LLOYD GEORGE

members of his party, and their newspapers, as unpatriotic and as giving comfort to the enemy. The rest did their best to hide the truth.

Have Hidden the Truth.
They hide the truth tactics in common of smaller politicians were shown at the time they were endeavoring to cover up their blunders and Sir Edward Carson left the government last year.

If Lloyd-George had resigned with him then, the war would have been greatly advanced. He was prevailed upon to remain but evidently at the end of last week, he found the state of torpidity and self-satisfaction of his colleagues—in the face of his repeated setbacks—impossible to a man of his vision and patriotism. Of those colleagues, writing as I am an article which will appear in some 800 American and Canadian newspapers, I prefer only to say that they were men who wouldn't believe the war was coming when it did, and who hadn't an idea of its tremendous portent for our race.

In my own newspapers I have spoken much more plainly—so plainly indeed, that I find myself occasionally the best abused man in the country.

When last week Lloyd-George decided to smash the party machine wherein he was entangled, he took his courage in both hands. I do not believe he had any personal ambitions in the matter at all.

Events made him prime minister—a position almost as powerful as that of your president. But his desire was that this distinction should be conferred on another. Indeed for some hours, it looked as though it would be the Scotsman, Bonar Law, rather than the Welshman, Lloyd-George.

Have Performed a Miracle.
He went out into the wilderness alone, so far as his own party was concerned. He had as a supporter Bonar Law, who had previously opposed him on practically every phase of politics and an outside helper in Carson, whose Irish policy was diametrically opposite. Those three, with Lord Derby, have produced a miracle whereof all the world is talking. In a few days they have formed a government—marred, it is true, by inclusion of some notable former failures, but enriched by the brains of business men and new politicians.

The greater part of the work was done by Lloyd-George himself. He is constantly referred to here as the "Little Welshman," but he is not at all "little." You probably have his portrait before you. His head is not that of a little man, mentally or physically. It is the head of a man in which the sparkle of genius is combined with Celtic energy, and intense industry.

La Tireless Worker.
During the greater part of the week he has been at the war office until three in the morning, returning to the difficult task of trying to make a composite national government six hours later.

I do not often see him, but I did just before he made his decision and he then appeared tired looking—older than his 53 years. Within a few hours of his telling Asquith he could no longer remain in his company, he looked 10 years younger.

I have seen him at two other crises of the war—first when he got the shells which the government and the army had forgotten to provide; second, when he nearly—oh, so nearly—accomplished the unification of Ireland.

On each of these occasions, as during the past week, the man revealed himself a human dynamo. Every energy is focused on the immediate task at hand. He combines the persuasiveness of the Irishman with the concentration of the American and the thoroughness of the Englishman.

His critics say he tires too quickly at his task. That I do not believe. He gives every ounce of his attention to achievement of the particular object in hand—then passes on to the next important effort.

Has Abundant Tact.
Some of his habits of concentration are a little trying to his co-workers. When involved in a scheme, he is a bad keeper of appointments and an impossible correspondent. He doesn't seem to have settled hours for his meals. During the past week his diet seemed to consist principally of cigars and tea, but I believe he takes breakfast usually, additions to this meal over-winding one or another.

With the difficult but necessary human units in a proposition which he is dealing he has the unusual gift of genius—that of getting other people to do things. Often they are the right people—but not always.

"Making a government, I suppose is the same the world over, but making a real war government, such as we are making, is not quite so easy a task as handing out places to hungry politicians in peace times.

Lloyd-George tried to the best of his ability to gather around him representatives of all that is best in British life. Distance and circumstances alone prevented inclusion in his cabinet of men like Lord Shaughnessy of Montreal, or W. H. Hughes, prime minister of Australia. He has had to do his picking and choosing with lightning rapidity, because in war time, the value of time is quintupled.

Will Win the War.
The government he has formed will last, but it needs pruning. It contains too many of what are known in the United States as "has-beens." It is cumbered with too many fossil representatives of a past age. None knows exactly how they got there—but I think I know the reason. This quick determined, energetic Welshman is a little too kind hearted.

Nevertheless, he had formed a government which will cause rejoicing throughout the empire, especially among the soldiers facing their third winter in the trenches.

At the beginning of the week, his political opponents didn't seem able to make a government. Now they think his won't last. I hold a different opinion.

I believe he will be the head of the government that wins the war, brings settlement of the Irish question, and maintains the essential factors—good

JUDGE TEAL RESIGNS KIRKPATRICK NAMED

Continued Ill Health Cause of Resignation—Successor Is From Dallas

Governor Withycombe today received and accepted the resignation of John B. Teal, County Judge of Polk county, and appointed as his successor E. C. Kirkpatrick of Dallas. The new appointment becomes effective as of noon today.

