COURT HOUSE NEWS

Complaint was filed this morning by R. A. McRay and Lola McRay against Anna Savage and Royal Savage for the return of personal property valued at $225 and for $50 damage for the alleged wrongful detention of the same. They allege that on November 2, 1916, the defendants took possession of nine Jersey cows, one red Pole cow, one Holstein bull, one black sow and six little pigs, one bowl and dishes of a cream separator, and have held the same to the injury of the plaintiffs. They ask a judgment of the court asking return of the property or its equivalent in money.

Marriage licenses were issued this morning to George F. Guerne, a farmer of Turner, and Melba McAllister of Salem; Harley W. Libby, a Jefferson stock raiser, and Ruth Haynes, of Marion; Walter Clarence Welch, a traveling purchasing agent of Olympia, Wash., and Mary E. Eckerlen, a student of Salem.

Supervisor Eike, who looks after the schools in the northern part of the county, is working with County Superintendent Smith today. He reports a parent-teacher association meeting at Broadmead Friday evening that was well attended. He gave a talk. The association will meet again next Friday afternoon for the election of new officers. Miss Hazel L. Brewer of Portland, is the teacher and was in charge of the meeting last night.

A decree by default in the case of B. R. Young against Mattie A. Parrish, an action for the collection of money alleged to be due on a promissory note, was rendered by Judge Galloway yesterday awarding the sum of $1925.08 to the plaintiff and ordering the mortgaged premises sold to satisfy the judgment. It was also ordered that all persons claiming subsequent to June 21, 1916, were barred from the equity of redemption.

On the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of suit, the defendant in the case of Margaret Howard Murray against Charles E. Murray filed a demurrer this morning.

Final discharge of W. A. Taylor as receiver of the Abiqua Lumber company was granted today as he has complied with the law and turned over to himself as trustee all money or property of the company. He was ordered discharged of his trust and liability. The same order was given in the case of D. A. Vogt against Krebbel, which concerns the same action.

Because the horse he bought on October 11, 1916, from John Smith ran away on October 17, and threw out his wife so that three ribs were fractured, her head bruised and battered, and injury received internally, C. L. Larned began action in the circuit court yesterday to recover $5000 general damages, $150 medical fees, and $40 for damage to the buggy, which was smashed up. Larned alleges the horse was warranted as gentle and safe as a family driving horse but that it is wild and unreliable, unfit and unsafe.

Stipulation for the dismissal of the following cases which were to come up before the Oregon supreme court was made today by the parties concerned. The actions are against Marion county which is respondent. The appellants are Marilda Chamber, Ida Lewis, Martha Estes, Ida Wheeler, Carrie M. Chase. The attorneys for the appellants are G. O. Holman and W. C. Toose, Jr., of Dallas.

pick out just what is wanted, and pay the cashier as you leave. This is the first time this has been done in Salem and it is expected to be quite a venture. There is one in Portland on Grand avenue and it has grown so that it has branches in various part of the city.

Salem Salvation Army day will be celebrated Sunday, November 12. There will be a public reception Saturday the 11th when the public will have the opportunity of meeting Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Scott. Mr. Scott is chief provincial officer of Washington, Idaho and Oregon. Also J. W. Andrews, staff captain of Portland and Nora Hudspeh, superintendent of the Girls Rescued Home of Portland. Sunday morning, the 12th addresses will be made by the Salvation Army officials in the First Congregational church, Baptist church and at the South Salem Friends' church. In the evening the officials will speak at the First Methodist, Presbyterian and Central Congregational churches.

In spite of the storm, about 200 children attended the story hour this morning at the public library. The attendance from the different schools was as follows: From Highland, 2; Lincoln junior high, 3; Englewood, 11; Richmond, 17; Grant junior high, 17; Park, 35; Washington junior high, 37; and 62 from Garfield, besides a number from the Sacred Heart Academy and a few under school age. The entire program was given by the children, one having been appointed from each school. The story tellers were Ruth Griffin of Englewood; Eloise Wright, of Garfield; Alice Roth, of Grant junior high; Edward Lewis, of Washington junior high; Roland Craven, of Richmond, and Iun Riggs, of Highland. The stories for next Saturday morning are about Indians.

When it comes to writing essays on Salem's dress-up week, the girls of the six upper grades of the public schools were more enthusiastic and did better work than the boys. Out of the 1,500 compositions submitted, only one young man wrote interestingly enough to be among the 15 selected by the teachers to submit to the Commercial club judges. This young man was Ben E. Kantelberg of the eighth grade. The writers who deserve honorable mention as their essays were among the 15 sent to the Commercial club are: La Von Coppeck, senior; Ellen Savage, senior; Pansy Fay Willard, junior; Frances Walsh, junior; Ruby Allen, tenth grade; Vera Smith, tenth grade; Alice Glaeser, tenth grade; Kathryn Gibbard, ninth grade; Wilma E. Ingalls, eighth A grade; Josephine Bross, eighth B; Ben E. Kantelberg, eighth grade, and Florence Young, seventh grade.

FOR RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

Editor Capital Journal: Permit me, please, to say a few things in regard to politics as it is administered here in Salem by the "Patriotic" league of Portland. A four-page pamphlet has been distributed among the "fried and true" in this city and from them to the citizens whom they think are not Catholics. This pamphlet endorses four men in our city election and several on the state ballot. Now what I want to say is: The constitution of the United States gives us the untrammeled right to worship God in our own way and under any name, but the "Patriotic" league says if you are a Catholic you are not a good and patriotic citizen, only those who take the secret obligation of this very "Patriotic" league. The writer is not a Catholic, does not believe in many of its activities, but he does believe in religious freedom, and would urge all voters when they go to the polls Monday...

day to vote against every individual who has his name printed on the pamphlet now being distributed. A Portland doctor signs his name to the pamphlet, the matter into politics. So, I say, vote against every man who wants to take away our only true freedom. The four men endorsed by that pamphlet issued by a Portland doctor are: Walter E. Keyes, for mayor; Ben Via, for recorder; J. T. Welsh, for chief of police, and the candidate for alderman in the First ward. Yours for free speech, free press and free religious beliefs, I. V.
