

DENTISTRY FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Your time is money. We know that. Incidentally, our time is money. It's fifty-fifty. If we can save you time, we can save ourselves time--and we're out to economize the little golden minutes, because they are mutually profitable.

Did you ever check up on the amount of time you have wasted in a dental chair? Isn't that one of the big reasons why you duck going to a tooth-plugger, because you just can't spare the hours and hours that you have learned from past experience you will spend receiving cotton and conversation?

A busy man or woman, with lots of cares, thinks a good many times before he or she yields to grim necessity and steps up to the fang-fixer's. Too often, the visit comes too late--and there is a much longer stay with Mr. Dentist than there would have been any need for, had there been an earlier call with the "S. O. S."

The average person, occupied with the daily routine of making a living, must hail with genuine joy any tooth-expert who not only knows how to do but guarantees a speedy job of dentistry.

New patrons of Painless Parker offices usually remark with astonishment at the rapidity with which dental operations are performed by the specialists in these offices. No lengthy waiting-room delays; no fiddling around with prolonged examinations; no dilly-dally over preparations for the work; no cheap artifices to extend the job into a real "operation" or an expensive "call." Best of all, no charge made to hear the monologue of a professional chatterbox. You get the work done just as expeditiously as is consistent with good dentistry.

The reason why this is done in all the Painless Parker offices are that we don't have to "string" our patrons along; we have too many patients to waste either our own or their time; we have practitioners who are skilled in their own special lines and know how to work swiftly and surely--and we don't care to substitute dilatoriness for dentistry.

refugee ships, at her berth by opening the hatches when deputy United States marshals rushed aboard and put the Germans under arrest. It was declared that the work of disabling the Teuton craft began January 31 and had been in progress four days before the United States officials received orders from Washington permitting them to take the crews off. For several days prior to this action, it had been widely reported that all the ships had fires in their boilers.

When the vessels were boarded, however, it was found that the fires had been built under the empty boilers, thus ruining them beyond repair. Immediately after the discovery of the fire on the Geier Sunday morning orders were sent to every fort on the island of Oahu to rush reinforcements to the waterfront. A good deal of excitement prevailed when several companies of troops hurried into the city from Fort Shafter.

The first infantry, by forced marching, covered the distance from Fort Schofield, 30 miles, before evening. Before the troops arrived the United States naval tug Navajo hurried over to the Geier prepared to attach a line and tow her into midstream. It was then boatswain Percy of the Navajo brought his vessel up that German Consul Rodick shouted a warning against any attempt to board the Geier. Percy drew away.

Meanwhile military authorities had seized all telephones along the waterfront and had stationed guards on the wharves, who forbade civilians to approach. But the excitement quickly subsided when, after an hour's parley with Commander Hart of the United States submarine flotilla, Captain Grashof of the Geier, and his men, left their ship.

CLAIMED THERE IS JOKER IN PAROLE OFFICE BILL

There was but one measure before the senate this morning that caused any debate, it being H. B. No. 200, creating the office, defining the duties and providing compensation of the parole officer. It had been passed by the senate and returned to the house and it was a motion to recall it for amendment, made by Garland, that tapped the condensed air tank and set the wind sizzling. The salary is $125 a month, and it was understood that as the bill passed giving the parole officer the right to a hearing at the prison it would cause no additional expense. It was claimed that it would cause considerable more to make this arrangement and it was for the purpose of cutting this expense off that the motion to recall was made. Garland and Orton locked horns, the latter objecting to the recall, and President Moser also objected; but in spite of this powerful aid the motion to recall prevailed. Senator Orton at once left the senate chamber, and some shrewdly surmised he had made a rush for the house in order to get the bill to the governor and his signature attached before the house was notified of the senate's request. This of course was merely surmise, but there are some good guessers in the senate chamber.

Before adjourning for noon it was announced by the president that the senate would hold brief exercises in the senate chamber before going in a body to the assembly chamber for the exercises in commemoration of Lincoln's birthday beginning at 1:30.

