About 45 members of the Seaside Relief Corps journeyed out to the home of Mrs. Maggie Cline in West Salem for the afternoon on Thursday.

The afternoon was pleasantly passed sewing for the Red Cross, and Mrs. La Maine Clark favored the guests with several old patriotic songs.

Later a repast was served by Mesdames Rebecca Bales, George P. Frazier, Ida Ross, Mattie White and Sarah Elliott.

Guests of the corps were Mrs. G. McKenzie, Mrs. M. Bennett, Mrs. M. Riser and Miss Francis Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Griffith and daughter, Miss Harriett Griffith, are now in Illinois, having left Salem last week.

Mr. Griffith has large business interests in Illinois and they plan to spend the greater part of the summer there.

"The First Milestone" was the charming title of an equally charming function given at the studio of Miss Minnetta Magers last Wednesday evening when she presented two talented young singers, Miss Jeanna James and Miss Letha Driscoll. Although these young ladies are only first year pupils and high school students, they have been attracting favorable notice in musical circles during the year, appearing in various public and private functions of much importance in the city.

Miss James will be remembered as the charming interpreter of the role of Colum Yam in the "Mikado" last summer under direction of Mr. Wilson of Medford, and Miss Driscoll as the gracious and graceful Joan Dale in Opera Robin Hood, presented for the high school by Miss Magers.

Miss James has a full rich mezzo-soprano voice, and presents in songs in a charming and easy manner. Her first group of songs, "Twilight" (Glean), "Who Knows" (Ball), "The Sweet of the Year" (Willby) showing unusual temperament in one so young, also bringing out the rare quality of her voice. Her second group comprised two child songs, "Things I'll never do" and "My Shadow" (Hadley) and the quaint love song "Nadine" by Carpenter, delighting her audience with her natural manner of interpretation. She resigned with encores for each group.

Miss Driscoll's voice is a contralto of wide range and beautiful quality. She also shows fine temperament and a decided tendency to the dramatic. Her first work being "The Slave Song" by Del Riego, where she had opportunity to show this ability, repeating a part of the song in response to insistent encores. Her two groups of songs were, "A Motril" (Harris), "Wake Up" (Phillips), "Japanese Love Song" (Thomas) and "Carmena" (Wilson) and "The Slave Song" (Del Riego).

Assisting on the program were Miss Evelyn DeLong, pianist, and Miss La Foy Coppock and Miss Lulu Walton in readings.

Miss DeLong, always a favorite, was enthusiastically received by the audience, and much appreciated in the brilliant number "Taratulle" by Sternberg.

The group of child interpretations by Miss Coppock included "Somewhere Did" by Esler and "The Caucers" by Cooke, and were given in a charmingly whimsical manner with the true freshness of voice and responsiveness of childhood.

Miss Walton brought out the quaint humor of the "Down Easter" in the group of Cape Cod ballads by Joe Lincoln, in real characteristic fashion. Her style is rich and original, full of magnetism and charm.

Miss Leona Wiedner was the very artistic accompanist of the evening.

Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Elbert Thompson presented a number of pupils in recital at her home on Salem Heights. The rooms and also the tables which were arranged on the lawn for the refreshments, were beautifully adorned with baskets of roses. About thirty mothers and friends were present.

The following pupils showed unusual musical ability, each giving a selection from the masters, also one from the best of the modern composers: Miss Evelyn Viek, Miss Marjorie Wilson, Miss Leona Hall, Miss Hollis Viek and Miss Crystal Brimhall. They were assisted by Miss Sylvia Thompson and Jean Frances David in vocal numbers and Georgia Wilson and Martha Chase in readings.

Following the programme the guests gathered on the lawn under the wide spreading fir trees for refreshments. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. Harry Rowe and Mrs. Ralph Thompson.

Mrs. William Mae was hostess Thursday afternoon when she entertained the Local Woman's class of the First Christian church at her home on 445 South Capitol street.

The rooms were patriotically decorated in red, white and blue, and the afternoon was made enjoyable by a programme, which preceded the business session.

Numbers in the programme were reading, Miss Thelma Peed, duett, Mrs.

es Leona and Thelma Peed, duett, Mrs. Ruth Swartz and Miss Trista Winger; reading, Mrs. Curtis; reading, Mrs. Watson-Refreshments closed the afternoon.

The assistant hostesses were Mesdames Leo Childs, J. C. Morrison, Ed Townsend, Edward Keen, Thomas Brunk and E. T. Dwyer.
