Costs More for Drugs As Well As For Food

This is a sad story for the good housekeeper. Over the grapevine route comes the news that all drugs are to advance in price and this is to include especially patent medicines. For instance, that good old house standby for that tired feeling, Hostetters bitters, is now to be sold for $1.25 a bottle and Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that has been retailed for $1 a bottle ever since the beginning of time, will now be handed out at $1.50.

Supposed German Spy Getting a Grilling

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 6.—Federal authorities are today putting Max Henry, a German with several aliases, through a severe grilling, following his arrest yesterday afternoon at the city employment bureau, where he was distributing typewritten warnings to workmen to stay away from the United States army post. Search of Henry's room in a hotel on South Ninth street revealed a large trunk and other luggage. The police say he is well supplied with expensive clothing, although poorly clad when arrested.

SEAMEN SUNK SUBMARINE

London, Aug. 17.—(By mail)—Merchant seamen receive prize money for sinking submarines. That some of them have been successful has become known through the fact that the treasury has assessed income tax against the prize money, thereby arousing a storm of protest.

THE PRESIDENT'S IDEA

Washington, Sept. 6.—President Wilson wants congress to go home and talk things over with the people. In a letter to Representative Kahn, California, today, the president expressed the hope that congress would close up its work quickly and go back to learn sentiment from their constituents.

THE PRESIDENT'S IDEA

George A. Egan, Colonel, engineers corps of the war department, writes the Commercial club in regards to the work on Lock No. 1, at Oregon City as follows: "Preparations are now being made to deepen lock No. 1. In order to complete this work during the present low water season, the locks will be closed to traffic for about six weeks, beginning September 19."

The Salem Commercial club recently passed resolutions through action of its directors, urging the government to begin work at once. The Oregon Transportation company, along with a majority of the farmers living along the river between Salem and Oregon City, had signed a petition asking the government not to begin work now, closing the locks just at the time of year when all grain and fruit crops were moving.
