

SOCIETY

By ALLEN THOMPSON

Perhaps the largest and gayest of the week's festivities to claim the attention of Salem society is the dinner dance to be given tomorrow evening at the Hotel Marion.

Over 60 of the dance loving contingent are planning to attend the festivity, many prominent folk already having made reservations for parties.

One of the best orchestras in Portland has been engaged for the evening and the affair promises to be one of the gayest dances for which the hotel has been sponsored this season.

A few of those who have engaged tables and will either entertain guests or make up parties are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nash, whose guests will number 15; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Bishop and friends who will number 16; Mr. and Mrs. Mack Hofer and party of 4; and 12 or 14 of the younger contingent who will circle tables in congenial groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Bishop and small son, Master Robert Bishop, left Wednesday for Washington, Wash., the former going on business.

They were joined in Portland by Mr. Bishop's brother, Clarence Bishop, of Pendleton.

For the dinner dance Friday evening at the Hotel Marion Mr. and Mrs. Bishop will have as their guest Percy Young of Albany.

The Salem floral society will meet on Monday evening, March the fifth, at the Commercial club. Arthur L. Peck of the Oregon Agricultural college will come to Salem for the meeting and will deliver an interesting illustrated lecture on plant life.

A short programme of music and brief talks has been arranged by the committee and all interested in "Salem Beautiful" are urged to be present.

Tuesday night Miss Julia Michaels and Robert Radcliffe entertained a group of friends with a line party at the Oregon theatre for Oliver Michaels. Later the merry-makers enjoyed a supper at the Gray-Belle. The table was prettily done in a lavender and white color scheme.

Those making up the party were: the Misses Lucille Dornberger, Julia Michaels, Madge Bailey, Laura McGee, Opal McDaniel, Marguerite Hebet, Helen Brooks and Robert Radcliffe, William Johnson, John Bayne, Clifford Dase, Douglas Walker, Oliver Michaels, Floyd Case, Earl Dano, Fred Shoemaker and Miller Hanson.

Mrs. Henry Albers left Tuesday evening for Medford where she will visit friends and relatives. Mrs. Albers is the mother of Mrs. Emma Hinz.

Flowers and messages of sympathy are cheering Mrs. Frank W. Durbin who is at the Salem hospital where she underwent an operation yesterday morning.

Mrs. William C. Knighton of Portland is the guest of her mother, Mrs. E. K. Waters, and will be here for a day or so.

She was accompanied by Mr. Knighton who has gone south on a business trip.

Mrs. E. A. Bennett was hostess yesterday afternoon when she entertained the members of the women's circle of the Bungalow Christian church in formally at her home on Chemeketa street.

Preceding an enjoyable social afternoon a short business session was held. Later the hostess served a dainty repast.

The members present were Mesdames J. A. Poage, Ada Mills, E. F. Long, Charles Wheeler, J. O'Neil, Marie E. Manchesser, Frank Newton, P. A. Baker, and the Misses Nettie Manchester and Ruby Newton.

Tomorrow afternoon the Woman's Alliance of the Unitarian church will meet at the home of Mrs. Emma Hurst 1491 South Commercial street.

"Our Missions in Africa" will be the interesting subject of discussion at the meeting of the Presbyterian Woman's Missionary society, to be held in the church on Friday (tomorrow) afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All interested are cordially invited.

All Woolen Fabrics To Advance in Price

Buy your woolen suit and your woolen dress now, as if the war continues another year, it will not be a question of price, but of getting wool at any price. This is the advice of a prominent business man of this city who studies pretty closely the general market conditions.

It is also in line with a suggestion made by the Washington Woolen Mills of Frederickburg, Va.

The wool clip of 1916 sold for 60 and 65 cents a pound, scoured. The fleece on the sheep now running around in the wool growing states has been sold for June delivery on a basis of $1 a pound, scoured.

These figures tell the tale. This country uses 600,000,000 pounds of wool each year and the wool clip of the country is 288,000,000. England has an embargo on wool from Australia, Canada and New Zealand. Only Argentine can ship us wool and this country is obliged to go into the market against the necessities of war and bid for every pound it needs, fully half its annual supply.

The business report of the Washington Woolen Mill company also predicts that, even should the war end within a few months, wool will be scarce for more than a year and that the demand for raw wool and cotton will be greater than ever as the twenty million men now in the armies will discard their tattered army garments for civilian clothes.

The factories of all the warring nations of Europe will demand wool and cotton goods when the war closes and they will naturally turn to the United States for the greater part of their supplies.

Hence, whether war ends or not, for the coming year woolen goods will be higher and the same may be said of cotton materials.

Rank Foolishness
You occasionally see it stated that colds do not result from cold weather. That is rank foolishness. Were it true colds would be as prevalent in mid-summer as in mid-winter. The microbe that causes colds flourishes in damp, cold weather. To get rid of a cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is of a medicinal and is highly recommended by people who have used it for many years as a precaution required, and know its real value. Obtainable everywhere.

