ROOSEVELT WANTS WAR. (Woodburn Independent, Rep.) This year congress has appropriated $640,000,000 for the army and navy. We are spending $100,000,000 more for preparedness this year than the annual appropriation for army and navy of any nation on earth prior to the European war. The plan for next year is an increased appropriation of $150,000,000, making a total of $890,000,000. This is what Roosevelt has been demanding, and now he wants war. It is altogether likely he wants to defeat Hughes so that either he or Root will be the nominee in 1920, knowing that if Hughes is elected he would be defeated beyond a doubt.

Department Experts Explain How to Make Potato Bread

Washington, D. C., Oct. 21.—Excellent bread can be made by using three pounds of boiled and mashed potato and 2 1/2 pounds of good bread flour, according to the baking specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture. The bread so compounded has a rich brown crust and tender elastic crumb. It has an appetizing odor and a very agreeable taste, which is preferred by many to that of bread made wholly from flour. When made according to the directions given below, potato bread contains no mineral matter, fiber, and moisture, but otherwise, in composition and nutritive value, is practically the same as ordinary bread. Its higher moisture content helps to keep it fresh several days longer than ordinary bread. In localities where there is a surplus of potatoes or where they are cheap, potato bread costs less to make than all-flour bread. This would prove an excellent way in which to utilize cull potatoes. Even, however, where the relative market prices of potatoes and flour are such that there is no economy in substituting potato for flour, the individual flavor and keeping quality of potato bread make it desirable as a variant in the family diet.

Potato bread as known abroad is made generally with potato flour, about 10 parts of this commonly being used with 90 parts of wheat flour or a mixture of rye and wheat flours. As potato flour and dried potato flakes are not accessible to the American housewife, the specialists conducted a series of successful experiments in using boiled potatoes with flour. It was found that a mixture of boiled potatoes and wheat flour, in the proportions given in the accompanying recipes, gave a very desirable loaf, a trifle smaller than that made from all flour, but wholesome and nutritious. Figured to a basis of equal moisture content, the boiled potato would represent 25 per cent and the flour 75 per cent of the mixture.

The following methods for making potato bread, worked out in the baking laboratory, are recommended: Potato bread—straight dough method. For four one-pound loaves, the following ingredients are required: 3 pounds of boiled and peeled potatoes. 2 1/2 pounds of good bread flour, 1 1/2 level tablespoons of salt, 1 1/2 level tablespoons of sugar, 1 cake compressed yeast, 4 tablespoons of lukewarm water.

Wash thoroughly and boil in their skins about 12 potatoes of medium size. Cook them until they are very tender. Drain, peel, and wash them white hot, being careful to leave no lumps. Allow the mashed potato to cool to 86 degrees F. or until lukewarm. To 3 pounds (5 solidly packed 1/2-pint cups) of the mashed potato, add the yeast, which has been rubbed smooth in a cup with 3 tablespoons of lukewarm water. To get all the yeast, rinse the cup with the remaining tablespoonful of water and add this also to the potato. Next add the salt, sugar, and about 4 ounces of the flour. (I meant half pint of sifted flour). Mix thoroughly with the hand, but do not add any more water at this stage.

Cover the mixing bowl to avoid the formation of a crust on top and place out of the way of drafts to rise, where the temperature can not fall below 80 degrees F. or be much higher than 88 degrees F. Where the housewife has no thermometer, she should see that the dough in all the risings is kept moderately warm, but not up to blood heat. Any water used in mixing the dough should be moderately warm, but by no means hot. This sponge, if kept at the proper temperature, should, after two hours, become quite light.

To this well-risen sponge, which now will be found to be quite soft, add the remainder of the flour, kneading thoroughly until a smooth and elastic dough is formed. The dough must be very stiff, since the boiled potato contains a large amount of water which causes the dough to soften as it rises. Do not add water to the dough unless it is absolutely necessary to work in the flour. Set the dough back to rise again at about 80 degrees Fahrenheit, until it has tripled in volume, which will require another hour or two. Then divide the dough into four approximately equal parts, reserving a tiny lump weighing 2 or 3 ounces for an "indicator." Shape the sample into a ball and press it into the bottom of a small tumbler with straight sides. The glass should be slightly warmed. Note the volume of the ball of dough in the tumbler and mark the glass at twice this volume. Mold the four portions into loaves and place in greased pans which have been slightly warmed. Place the glass containing the "indicator" beside the pans and let all rise, under proper temperature, the loaves in the oven and bake at a good, steady heat (400 to 425 degrees Fahrenheit) for 45 minutes. To Test Oven. Where no oven thermometer is at hand, a convenient test will be to put a teaspoonful of flour in an earthen dish in the oven. If this flour becomes light brown evenly throughout in five minutes time, the oven is right for bread baking. If the flour scorches in that time, the oven is too hot.