Two bills were introduced: One, 306, by the committee on alcoholic traffic, providing that persons shall not be deemed accomplices upon trial for violation of the prohibition laws who have sold liquors to persons accused.

The other was bill No. 307, by Eddy, to make Lincoln's birthday a non-judicial day.

Senate joint resolution No. 17, submitting amendment to constitution, so that the legislature could pass laws making the workmen's compensation act compulsory, was passed.

Three bills were passed as follows: S. B. No. 300, by judiciary committee, providing service may be made by publication on attorneys who have fled the state to escape disbarment proceedings, so they can be disbarred in this state.

S. B. No. 222, by Smith of Coos and Curry, amending laws relating to tax estimates.

S. B. No. 202, by Pierce, relative to collection of taxes on personal property. Senate adjourned to 1:20.

Lincoln Anniversary

Exercises in honor of Lincoln's birthday were held this afternoon in the house of representatives and for the afternoon the pompous machinery of government was stilled in tribute to one of America's greatest statesmen, the martyred president whose hand guided the destiny of the republic through the vicissitudes of the Civil war.

The address of the afternoon was given by Wallace McCannat, a justice of the supreme court, who touched on the life of Lincoln. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Colonel Mercer, sergeant-at-arms of senate, who stood a short distance from Lincoln when that memorable production was read for the first time.

The Willamette university glee club sang and was heartily encored. The following men who voted for Lincoln for president were called to the front of the hall:

Colonel Mercer, sergeant-at-arms; F. G. Hoover and L. P. Standish, who cast their ballots on the battlefield before Petersburg, Va.; Senator Alex LaFollette and Geo. T. Litchfield, who cast their ballots in Oregon, and Judge Daniel Webster, who voted in Wisconsin when Lincoln ran for president.

The program was under the supervision of the newspaper men. The gallery was crowded with visitors who came to help honor Lincoln.

THE PEACEFUL MESSAGE

Hark! Hark! listen to the music can't you hear it ringing in your ears, Ah, I wonder who is playing, for 'tis the master piece of years; Listen, now it comes more distinctly, as he strikes a higher note, Oh, it is that peaceful message that the greatest President wrote.

Can't you hear it my dear friend, can't you hear it ringing in your ears, As it spreads across the waters, entering in homes of sorrow and fear; Come, let's enter and see who is playing, and get a look at his smiling face, Throw open the doors of sorrow and let's enter, for 'tis a peaceful place.

Oh, 'tis him, the President playing, see the smile upon his face, Around him is a wreath of sorrow, but he is praying let us have peace; Let's walk slowly down the aisle, and up to the altar where the player sits, Now, he is singing can't you hear him, singing the great hymn of peace.

Singing to our happy children, and to our loved ones here at home, Oh, I know it is creeping across the waters and stealing silently upon the throne;

Oh let us pray his peaceful message will be answered with peace and joy, We know that God is with him and the answer will be peace as the nation weeps with joy.

And as I turned and slowly up the aisle went, and then, An angel appeared in the doorway saying: "Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Men"

Then it vanished and back into the

GERMAN AIRCRAFT RECORD

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, Feb. 12.—Official statistics of German flyers and anti-aircraft batteries since the start of the war, issued today, show this record to January 31, 1917:

Hostile machines destroyed, 1,002.

Hostile machines put out of combat, 1,700.

Value of destroyed machines 50,000,000 marks ($11,910,000).

In 1914 and 1915, the statement said, 163 hostile aeroplanes were brought down; in 1916, 754, and in January, 1917, 55.

SEAT SALE OPENS FOR 'THE BIRD OF PARADISE'

Seats go on sale today for Richard Walton Tully's phenomenally successful drama, "The Bird of Paradise," which will be seen at the Grand Opera House Wednesday eve, Feb. 14.

The play has become famous, and playgoers will do well to bear in mind the difficulty many had in securing seats for this popular attraction. The company which Oliver Morosco, the producer is sending here, is unusually strong. Miss Olin Field, Morosco's most promising actress for stardom, has the role of Luana; Arthur Maitland, a popular and handsome leading man, will be seen as Paul Wilson, the American physician, while the balance of the cast are identically the same as last season.