Mr. Teal's resignation comes as a result of continued ill-health. He has held office for four years, his term expiring January 1919. Mr. Kirkpatrick is son of Dr. J. E. Kirkpatrick of Lebanon. He has been a resident of Dallas for about thirty years, is a successful business man, and is at present mayor of Dallas.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was nominated by President Taft as United States marshal for Oregon, but a democratic senate refused to confirm the nomination.

"Spooks" at the Grand This Sunday Night

Materialization of the spirits that inhabit the world just beyond the senses is what Dr. Eddy proposes to make the main portion of his psychic demonstration this Sunday night at the Grand. It is said Dr. Eddy has accomplished much in the occult world that is unbelievable to him who has not seen his demonstrations. It is said he has been mentioned in connection with the chair of experimental spiritism that is to be established at the Smithsonian Institute at Washington.

Instead of calling for the dim cabinet and shaded lamp, Dr. Eddy is said to give his experiments in the full glare of the lights and in front of the committee. Besides the psychic demonstrations that Dr. Eddy makes manifest, it is said he brings the spirit land before the spectators so that those who came to doubt go away convinced that there is more in the psychic world than would appear possible to the man who does not look below the surface.

Among the many manifestations promised will include slate writing, materialization and de-materialization, floating tables and chairs, and similar phenomena.

will between the people of the English speaking nations of the British empire and the people of the United States.

CHEESE FACTORY PROGRESSES

Evergreen Cooperative cheese factory expects to be in running order by March 1, 1917. Contractors Dahl and Son, in spite of the heavy rains and wind storms, have been keeping their men constantly at work.

The factory is to have steam power and heat. The main floor is to be 25 by 64 feet. There will be three other rooms, store supply and work rooms, in the main floor, which will be expected to handle from 4,000 to 5,000 pounds of milk each day. If for any reason it would be desirable to have a creamery instead of the cheese factory, the machinery which is being shipped from Portland is so arranged that it may be used equally well for that purpose.

To be sure that all the whey comes to a valuable use, the company has arranged to feed a number of pigs on this product.

L. B. Haberly is president. The factory is located near the S. V. Kaser farm—Silverton Appeal.

University Notes

"Social Service of the Church" will be the theme of Dr. C. G. Doney's address next Sunday evening, December 10, at Jason Lee Methodist church. His topic deals with the matter of making the church of greater practical helpfulness to all classes of people. Dr. Doney's address is to be given under the auspices of the Jason Lee Service Circle, an organization just formed "for the purposes of promoting the practice during the week of principles preached and taught on Sunday."

No further free public lectures of the Willamette faculty members will occur until January 22. At that time Dr. John O. Hall, professor of social sciences, will lecture on the sociological topic, "Remedies Against Poverty."

To fill the vacancy recently made by the resignation of Mrs. U. G. Shipley and Miss Mary Reynolds from the Y. W. C. A. advisory board, Mrs. R. L. Mathews and Mrs. F. H. Thompson were recently elected to the position. Although welcoming new members, the university women greatly regret the absence of two such firm friends of their organization.

According to the last issue of the Willamette Collegian a club has been formed among red headed students at Oberlin college to be designated as the Order of the Golden Fleece. Some agitators in favor of such an organization in Willamette have been heard, but as yet no definite plans have been launched to sponsor it.

Inasmuch as such favorable reports are being heralded from the music hall when the ladies' club members rehearse, Director F. W. Chase has decided to hold the initial concert of that club early in February. This marks a new era in the history of this musical organization inasmuch as the annual concert is rarely held before the latter part of April or early in May. Dr. Chase has been quoted as saying that "the ladies' club this year is the strongest Willamette has had in many years." Such assurance is a brilliant concert for all lovers of good music at an early date.

The repertory will be new in the way of chorus numbers and obligato work and possibly will include selections on the pipe organ by Dr. Chase and other students of the conservatory. In addition to violin and piano selections it is highly probable that some talented outside singers will be obtained especially for that concert.

The personnel of the club as selected by competitive tryouts is: First soprano, Ruth Spoor, Carrie Cooksey, Lola Cooley, Lela MacCaddam, Grace Sherwood, Alberta Goulder, Margaret Wible; second soprano, Ruth Winters, Glenn Teeters, Louise Benson, Lucile McCully, Violet Maclean; first alto, Carolyn Sterling, Maude Maclean, Venita McKinney, Velma Baker; second alto Beatrice Dunnett, Ruth Hodge, Pauline Liskin, Freda Campbell.