Bryan Outlines Position Fighting Against War, Will Back Wilson if War Comes

Washington, March 1.—Former Secretary of State Bryan will support the administration in the event of war but until war comes, he will oppose the United States today, he will oppose "with all his resources" any steps that might lead to war. He insisted war should be decided on only by a referendum vote.

Bryan discussed "general principles" freely. He would not, however, "tie himself down" to specific answers to questions. Asked whether he would support the arming of merchantmen under any circumstances, whether he liked the president's last message to congress and whether he wants to see congress stay in Washington, he declined to get down to details.

Bryan left no doubt that he would hold the president to the strict letter of his statement in his message that he was proposing no steps he believed would lead to war.

The former secretary dictated this story. Most of it had to be read back to him. At times he even read periods. When he had finished he dictated this insert:

"If war actually comes, the administration will have no more loyal supporter than I, as long as the war lasts, but until war comes peace will have no more ardent champion."

Must Keep Off Munition Ships.
Bryan wants any action taken by congress to show bluntly that the president is not authorized either to declare war "or begin war," he stated.

His position on trans-Atlantic commerce, he said, is that he wants no passengers on belligerent ships, or on any ships, for that matter, which carry contraband.

Bryan will make his appeal in support of peace, not the pacifists, who, he apparently thought, will support him anyway, but to those who see no other way out of the present situation; the only class to which it is worth while to appeal.

Bryan denied he is here in connection with the emergency peace federation.

"I have no plans," he said. "But I feel it would be wise for those who are opposed to the use of force to express themselves in order that the president might be confirmed in the belief that he expressed in his message when he said:

Quotes the President.
"It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put an armed force anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that the president correctly interprets the hopes of the people. The people desire peace, but we have a war element in this country which is doing all it can to manufacture war sentiment."

Those who "want war," Bryan divided into four classes: the sympathizers with specific belligerents who want the United States to help; those who have a pecuniary interest in war munitions makers and bankers who have loaned money to belligerents; those "who have adopted the European standards of honor which differ radically from our American standard as the duellist code differs from the code of the American citizen, and his fourth class of those who believe war the easiest solution.

Bryan went into details on the questions of neutral rights, questioning about the duty of ocean travelers to think of a nation's welfare before their own rights; to avoid danger and not to force "the farmer's son and the laborer's son," to go to war to protect travelers who do not avoid danger. He opposed flatly traveling of Americans on belligerent ships, despite their right, and discussed at length his statement regarding American ships that "a distinction should be made between American passenger" and ships carrying contraband.

He added:
Must Not Carry Contraband
"Passenger ships ought not, in my judgment, to carry contraband and passengers together especially if the contraband consists of munitions and war materials. I would prefer to see the line drawn against all contraband and clearance papers refused to any American ship carrying contraband with passengers but the line certainly ought to be drawn against carrying munitions with passengers. Life is more important than merchandise and the first duty of those in charge of a passenger ship is to guard the lives of passengers. A ship captain cannot give to his passengers the care and protection to which they are entitled if his thoughts are on a contraband cargo."

Bryan quoted again from the president's address "I am not proposing or considering war or any steps that may lead to it," Bryan's comment was:

"This statement is no plain that no one ought to suppose for an instant that the president desires congress to surrender its exclusive right to decide whether or where it should go to war. I assume there that any authority given to the president will be so worded that the jingoes cannot construe as authority either to declare war or to begin war."

WHAT IS AN INTERNAL BATH?
If you were to ask a dozen people this question probably not one would answer correctly, although half a million Americans are now using it with a marked improvement in health and strength.

The internal bath of today is no more like the old fashioned enema than a vacuum cleaner is like a washbrook. Now, by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade," simple warm water cleanses the lower intestine the entire length, removes all the poisonous waste matter therein and keeps it clean and pure as nature demands it shall be for perfect health.

You will be astonished at your feelings the morning after taking an internal bath by means of the "J. B. L. Cascade." You will feel bright, brisk, confident and as though everything is "working right"—and it is.

It absolutely removes constipation and prevents auto-intoxication. Daniel J. Fry's drug store in Salem, Oregon, will explain it fully to you and on request will give you a free book on the subject by an eminent specialist. Ask or send for this free book today, called "Why man of today is only 50 per cent efficient" while you think of it.

UNCLE OF SALEM MAN LEFT ESTATE

(Capital Journal Special Service)

Brooklyn, N. Y., Mar. 1.—That George R. Harris, uncle of William H. Harris of Salem, left an estate of about $15,000 in personal property when he died intestate at the Methodist Episcopal hospital in New York city, on January 16th, leaving Ella I. Purdy of No. 677 Washington street, Brookline, Mass., William H. Harris of Salem, Or., George D. Harris of Fall River, Mass., who are the children of a deceased brother; Arthur and Francis Harris, children of another deceased brother, whose whereabouts are unknown; Guy Bent, son of a deceased niece of Lowell, Mass., Harriet Dow Harris, whose whereabouts are also unknown, and Ella Harris Pink, of Portland, Or., who are the children of a deceased nephew, as his only surviving heirs, is revealed here today in the surrogate's court by the granting of letters of administration upon his estate to Ella I. Purdy, his Brookline, Mass., niece by Surrogate Herbert T. Ketcham.

