WHICH IS RIGHT, THE CANDIDATE OR PARTY

Candidate Hughes in his speech at Albany, New York, Thursday, intimated that our flag under the present administration meant only "an invitation to come home." If this is true what did it mean under President Taft when he told the citizens of Douglas that if they were in danger from Mexican bullets to move out of their way? That was not an invitation "to come home" but a suggestion that American citizens leave their homes if Mexican bullets made them dangerous.

He is met with the same situation in his attacks on the eight hour bill. He says he favors the eight hour law, but objects to the Adamson bill because, as he says, it only applies to 20 per cent of the railroad employees. Candidate Hughes believes in the theory of an eight hour day but objects to it as a fact. At the same time he, with his vociferous right bower, attacks the administration for its "cowardly surrender" to force.

Mr. Hughes says "A promise to respect the rights of smaller nations should be kept a reality," and he said this while the pugnacious colonel who, as president started a revolution in Colombia and robbed that little country of the Panama zone, was out helping him criticize the present administration.

He insists the republican party shall be returned to power principally that the tariff may be revised by it, forgetful of the fact that a few years ago after promising a revision of the tariff, by all implication, downward, it was shoved the other way; a fact largely responsible for Woodrow Wilson occupying the presidential chair today.

So it goes through the whole list. The things Mr. Hughes most objects to are things his party is against him on. Which is right, his party position heretofore, or Candidate Hughes now.

The fight between Pendleton and Weston over the location of the normal school reminds one of the good old knock down and drag out days of politics. Weston advertises to vote no on 309, insisting such action will "nail some great Pendleton lies," and Pendleton is not backward about saying "your's another."

Mr. Hughes says he "wants to see labor employed at the best wages, with proper hours and wholesome conditions." Yet he says the Adamson bill is wrong because it was an attempt to raise wages not to establish an eight hour day. What does he mean, if anything, by "best wages," and what by "proper hours?"

"They wriggle in and wriggle out, Leaving the reader still in doubt Whether the snake that made the track Was going south or coming back."

A man runs up a little bill, and when it's due he pays it; he coughs up for the merchant's till, and no excuse delays it. Unlike the deadbeats and the bums, he makes a proper showing; the merchants bless him when he comes, and praise him when he's going.

TO THE VOTERS

Do we agree on the following points: Cut $100,000 a year off of the state salary budget. Save $50,000 a year on Game by cutting out the salaried army of special officers.

Save $50,000 a year on Fish by withholding state aid to fish kings who get the profits of the business. Save $100,000 a year by making the Pen and Boys Industrial School self-supporting.

Cut out all appropriations to private or sectarian institutions. Apply the trimming process all down the line. Last year's taxes amounted to $80 for every vote cast at the last election.

LEVI D. RATLIFF. Candidate for the Legislature.

DRESS UP SALEM

(By Catherine Vincent, Seventh Grade) Salem, dress up! Put on your best bib and tucker; adorn yourself in your very best! Clean up your stores, sidewalks, alleys, streets, and lawns.

Very Dear Friend: After ten days spent in visiting old time scenes, I am going to redeem my promise to write you of Salem as she now is. Of course after this lapse of time I was prepared for some changes.

My first great surprise occurred upon the night of my arrival. When I stepped from the train expecting to see again that old depot I imagine my surprise when before my very eyes there arose a beautiful stone structure. This is the new Union Depot and is located on the old site of the House of a Million Begunnes.

Tuesday morning I went to visit the high school. I was going to the building where we received our early training. But upon inquiring I found that that building was devoted to junior high. A new high school has been built that is bigger and better in every respect.

The best lecturers are brought to these classes by the Commercial club. The thing that brought forth the biggest "ah" from me, was the growth of the Commercial club. It now has a membership of about three thousand. It long since out grew its old quarters and has a magnificent building on the corner of State and High, where the Salem Hotel did stand.

As I see more of the Salem as she now is I shall write and tell you. Your friend.

Salvation Army. Sunday services as follows: Knee drill, 9:30 a. m. Sunday school and Bible class, 10:30 a. m. Christians praising, 2:45 p. m. Salvation meeting, 7:45 p. m.

Salem Commons Mission. No. 241 State street. Report for month of October: Received $75; paid out, $75; had 12 meetings in the hall, had about 450 people in attendance during the month with about 40 as an average attendance and nine seekers; there were about 150 beds occupied and about 25 people secured employment.

NOTICE. The following is an itemized estimate of the amounts of money proposed to be raised, by the levying of an additional tax for road purposes, in road district No. 15 1/2, in Marion county, Oregon, as provided by the regularly called meeting of the tax payers of said district, held on the 28th day of October, 1916.

Budget. For the improvement of the following county roads: The road from B. M. Skaffe's residence on Silver Creek Falls road as far as funds will reach by macadam, $1948.50.

The above estimate may be discussed at a regularly called tax payers' meeting to be held on November 25, at 2:30 o'clock p. m. at Fair View school house, in said district.

B. F. TERRY, Chairman. A. H. SOMMERS, Secretary.

MY HUSBAND AND I

CLIFFORD ESCORTS MRS. HORTON HOME. CHAPTER LXVII. To my delight, and I confess it to my surprise, Clifford took me to supper. It was a buffet affair and I enjoyed myself immensely.

I said nothing. Evidently it had all been arranged with no thought of consulting me. So I stood meekly by, but raging inwardly, until Mabel Horton, smart in fashionable furs appeared.

"I never should have dared to come if Cliff hadn't promised to take me home," she remarked to me. "I am horribly timid about going out at night in a hired vehicle."

So it was all arranged that Clifford was to take her home as well as meet her there. And Mabel also called him "Cliff." I turned hot and cold at the same time. I bit my lip until I felt the warm blood in my mouth in my effort to refrain from saying anything.

"Certainly go home with your wife first," Mrs. Horton said to Clifford, then to me, "I'm so sorry you have a headache," but she did not lose the angry look which had flashed into her eyes when I spoke of her age, in spite of her cooing voice.