What the Daily Press Says of Hyphenated Vote

(The Literary Digest.) President Wilson's stinging retort to an offensive telegram from Jeremiah A. O'Leary, head of an organization calling itself the American Truth society, brings the issue of "hyphenism" again sharply to the front in the presidential campaign. To Mr. O'Leary's allusions to "your pro-British policies," "trucking to the British Empire," and "diplomacy over congress," and his assurance that "your foreign policies, your failure to secure compliance with all American rights, your leniency with the British Empire, your approval of war-loans, the ammunition traffic, are issues in this campaign," the president replied: "I would feel deeply mortified to have you or anybody like you vote for me. Since you have access to many disloyal Americans and I have not, I will ask you to convey this message to them."

While most of the press does not go as far as the Brooklyn Citizen (Dem.) which sees in the president's telegram "the central issue of the campaign reduced to the simplest terms," or as the New York World, (Dem.) which regards "the German drive" against President Wilson as "the most sinister development of American political life since secession," the rebuke administered to Mr. O'Leary is hailed with wide-spread approval. "We venture to say," remarks the Independent New York Evening Post, "that it came nearer to receiving unanimous approval than anything else that has been said in this campaign." This definition of "an insolent alienism," "a pestilent hyphenism," is also applauded by the Springfield Republican, (Ind.) and by such republican papers as the Brooklyn Standard Union and the Philadelphia Public Ledger. "If there had been more O'Leary's in the last few months President Wilson would have had some chance of reelection," remarks the Standard Union, and the Brooklyn Eagle, (Dem.) notes that the president's words "express a sentiment to which all republicans as well as all democrats who resent the intrusion of alien sympathies and alien issues into American politics will cordially respond." Turning again to The Public Ledger, we read:

"The foreign relations and policies of the government undoubtedly are issues in the present political campaign, but they are to be settled solely on the basis of what is best for America, not what will serve the interests of some foreign power. The 'hyphen' is a nuisance and a menace, and both parties will be the gainers when their leaders have the honesty and the courage to repudiate it. Neither the president nor Mr. Hughes is seeking or desirous of 'disloyal support,' whatever may be the mendacious assertions of partisans to the contrary."

Nevertheless, remarks the Chicago Journal (Dem.) "with Mr. Hughes assiduously endorsing the pro-Kaiser vote, it is a relief to have President Wilson go on record once more as desiring nothing but the pro-American vote." The issue this Chicago paper reminds us, is not between native and foreign-born citizens, but "between men who vote as Americans and men who vote to uphold the policy and enforce the will of a foreign prince." And in Milwaukee, where the German-American element is even stronger than in Chicago, we find The Journal, (Ind.) commending President Wilson for his refusal "to parley with men of alien minds." This Milwaukee paper goes on to say:

"The facts fully justify the president's sharp policy. It was not the first time that O'Leary had sent an insulting message to the head of the republic. He has been guilty of violent abuse of the president. He represents a movement organized to use the United States for the benefit of another country, a movement hostile to the interests of our own nation. His society sought to justify the sinking of the Lusitania, organized a movement to defeat members of congress who would not vote to lay an embargo on arms and ammunition, published veiled threats of an uprising in this country in the interests of Germany, and denounced the policy of the American government as a 'bastard neutrality.' It has been one of the most bitter and extreme factors in the campaign of alienism that has been waged in America."

"Chicago knows Jeremiah," remarks the Chicago Herald (Ind.) which condemns his "boorish insult" to the president, and recalls that at a meeting in the Auditorium he once shouted suggestions that William Jennings Bryan then secretary of state, "ought to be hanged." "Why this cheap bunch of political bushwhackers should call itself the Truth society is one of the things that no fellow can find out," remarks the Philadelphia Record, (Dem.) and the New York Morning Telegraph (Dem.) refers to this society as "an organization the very title of which comes dangerously near infringing the label laws when taken in connection with what it seeks to accomplish." In the eyes of his friends and followers Mr. O'Leary is "a loyal, ardent young American patriot," and he himself challenges comparison between his loyalty and that of President Wilson. Meanwhile the American Truth society is blacklisting all the democratic nominees for congress in New York City except Mr. Henry Bruckner, because of their failure to support the McElmore resolution to keep American citizens off ships of the belligerent nations, their failure to protest against the removal of St. John Gaffney as consul at Munich, and various other failures, including failure to save Sir Roger Casement from execution. By way of a counter-offensive, according to a democratic national committeeman quoted by the republican New York Tribune:

"We are going to make the hyphen issue the big talking point of this campaign. There isn't any other issue. The president's telegram to Mr. O'Leary has nailed Mr. Hughes' effort to win the German vote to a flagpole, so to speak, so that the whole country can see it. Now he can keep the German vote if he will, but non-German voters of the country will understand fully to what Mr. Hughes would owe his election should he win."
