Mrs. Anna Rogers Fish, formerly of Chicago University, now director of the Fish School of Expression, who will read at the new auditorium at the fair grounds Wednesday evening between 7 and 8 with Campbell's band from Portland. She will read, on the Wednesday program, the wonderful poem "The Awakening" by Dean Collins—one of the greatest war poems yet written; also the "Milledgeville Peace Congress," a humorous poem by J. W. Foley. On Friday night she will read a number of war lyrics. "When the flag goes by," "Lest you forget," "A day of swords." Both programs will be intensely inspiring and interesting.

RULER OF BAVARIA MAKES OWN REPLY TO POPE'S OFFER

Dissension is Reported to Exist Between Prussia and South German States

(By J. W. T. Mason.)
(Written for the United Press)

New York, Sept. 25.—Dissension between Prussia and the south German states may have caused the announcement that the king of Bavaria has sent a separate reply to the pope's peace proposal.

The pope made his proposal to Germany through the papal nuncio at Munich, the capital of Bavaria, but this is not a sufficient reason why the Bavarian king should decline to permit the kaiser's answer to represent Bavaria's position as well. The tone of the kaiser's note to the vatican contained elements of ruthlessness and showed an autocratic temper that was not present in the Austrian reply.

This probably was the basis for Bavaria's objection to the kaiser's message. The Bavarian royal house is Catholic, just as is the imperial dynasty of Austria. In answering the pope, therefore, religious factors, no less than a more sympathetic regard for democracy, might cause Bavaria to endorse the Austrian answer rather than the Prussian's. There are indications that this is what has taken place and that Bavaria's communication to the holy father is little more than an echo of the wording of the Hapsburg reply.

Bavaria recently has been credited with foreseeing the fall of Prussia as the leading state in Germany. The king of Bavaria and Count Hertling, the premier, have probably been indirectly working for some time to take advantage of Prussia's ultimate overthrow. The Bavarian monarch has been seeking publicity for himself since the very beginning of the war, while the Bavarian crown prince is the only commander of royal blood who has gained a military reputation from the war. He has far outdone the kaiser's heir as an army leader.

Count Hertling is the ablest statesman in Germany and would now be chancellor of the empire if he were Prussian instead of Bavarian. These three Bavarians make a formidable triumvirate. They are working as strongly for Bavaria as the kaiser is for Prussia. If democracy and peace come to Germany through Bavarian leadership it is not impossible that the German capital will be transferred from Berlin to Munich.

O'CONNELL CASE TO JURY
San Francisco, Sept. 25.—The trial of Daniel O'Connell, charged with conspiring to obstruct the draft act, will go to the jury this afternoon. Arguments are now being presented by the defense.
O'Connell's motion at the conclusion of this morning's testimony that the court instruct a verdict of not guilty was denied by Judge Van Fleet.

More Alleged Draft Slackers Are Arrested

Butte, Mont., Sept. 26.—Two more alleged draft slackers were arrested early today as the police and county authorities continue their roundup of men who failed to report for service. A number of men who left the city are being watched and arrests in the towns outside of Butte are expected at any time. In the meantime prosecution of those arrested continues.

Following the taking of evidence and the presentation of arguments, Federal Judge George M. Bourquin at Helena today took under advisement the petitions for a writ of habeas corpus of John Beck, who claims that the federal court lacks jurisdiction in his case. He is charged with being a slacker. The case is considered important because it will determine which court has proper jurisdiction. Some times had people do good things to good people 'just to spite 'em.' Germany is above that politics, however.

To Take Over Roads.

There was no change in the strike situation early today. The government has summoned the entire standing army in all barracks preparatory to taking over the railroads, now completely halted by the strike. A nationwide declaration of martial law was momentarily expected. Pending this drastic step, the government's efforts are being centered on arbitration. The chamber of deputies voted for compulsory government mediation of the dispute. Employers in the industries paralyzed by the strikes have announced their acceptance of such arbitration, but the strikers themselves are still standing aloof from it and this despite the fact that the federation of labor has approved it.

In Rosario the strike has already become general, including, in addition to railroad employes, the butchers, bakers and others. Packing house employes and stevedores are on the verge of joining. Several clashes of strikers with troops were reported last night. There were some casualties. Shortage in many foods was reported here today. Prices have soared. Telegraphic communication has again been restored after wires cut by the strikers had been spliced.

Wm. Hart In His Greatest Picture Now Showing at Liberty Theatre

The greatest picture that the famous "Buffalo Bill" of the silent drama has ever appeared in was the "Gold Digger" that was shown at the Liberty theatre last evening. The action of "The Gold Digger" is laid in "Hellangone" a western mining camp in the early days, where the cards were stacked to meet a man's gameness, and a fortune made or lost in the turn of a card. The story concerns "On the Level" Leigh, a man's man, straight shooting, hard hitting, and Corralie, whom men loved to their utmost harm. Fair-haired Mildred Harris is cast as Hart's sister and dark eyed Sylvia Bremer as the girl he loved. This picture has a great many thrilling scenes in it, the like of which has never been seen or attempted before by the big rough gun-man or any other movie actor. Tonight and tomorrow matinee and evening will be the last times that this picture will be shown in Salem, and it is advised by the writer, that anyone wishing to see it, should go early, as it was almost impossible to handle the crowds that tried to gain admission to this popular playhouse all day yesterday.

German Money Backs Mexico City Newspaper

Mexico City, Sept. 26.—Charges that the pro-German newspaper El Democrita is run off presses and machinery owned by the Mexican government was made in newspapers yesterday—El Universal and Cuervo Poder. El Universal printed a letter from Rafael Zubaran certifying that the government paid through him 20 per cent of the amount due the National Type and Paper company for the Democrita. The machinery, the newspapers yesterday, was bought by the Madero government and used in publishing several papers throughout the republic during the revolution. Both the newspapers complained that by its pro-German course, El Democrita is abusing the government's strict neutrality.

Daughter of German Officer Weds Former American Consul Roth

New York, Sept. 26.—With death near, A. Curtis Roth, former American vice consul at Plauen, Saxony, is married today to Miss Maria Dora Baumann daughter of a German army officer. The wedding resulted from a war romance. At his post in Germany, while caring for refugees, Roth met Miss Baumann. A little later when, by exposing himself to dangers while engaged in relief work, Roth contracted a disease which physicians say will inevitably result in his death. He came back to America. Miss Baumann, despite her sympathy for her native Germany, followed him here and while the United States was rushing its war preparations she remained to nurse the man so hopelessly ill. By marrying him she became an American, but despite this, when the end comes, she will return to Germany. (Former Consul Roth recently wrote a series of interesting articles in the German internal situation which was published in the Saturday Evening Post.)
