GIRL IS ATTACKED

Links in the chain of evidence against the believed slayers of Ruth Gruger were forged today. The Uniform Fitted Him. A motorcycle uniform found buried with the roped body of the high school girl under the collar of the Cocchi house was tried on the unusually tall form of Victor Blady, a chauffeur, held in connection with the crime. Although he is six feet, five inches tall, the suit fit him perfectly.

Close questioning compelled Blady to admit he lied at the investigation in March in saying he was not in Cocchi's shop the day Ruth Gruger was murdered. Questioned by Assistant Attorney Doering, Blady admitted having been in Cocchi's shop the night of February 13. This is the same night Cocchi is believed to have led the roped body down into the cellar through a trap door he cut in the floor of his shop and to have started digging the girl's grave.

Blady swore he left the shop at 9:30 that night. He admitted three other men were there and gave their names to Doering. Blady is catalogued as one of Cocchi's close friends. He said he drove Cocchi to his home that night when he left at 9:30.

Meantime ghoulish curio hunters slipped into the morgue where Ruth Gruger's body lay and stole a gold watch and five shell hairpins from the little bundle of trinkets placed beside her body on the slab.

At the same time city, state and government officials seized the Italian authorities at Rome and Bologna and brought all possible influence to bear to get Cocchi back here to answer the indictment charging him with the murder of Ruth Gruger.

Close scrutiny of the Cocchi shop revealed what the authorities consider unmistakable evidence that Cocchi and probably two or three accomplices butchered the little school girl.

Removal of a square of galvanized iron from the floor of the shop disclosed a newly cut trap door which it was necessary for the murderer to cut to get the girl's body into the basement without taking it out doors and down the cellar steps. This trap door had been rejoined, the saw marks put and the whole floor freshly white washed and the metal plate laid over it.

The body of Ruth Gruger was buried

BIG DRIVE IS STARTED FOR RED CROSS FUNDS

Ten Teams, Approximately 100 Men Begin Campaign This Morning

Red Cross campaign headquarters was a study in anything but still life this morning when the ten teams gathered together and shot themselves forth for the first days work in the solicitation of Salem's share of the big war fund. Approximately a hundred men were on the job, providing themselves with badges, credential tags, and lists of people on whom they must call. The big drive is on.

The teams rapidly got under way, and by 9:30 headquarters was almost deserted. But the city was full of busy men, who have chucked their own affairs to the winds for the week, and devoted themselves to the patriotic purpose of seeing that Salem responds to the president's great appeal, and to make sure that the capital city of Oregon is not to be numbered among the "slacker cities" of the United States.

Last evening the teams gathered at dinner for final instructions, and were addressed by Judge Lawrence T. Harris and Robert S. Gill. Invitation was given by the Rev. Richard N. Arison, and Miss Margaret Hodge sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning." It was a meeting crowded to the gunwales with enthusiasm and resolution. Team captains responded when called upon, and expressed absolute confidence in the ability of their several aggregations to make good from a to Z.

Tonight a flying squadron leaves from headquarters at six o'clock, to visit various points in the county to spread the message of the Red Cross. Appointments for this service include R. K. Wags to Turner, Walter Denton to Stanton, Frank Davesy to Mill City, John W. Todd to Aurora, Chas. V. Galloway to St. Paul, Rev. H. N. Aldrich to Silverton, Robert S. Gill to Woodburn and August Luckestein to Marion.

Another contingent is spilling in the various theaters each evening this week, consisting of Rev. George Holt, Rev. James Ely, Rev. E. S. Hammond, Ralph D. Moore, R. A. Harris, Rev. James Heady, Rev. F. T. Porter. By courtesy of the management of the picture houses these speakers are given five minutes time.

today "somewhere in the country." Morbid curiosity was given no glimpse of the funeral cortege. Quite alone, the father, mother and sisters of the murdered girl followed her body to the grave.

