A meeting of the Salem Rifle club has been called by the president of the club, B. W. Macy, for Wednesday evening of next week. There will be a general discussion of things to be done next summer and other important business. This meeting is not only for the club members, but those also who are interested in rifle practice. The Salem Rifle club is the largest of its kind in the state with its 148 members.

While 38 members of the officers reserve corps talked of going to Corvallis tomorrow to be examined by army officers for their fitness to become second lieutenants it is probable that a few will fall by the wayside and decide not to stand for the examination. Personality and the ability to command the respect of brother officers as well as enlisted men will amount to considerable in the examination, besides general educational qualifications.

The Red Cross committee and members are working enthusiastically to increase its membership. They expect to have 2,500 members in Salem and 5,000 in Marion and Polk counties. Auxiliaries are being formed in cities and towns adjacent to Salem. Many church and social organizations will form auxiliaries. Every one should become a member. It imposes no further obligation unless one wishes to add such a good cause--and most people do. Pay your dollar to help the world when suffering or in want. Join.

The Indian school at Chemawa has so far contributed 20 young men to the navy, many of them enlisting as third class firemen, while others go in as apprentice seamen. Yesterday George E. Jackson and Paul Smartlowit enlisted as firemen and are now in Portland. This morning the following students of Chemawa enlisted and will leave Monday morning: Nicholas Orloff, 22; Robert E. Asheus, 22; Martin Colby, 21; John William Beyer, who was born in Alaska; Ivan Anderson, 18; Henry Campbell, 18, known among the boys as Chief Campbell; Earl Nuekolls, 18. These young men all enlisted as apprentice seamen.