Of much benefit and delight have been the regular morning chapel hour services of the past week for a generous amount of inspirational worth has marked the brief morning intermission. On Monday Miss Lela MacCaddam sang Taschenmacher's delightful lyric, "Butterfly Time." Dr. Doney gave several helpful talks and Mrs. Charles Parks of the city Y. M. C. A., spoke most charmingly with a message of hearty Christmas cheer.

Owing to the complete absence of the little green caps, university freshmen are not as conspicuous by their presence in the Capital City these days. The enactment of the rule is suspended by student body action until Washington's birthday on which date they must again be donned and worn until Mayday.

SMALL CHILD DIES

Monday morning at ten o'clock the remains of the 14 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wallace was laid away at the Hubbard cemetery. The service was conducted by Rev. F. C. Butler.—Hubbard Enterprise.

Tom Kay Metamorphoses Into Comedian in "The Dictator"

There have been a few notable instances in this country where prominent actors have turned politicians and made good at it. Perhaps the best known and most recent cast of this kind is that of Julius Kahn, United States congressman from California, who before entering the political game was an actor, and a passably good one. But as far as anyone knows at least up until a month ago—no prominent politician in this country has ever turned actor.

Now, however, the miracle has come to pass, and to the Honorable Tom Kay, treasurer of the state of Oregon, belongs the unique distinction of being the first big government official to blossom forth as a full fledged theatricalian.

What is this all about? Listen! Tom Kay is one of the bright particular stars who will shine in Richard Harding Davis' internationally famous comedy success "The Dictator," which the Cherrians will stage at the Grand theater on the evenings of December 14 and 15, with an all-star cast of Cherrian actors. The Honorable Mr. Kay plays the part of Corporal Manuel, the revolutionary hero of the Central American republic of San Manana, where the action of the play takes place, and where revolutions are the principal business of the government.

Kay Knows How
Mr. Kay was wished into the all-star cast of "The Dictator" by the late King Bing Deckerbach, who is the manager of the show, and who, after carefully examining the part of Corporal Manuel, declared that the versatile state treasurer was the only man in town who could play it. Corporal Manuel is a politician of the first water. He changes his politics every time a revolution occurs, which in San Manana is about once a month. King Bing said that although in real life Mr. Kay did not actually do this, yet he had enough experience in politics to know exactly how it should be done.

In the play Corporal Manuel is also an expert poker player, and the king, who, by the way, is not exactly an amateur at the great American pastime, gave it as his expert opinion that no one on the Cherrian roster was so well qualified to "put over" the big poker scene in the third act as the amiable Mr. Kay.

The late King Bing's estimate of Mr. Kay's ability as a player actor has turned out to be absolutely correct. At the close of the first rehearsal, a month ago, James Mott, under whose expert direction "The Dictator" is being staged, solemnly declared that Tom Kay was the worst actor in the world. Since that time, however, all has changed. It did not take the Honorable Tom long to grasp the real significance of the part, and when he did grasp it, he threw into it his whole heart and soul. The hidden spark of dramatic genius which has remained so long hidden in the breast of Mr. Kay and which no one except Frank Deckerbach ever suspected suddenly burst forth and startled the cast of "The Dictator" into a realization of what acting really was. Mr. Mott now ranks him in the same class with George C. L. Snyder, Mrs. W. Carlton Smith, Larry Hofer, Miss Alice Thompson, Charlie Dick, Miss Marjory Marvin, Art Wilson, Carl Gabrielson,

HON. TOM KAY
Who will play Corporal Manuel in "The Dictator," Dec. 14-15

"Bill" Lerehen and the dozen or so others who make up the all-star cast of "The Dictator."

Money Goes for Christmas
If space permitted we should be glad indeed to reproduce here the great poker scene, in which Mr. Kay scores one of the big hits of the play. We should be glad to tell you about his famous entrance in the third act, where Juanita, the widow from Panama (Mrs. Carlton Smith) affectionately leads him into the United States consulate—by the car. But space does not permit, and we can only say to you—don't miss seeing Tom Kay in "The Dictator." If you do you will be sore on yourself for the rest of your life.

The proceeds from "The Dictator" will be used by the Cherrians to equip their famous annual Christmas tree in the court house yard. There on Christmas eve the Cherrians intend to give to every poor child in Salem a substantial Christmas present. A hundred or so little kiddies in this town are depending on the great Cherrian Santa Claus to give them the only present they will get this year. Kick in, comrades, kick in with the price of a ticket to "The Dictator." The best seats will cost you only four bits, or six bits, depending on where you want to sit. You will have the time of your life, and you will thank the Cherrians for "The Dictator" all the rest of your days.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamberg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a tea-cup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a bold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.
