When the governor proclaims a holiday or even a half holiday, that makes it a non-judicial day and also a day to be observed by the postoffice. Hence tomorrow being 'Liberty Day' according to the proclamation of the governor there will be only one city delivery of mail and that will be in the morning. The postoffice will close at 12 o'clock. The rural delivery carriers will make their trips as usual.

Frank Cropp eloped from the state hospital for the insane yesterday afternoon. He was sent from Multnomah county in 1906 and while very much insane is not regarded as dangerous. He eloped while working with a gang in the field near the hospital. He is about 45 years old, 5 feet seven or eight inches tall and is smooth shaven. The authorities got track of him at the depot and believe he has gone south, though nothing has been heard of him since he was seen at the depot.

The work of grading Washington street is completed and yesterday the cement crew began work at the alley between Commercial and Saginaw and will have the street paved probably across the intersection on the latter street by night. The pavement from Fis to Commercial will, weather permitting be laid by the end of the week. As the paving up the hill is cement it will be some time before it is open for traffic, especially to vehicles other than those with rubber tires.

Malcolm Gilbert, member of Company M delivered an address this morning before the high school students on food conservation. Several of the boys who were former members of the Salem high, but now are soldiers, attended in uniform. There is a general feeling among the boys that instead of being sent to Camp Greene, they will be stationed for a time at one of the central states' camps. Of course this is just a 'feeling' as no one knows where they will go from here.

The October monthly meeting of the Salem Commercial club was postponed on account of the food drive and the Liberty loan campaign. The next regular meeting will be on Wednesday, November 21.

The Congregational pipe organ has now been installed and plans are now under way for the giving of an organ recital on the evening of Tuesday, October 30. Dr. Frank Wilbur Chace, of Willamette University has been engaged to give the recital.

William Gahldorf today turned into the treasury of Willamette chapter the sum of $105.72 as the net proceeds of feeding the first troop train that passed through Salem and stopped for dinner, even if it was about 3:15 p. m. before they arrived.

Elpidio Gaona, a student of the Salem high school had the misfortune to run into a street car last Saturday while riding his bicycle. He suffered a broken arm and bruised head, but was able today to show up for study hours. He is from the Philippine islands.

Among Y. M. C. A. workers, and others too, it is well known that the general manager, O. R. Gingrich, is pretty handy with his voice. However, the night air settled on his vocal chords recently and now at the noon day meetings, his once powerful voice is reduced to the murmur of a whisper. But this does not in any way interfere with the campaign for raising the money needed by the Y. M. C. A. the coming year. Everything is progressing nicely.

Parent Teachers association of the Highland District will meet Wednesday evening at 7:30. Special meeting all are urged to be present.

A well improved farm of 106 acres located 12 miles south of the city has been purchased by Margaret Arehart. The grantor was John F. Steiwer and the consideration $10,000. The transfer was handled by W. H. Grabenhorst & Co. Mrs. Arehart formerly lived near Independence, but will make her home on her recent purchase.

Mr. S. Watanabe, living at 434 North Commercial street, is lining up with the patriotic people as today he purchased a $50 bond. It doesn't take a Sherlock Holmes to figure out that Mr. Watanabe is pure Japanese, nor the fact that he is doing a lot more for this country than many who have failed so far to invest in at least one bond.

No business will be transacted at the state house or court house tomorrow after 12 o'clock. The Supreme court is of the opinion that when the governor proclaims a holiday or a half holiday for the time covered in the proclamation, there is a non-judicial day. Hence, lest there might be some doubt as to the legality of transactions Wednesday afternoon, there will be no official business done after the noon hour as it is 'Liberty Day.'

Business is picking up at the navy recruiting station at the postoffice. Recruits today are as follows: Oran H. Hogan of 745 Ferry street, Salem goes in as apprentice seaman and has been sent to the training station at San Francisco. Everett L. Zink of Ione, Ore. and Harold C. Brewster of Lyons, Ore. are enlisted as apprentice seamen. They will be placed on the pay roll at $32.50 a month, all found. According to J. E. Adams, navy recruiting officer, men enlisting as apprentice seamen can complete their training in two months and then be promoted to seaman with a pay roll of $35.90. After three months from the date of enlistment, young men are generally promoted to seaman of the first class with pay of $38.40.

It may perhaps be a course of satisfaction to those interested in Red Cross work to know that the present membership of Willamette chapter of Salem, American Red Cross, is 7080 and all this large membership comes from only two counties, Marion and Polk. Portland chapter with its five counties and the city of Portland has only something over thirteen thousand members.

Street Commissioner Walter S. Low is busy now-a-days investigating sidewalks that are in need of repair. Owners are being notified where sidewalks are in bad condition to repair or build new ones. If the owner gives no heed to the notice, the city may construct the sidewalk and charge the expense thereof against the property. This will act as a lien against the property and this lien may be sold as a certificate of delinquency. To avoid this delinquency sale, the city must be reimbursed within six months.