Evangelist Phil C. Hayward Is Coming to Salem

The coming of Evangelist Phil C. Hayward to Salem for a whirlwind lecture campaign will be an event of more than ordinary interest to those who are interested in Bible study. Recently he has been lecturing in some of the larger cities of the Pacific coast on the prophecies, especially as they relate to the world war and present day events. For 20 years he has been specializing in the prophecies, and is acknowledged to be one of the foremost Bible expositors of the day.

Mr. Hayward will pitch a large canvas pavilion with a seating capacity of about a thousand people, and will bring with him a strong company of earnest personal workers, every one of whom are specialists in their work. The opening lecture will be on Sunday night, June 24, and will be on the lines, "The World War in the Light of Prophecy." Mr. Hayward believes that this present conflict was foreseen by the seers of old, and that it is one of the steps which is leading the nations of the world to the last great battle of Armageddon.

"World Peace" will be the subject for Monday night, and the relation of these events to the second coming of Jesus Christ will be shown. In all of his lectures Mr. Hayward is careful to emphasize his belief in the Bible as the inspired and infallible word of God, and openly declares that no one can discover an error or scientific inaccuracy in it.

During the recent 10 days campmeeting of the Seventh Day Adventists at Portland Mr. Hayward spoke upon some of these same themes to the thousands who thronged the grounds, and his work here is under the auspices of that denomination. He is assisted in his work by Professor G. E. Johnson, of Portland, whose years of experience as educator and music director qualify him to handle the music in such a large campaign as this one is.

The engagement here is an exceedingly limited one, consisting of eight special lectures, and a series of afternoon Bible talks which will be announced later. The lectures are free, and the people of Salem are invited to take advantage of them.

These men will have supervision of the forest fire patrol work to be carried out through the forest area of the state. The patrolmen will be employed chiefly by the Forest Patrol associations, but they will be under the direction of the deputy state fire wardens.

No fires of consequence have been reported this season. The closed season for fires began June 1 and those who want to burn slashings must first obtain a permit. The S. P. & S. today filed with the public service commission a supplemental tariff showing an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates between Astoria and Seaside. It will be considered by the commission at the time of the hearing on the application of other railroads for a general 15 per cent increase in rates on intrastate business.

Governor Withycombe Monday afternoon announced the reappointment of W. D. Whitcomb and W. R. MacKenzie of Portland, as members of the state board of accountancy. Their appointment is for four years from June 3. C. C. Chapman, of Portland, today filed with Secretary of State Olcott a statement showing that the statewide good roads committee spent $5,000 in the recent campaign for the $6,000,000 road bond issue. The money was obtained from 255 contributors, the largest contributor being $1,000 from the Benson hotel, Portland.

The Payette-Oregon Slope Irrigation district has petitioned to have its bonds certified under the provisions of a law passed by the last legislature and Attorney General Brown, State Engineer Lewis and State Superintendent of Banks Sargent, who comprise a commission named for this purpose, will go to eastern Oregon next Monday to investigate the district. One Killed, Several Hurt in St. Louis Fire

St. Louis, Mo., June 19.—Firemen are searching in the wreckage of the Tri-Cities Packing plant this morning for the body of George Reinger, who is believed to have burned to death in a fire which destroyed the plant in East St. Louis early today. Reinger, with several other persons, was asleep in a wing of the frame building when the fire broke out. Two men and two women were seriously injured when they leaped from upper stories. The injured are:

Miss Bell Parsons, age 64, both ankles broken, seriously burned; Mrs. E. T. Toms, age 50, leg broken. Clyde Abernathy, age 29, leg broken. John Schnell, age 27, back and leg broken.

All members of the I Could Have Bought club will do well to note the discovery of six islands in the Arctic ocean by the McMillan party. These could undoubtedly be bought very cheap now, and think what they will be worth when in the inevitable course of ages the polar regions once more come to enjoy a tropical climate!

Owing to the great public interest in Liberty bonds, transactions in bonds of matrimony have not of late been duly noted. What's June for but the bride? Let the lady beneficent be acclaimed.