Mr. Harris, who lived here at No. 438 Eighth street, was eighty two years old and died of pneumonia as the result of a fall three weeks before his death. He was at one time a partner of E. C. Stedman, the poet and stockbroker, a druggist in San Francisco during the gold craze about sixty years ago, and since had stores in New York city and Jersey City Heights.

Mr. Harris was a native of St. John, N. B., and came to the Pacific coast during the gold craze. He was one of the first load of passengers sent across the Isthmus of Nicaragua on pack mules to make ship connections on the Pacific side. After an adventurous career in the west he returned east and became a druggist in New York, later a stock broker, and still later a druggist in Jersey City.

He left no will.

Stone's amendment asked that the president be requested to inform the senate whether the information in his possession originated from any governments which are at war with Germany. Stone's intent appeared to be to cast doubt on the Zimmerman letter—provided it originated from entente sources.

He suggested the senate ought to go slowly in opening up "diplomatic secrets."

Stone later amended his resolution to include information as to whether the Zimmerman letter "originated with or was derived from" an allied power.

Stone openly hinted that the German plot information, if from the executive offices of this government, was put forth to influence public or official opinion, or both.

"The publication of this letter today was made for some purpose," said Stone. "I do not know with such certainty as to warrant me in stating it as to where the newspapers obtained this document. If it is authentic it is a necessary sequel to the information was not given to the American press by the German government. It must have been given out by some one else."

"Reading the newspaper accounts, the inference is plain that it was obtained from the executive officials of this government. It was published for some purpose, though I will not undertake to say what that purpose was, further than to say it was given publicity to effect public opinion or official opinion, or both, in the United States."

Stone hinted that an allied government must have furnished this government with its information—and added there ought to be no secret, confidential relation of that kind between a belligerent country and this nation.

"I want to know about this before I am swept off my feet, or before others are swept off their feet," he continued.

"I am not for war unless necessary

"Kondon's" Helps to Clear Baby's Head.

Modern mothers don't let their children snifle. They know that a tube of genuine Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly will make the child breathe more comfortably. Since 1889, 20 million intelligent American mothers have used Kondon's for cold-in-head or nasal catarrh. Some druggists offer you complimentary trial cans. All druggists offer 25 cent tubes with the understanding that if the first tube does not do you a dollar's worth of good, you can get your quarter back from Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly, Minneapolis, Minn.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

LODGE DEMANDS

sible agency has been used to excite American public opinion. There may be," Stone said, "something behind this alleged news of which we do not know. It is the wiser course to permit the committee to investigate."

Stone, one of the president's strongest supporters, seemed to take no cognizance of the words which had just fallen from the lips of Senator Swanson, giving official authentication to the conspiracy.

Lodge retorted: "We ought to know the evidence on which we are proceeding. I don't think that there is anything about my inquiry that could be distasteful to the president and we ought to know about it so that we can act together."

Says Senate Patriotic.
Senator Hardwick's objection stood, but when the senator realized this put the matter over until tomorrow, a hasty move was made to have the resolution referred to the foreign committee.

Senator Pomeroy asked that it go there, with a request for immediate action.

Senator Lodge suggested the committee might kill the resolution there, but democrats retorted that there was no inclination to do so.

"It is to be killed it might as well be killed out here in the open," Lodge said.

"I don't know as there will be a tomorrow for this senate," interjected Senator Townsend, Michigan, hinting at filibustering and suggesting that the armed neutrality bill may not be sufficient to cope with the situation.

That makes the whole matter doubtful," he continued.

That is why the sooner we know about this, the sooner we are to act properly."

"I repeat that this senate is ready to act—and act patriotically—upon anything it is asked upon. Therefore we ought not to act without information."

The parliamentary situation became tangled; objections flew for a time to variously worded requests for referring to uphold American rights and honor in every respect.

"I want to know if there is a census bell here whether there is a grave offense or assault upon our integrity, an improper violation or interference with the relations of the United States by the imperial government."

"If it comes, for instance, from London, I want to know it—and that is all," he added, criticizing the fact that the resolution calls upon the president to express an "opinion as to the authenticity of the Zimmerman message."

If the information came to this government from allied sources, Stone suggested that fact would weigh heavily in his course upon it.

Will Report Favorably.
Finally the bill was referred to the foreign relations committee.

After more than an hour's consideration, the senate foreign relations committee this afternoon agreed to report out the Lodge resolution in substantially the form presented by Lodge.

That it would pass the senate appeared certain.

The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations and the senate then took up discussion of the naval bill with constant reference to the international situation. There were hints that the foreign relations committee might kill the Lodge resolution. Chairman Stone insisted that it be referred to his committee and there were indications that he desired to learn the president's mind before taking action.

Democrats resented the insinuation that the inquiry would die in committee.

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, suggested that if the president himself had presented the information of Germany's plotting to the senate, it might have been construed as equivalent to a request for war action by congress. As the information was first published he held that, should the president now officially give the full facts, the action could not be construed as a request for war, unless such a request should be specifically expressed.
