Joe Keller, Oregon state prison parole officer, is scheduled to arrive in this city this evening with three prisoners caught in or near Seattle. The prisoners are: George Kemp, a parole violator, who was caught in Seattle; Jack Clark, an escapee and an habitual prison habitue who made his getaway from the honor gang on January 17; and Fred Weaver, a parole violator.

Home owners, hotel or rooming house keepers and furniture dealers will do well to attend the auction of the McPeck furniture stock, 271 N. Commercial street at 1:30 Saturday. 4-6

If hay and oats and all feed stuffs continue to advance in price as they have lately, a proper subject for school debating societies to discuss will be resolved. That it is cheaper to buy gasoline for a Ford than it is to feed a horse. A commission man says that a fairly respectable hard-working horse can eat $12 worth of provender a month and not half try. Oats are higher than they have been for 25 years and all hays are advancing in price, due largely to the late spring.

The Spa Improvements--Interior Arranged to Meet the Popular Demand

The spacious parlor of The Spa has been improved with six booths on each side, which do not fill the entire space, but leaves a very pretty open parlor at the front and through the center. In the Old English style the booths are in perfect harmony with the surroundings, made of beautiful Oregon Fir with upholstered seats and backs in tapestry. The new tables are of special design with plate glass tops, the pretty grain of the veneered tops showing through the glass. The booths will easily hold eight people, though secluded and retired sufficiently to satisfy the most retiring tete-a-tete. The new installation increases the seating capacity from 90 to 136.

The patrons of this place will be thoroughly delighted with the service afforded through the new equipment, which makes it a most metropolitan and complete candy and confection establishment. The coast cities of the west are replete with attractive confectionaries, but it is doubtful if any of them combine unique simplicity with rare elegance as does The Spa.

There is an air of quiet refinement about The Spa which induces its high class patronage, and the management appreciates its critical demand through which has been brought about this high class establishment.

The new equipment was designed and executed by designers and craftsmen of Salem, a further credit to the talent of this fine city.

Arthur P. Black and John Nash, of the Beuna Vista neighborhood, enlisted in the navy today as apprentice seamen. Ray F. Anderson will go in the navy as apprentice seaman, taking his training at Goat Island. John H. Domogala, age 18, made application for enlistment in the yeoman school. The word "yeoman" means one thing in civil life and something entirely different in the navy. A man who is in charge of stores or does clerical work enlists as yeoman.

Five hundred dollars is a pretty good sized sum to blow on a calf, but the state board of control authorized Superintendent Steiner of the Oregon state hospital to purchase a calf from the colony farm of the Provincial Mental hospital at Essonvale, B. C., for use in promoting better blood among the cattle at the state farm. This calf, as indicated by the price, is highly pedigreed and is expected to bring some high-tone to the Oregon herds.

A young man may be a little shy on his knowledge of Latin and unable to read in that dead language how Gaul was divided into three parts; or he may be a little weak in giving the answer to how much is a times 6 in his algebra. But if he is fairly good bookkeeper, he surely has a fine living offered by the government in the navy yard. What we intended to say was that H. R. Anderson, of Corvallis, enlisted today at the navy recruiting station in Salem and his pay is $71.50 a month and all found, and a chance for much bigger money within a few months. He will go to the Puget Sound navy yard.

Large delegations from Salem, Silverton and other nearby towns were present at the regular annual picnic of the Marion County Veterans' association, which was held at Woodburn yesterday. Business affairs occupied the morning session, when it was ordered that a new constitution be drafted so that the members of the Spanish-American War veterans and the Mexican Border Service veterans could be added to the association. When the association meets in Silverton next August these changes will be acted on. At noon a big dinner was held in the armory and in the afternoon speeches were made by various personages.

The Cherrians have sort of surprise on hand this evening for the ladies at the Masonic temple. Besides the informal dancing and the hot doughnuts and coffee and other good things to eat to be served at 11:30, arrangements have been made for a vaudeville number by real actors, furnished by Manager

Bligh. The Cherrians will talk business at the Commercial club at a real dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock and the remainder of the evening will be spent with their invited friends--which includes wives, daughters and sisters--at the Masonic temple.

The chess tournament at the Commercial club, just to decide who's who in the chess world of Salem, will begin this evening promptly at 8 o'clock. It is probable that 24 of the would-be champion chess players will take part in the tournament. Prizes will be offered for the winning individual and the play will continue on Friday nights of each week until a decision is reached. Isadore Greenbaum is in charge of the tournament and he announces that the public is invited and also the consulting information that no collection will be taken and there will be no admission charge. The games will be played in the social department of the Commercial club.

St. Joseph's Auxiliary to the Willamette Red Cross chapter of Salem will probably be one of the strongest auxiliaries in the northwest, as plans are under way to greatly increase the present membership of 32. The campaign for new members will be in the form of a contest with two teams, Miss Willa Huelstein as captain for one and Miss Helen Savage, the other. At the meeting held last evening at the home of Rev. A. A. Moore, Mrs. J. G. Nadon was elected vice chairman of the auxiliary.

Plans for the comfort station to be built under the sidewalk at the corner of State and High streets, adjoining the court house lawn, drawn by George M. Post, were looked over yesterday by the county commissioners and Judge Bushey and the committee from the city council, F. D. Elliott, C. M. Roberts and Otto Wilson. The details of the arrangement of the station have not been finally arranged but they include an entrance from High street and another on State street. The plans are so drawn that they will not interfere in any way with the beauty of the court house grounds. The station will be artistic as well as built for comfort and on the general lines of those to be built in Portland. It will cost about $3,500 and
