myers could not relay it to the infield until Gardner was sliding across the plate. It was his second home run of the series. Scott up, ball one, strike one. Carrigan up, ball one, strike one. Carrigan sacrificed. Marquard to Merkle, Scott taking third. Leonard up, ball one, strike one, foul strike two, strike three. Leonard fanned, swinging at the last one. Hooper up, ball one. Hooper out, Merkle unassisted. Three runs, two hits, one error.

Marquard was in the same trouble as Leonard. His curve was breaking too wide for good control. Brooklyn: Olson up, foul strike one, Olson out, Gardner to Hoblitzell. Meyers up, strike one, ball one, foul strike two, ball three, strike two. Meyers walked. Hooper up, ball one, strike one, ball two, strike one, ball three. Hooper walked. Janvrin up, foul strike one, ball one, ball two, ball three, strike two. Janvrin fanned. Hooper stole second. Meyers was given a passed ball by the scorers, but Hooper was credited with a stolen base. Walker up. The Dodgers had Hooper off second, but Cutshaw dropped the throw. It was not an error. Walker popped to Olson. Hoblitzell up. Hoblitzell singled to left, scoring Hooper. Lewis up, strike one, ball one, strike two. Lewis fanned, swinging at the last one. One run, one hit, no errors.

The count on Janvrin was three and two when he swung at the third strike and Hooper had started for second with the pitch. Meyers dropped the ball consequently Hooper was given a credit for a stolen base and Meyers charged with a passed ball.

Brooklyn: Johnston up, strike one, ball one, strike two, foul. Johnston flew to Lewis. Myers up, strike one, foul strike two, ball one. Myers flew to Hooper. Merkle up, ball one. Merkle singled to center. Wheat up. Wheat singled to left, Merkle stopping at second. Cutshaw up, ball one, ball two.

Brooklyn: Cutshaw up, ball one, strike one. Cutshaw doubled to right. Hooper got his hands on the ball after a hard run but was forced to drop it. Mowrey up, ball one, ball two, ball three. Mowrey walked, on four straight balls. The crowd roared. Leonard seemed slightly nervous. Olson up, strike one. It was a foul. Olson popped to Hoblitzell on an attempted sacrifice. Meyers up, ball one, strike one, ball two, strike two, ball three, foul, foul. Meyers popped to Scott. It was a high fly into short left field. Pfeffer batting for Marquard, ball one, strike one, ball two, foul strike two. Pfeffer fanned, swinging at the last one. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Marquard had been touched for four runs and five hits when he gave way to Pfeffer, who went in as a pinch hitter in the fourth. Cheney took Marquard's place on the mound for Brooklyn. The crowd started after Leonard hard at the beginning of the inning, but he settled after a slight flare-up.

Fifth Inning. Boston: Hooper up. The game was delayed while Empire Connolly rushed in from right field and conferred with Quigley and Dineen. He pointed something in the pavilion, but the cause of the trouble was not divulged and play was resumed. Hooper up, ball one, ball two, strike one, ball three. Hooper walked. Janvrin up, foul strike one, ball one, ball two, ball three, strike two. Janvrin fanned. Hooper stole second. Meyers was given a passed ball by the scorers, but Hooper was credited with a stolen base. Walker up. The Dodgers had Hooper off second, but Cutshaw dropped the throw. It was not an error. Walker popped to Olson. Hoblitzell up. Hoblitzell singled to left, scoring Hooper. Lewis up, strike one, ball one, strike two. Lewis fanned, swinging at the last one. One run, one hit, no errors.

MUSICIAN IN JAIL PLAYS HIMSELF OUT

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 11.—Silver notes of Barcell's aria from the opera "Dido and Aeneas" coming from a small barred window high up on the wall of the east side jail, brought a gingham aproned audience of neighbor women beneath the small window, today listening to William D'Alfonso lighten a 180 days' sentence for battery.

John Campiglia, member of the International Opera Library of New York, passing by, heard the strains of the violin from within the prison and got very excited, and, while the prisoner was responding to the unseen plaudits from the outside, Campiglia was securing his release.

And now D'Alfonso is considering an offer from the San Francisco symphony orchestra.
