concert patrons. With all this adulation -enough to turn any young singer's head-Tsianina is said to remain as simple and unaffected as when she first began the study of her chosen art. In Washington, where she sang during the present season, she was tendered a re-ception by the Hon. Cato Sells, com-missioner of Indian affairs, and there received many men high in government official circles, with their wives, among them the social leaders of the capital.

Mr. Sells is naturally very proud of this aristocratic and accomplished Indian girl, who affords a striking example of the posibilities of the Indian for assimilating cultural education. Tsin-nina, by the way, has been invited to participate in the inaugural ceremonies at Washington next March, but, will, unfortunately, be prevented on account of concert bookings previously made of concert bookings previously made for the Pacific coast. In her recital, Tsianina not only singa many charming Indian songs, but explains their ing Indian songs, but explains their legends, tells briefly of the part played by music in the early tribal life of her tells of the part played by music in the early tribal life of her tells of the part played by music in the early tribal life of her tells of the part played by music in the early tribal life of her tells of the part played by music in the early tribal life of her the part of the part of the lonely ones of the herd water and the part of the lonely ones of the herd water and the part of the lonely ones of the herd water are after their dinner experience of Thursday evening, more than "willing" and some talk of a concerted campaign in the nature of a search for eligible "Peggoties." forefathers, and illustrates their intive rattles, etc. She wears idealized In-dian dress, and her smile has been described as "a song itself, wedded to Elysian music."

"You can see from these figures what this inter-county bridge tangle will do for our cannery and the fruit-growers of Polk county," said Mr. Allon. "It will mean a great loss to both; the growers will lose their best market and we cannot run anywhere near to capacity without Polk county fruit. The ferry will help some, but it is doubtful whether the ferry will be able to handle the vast quantities that are usually transported; then too, the charges will materially cut to the charges of contracts on charges until the situation clears up, but they are cquipping to handle from 30 to 40 per to the mayor's committee on food supply of which George W. "On the whole, the Munger, a new variety, seems to be the best type to grow; it is very prolific and less seedy than the old standby, the American. Last year, we paid $80 a ton for these beries."

In order to make their season as long and continuous as possible, Hunt Brothers start with gooseberries, most of which they get from West Salem, Gooseberries are prolific growers and nice to handle, but there is no big market for them, according to Mr. All $16,000, and to harvest the crop $50, market for them according to Mr. All $16,000, and to harvest the crop $50, market for them, according to Mr. All $16,000, and to harvest the crop $50, marking a total of $81,560 which had not reached a productive stage. The increase is figured very conservatively at $50 per acre per year, so that hast year these 1,500 unbearing acres increased in value $80,000. This year's planting has been quite neavy, too, and will add materially to this. It cost $9,600 to cultivate the unbearing land, and allowing $3,200 more for interest on this acreage there was a net increase of $67,200.

The packing plant employed a force of 125 people to pack the prunes, 40 men and 85 women. Their payroll was size to handle, but there is no big market for them according to Mr. All $16,000, and to harvest the crop $50, making a total of $81,560 which went to labor in bandling the prune crop