Local playgoers are fully aware of the merits of this attraction, as its previous engagements have attracted capacity houses, and the coming presentation will be greeted accordingly.

Japan Strengthens Navy But Neglects Big Debt

By Ralph H. Turner. (United Press correspondent.)

Kio, Jan. 12.—(By mail.)—Expansion of the Japanese navy today is considered more important by the government than reduction of the country's national debt. This view was expressed here by Kuzuye Shoda, minister of finance.

Shoda's statement came as an explanation and defense of the Toranichi ministry's announcement that beginning with the fiscal year of 1918-19 and continuing until Japan's seven-year naval program is finished, $10,000,000 of the $25,000,000 which the government had set aside for the annual redemption of the national debt will be used in the construction of warships.

Twenty-Five Thousand Seamen Are Wanted

Washington, Feb. 12.—Wanted at once, 25,000 able bodied seamen for the United States navy; also several thousand officers.

The navy department, it was announced today, wants the sailors—and quick—to bring the line of the navy up to the newly authorized strength—85,000 men.

Officers are needed to fill out the ranks of the officers' reserve corps, provided under the national defense act, and which now numbers less than 1,000. Those eligible to membership in the corps are college, or military school graduates; ex-national guardsmen, ex-officers or non-commissioned officers of the regular army—under honorable discharge or in the reserve; active non-commissioned officers of the regular army or mere citizens who have attended a military camp. Such eligibles must pass a military examination.

Want to Hard Surface Salem-Silverton Road

Silverton, Ore., Feb. 12.—At the annual meeting of the Silverton Commercial club held here Friday evening, F. E. Callister, cashier of the Coolidge & McClaine bank, was elected president.

During the ensuing year the Commercial club will work in conjunction with the county court on a proposition to build a hard surface road between here and Salem, to cost approximately $75,000. It is understood that liberal donations have been offered by property owners adjacent to the Silverton-Salem road.

This decision means that the recent restoration of the sinking fund to its former figure of $25,000,000 is to be for one year only and is contradictory to the principle by which the Toranichi ministry increased the fund from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000. The recent peace talk and its demoralization of the Tokio Stock Exchange has just given Japan a taste of what her condition will be after the war. Japan's new naval construction program calls for an appropriation of $130,320,805. It is proposed to build three battleships of the super-dreadnought type, two battle-cruisers and several light cruisers, destroyers, auxiliary vessels and submarines in the seven fiscal years beginning 1917-18. With the conclusion of this program the Japanese naval authorities will have realized their long-cherished ambition of establishing eight battleships and four battle-cruisers as the unit of the nation's fleet. The total appropriation of $130,320,805 will be apportioned as follows: 1917-18 $7,164,694 1918-19 11,500,410 1919-20 20,809,713 1920-21 25,055,713 1921-22 27,570,224 1922-23 12,466,429 1923-24 12,497,153. Announcement of this program, coming on the heels of the bill which will double the fighting capacity of the American fleet, has created great interest here. This interest has been considerably heightened by the contention of a large section of the Japanese press that the naval expansion of the United States is directed at Japan. As for Japan's determination to strengthen her sea power, even if her national debt must suffer, there are arguments aplenty both for those who would justify her move and others who insist it is an aggressive action. Consider Japan's position in the world, say members of the latter class. She is Lord of the Orient. Already equipped with a mighty army and an efficient navy, she enjoys a position of unparalleled security. She is firmly planted in alliance with Great Britain, the strongest sea power, and has joined in a close agreement with her near and powerful land neighbor, Russia. There are many factors in defence of Japan's naval policy. The end of the war will see a readjustment of power all over the world. If the British and German navies come out of the struggle approximately intact Japan will occupy a humble place in the naval hierarchy, made all the more humble by America's great expansion plans. When the facts are kept in mind, say the peace promoters, no one need be alarmed at the sum voted for Japan's naval armaments.
