L. S. Christopherson, who lives near Chemawa, reports the loss of his machine, a Ford some time last night. While it is barely possible that boys who could not wait for Hallowe'en to arrive took the machine, but if so a diligent search has failed to locate its hiding place. Mr. Christopherson is of the opinion the machine is stolen. Its license number is 11,618 and it has new "obby" tires on the rear wheels. There is a dent in the back of the bed of the machine.

Tonight is Hallowe'en night. A generation ago it was a great thing for the rambunctious young man to carry off the front gate. But now that front gates have mostly gone out of style, and the porch swing with it, there will be fewer missing articles on the morning after.

Dance at Cottillon hall tonight.

Instead of that old cant about the grocers robbing the public, the chances are that when the food commission sets a price on many staple articles, the shoe will be on the other foot and the public will be robbing the grocer. It's a fact that Salem grocers are not getting any too much profit on most of the staple articles sold, and with the government coming in with an established price, the housekeeper needn't worry about how much money the grocer is making.

Although the season is nearing its end the Hunt Bros. & Co., cannery is still a busy place. At present the run is on apples and a force of about 100 is kept at work on these. The apples are received from all sections of the valley, and about a carload comes daily from Medford. Besides shipments received by railroad there is a stream of teams unloading most of the day. The warehouse is packed full of fruit and so is every available bit of space about the cannery, and from the way the apples keep coming it looks as though the season might last for some time yet.

This is a day of campaigns. That of the Y. M. C. A. for the sum of $4,000 is just drawing to a close and on October 11, under the same workers, there will be a week's drive for the $15,000 for the army war work council of the Y. M. C. A. This council will endeavor to raise for army war work $15,000,000, and the quota of Marion county is $15,000. In the boy's work in this campaign this district will be asked to subscribe $2200. The Salem high school will be assessed $1 for each student, making its quota about $520.

The first ordnance class, now undergoing training and instruction will spend a week in actual work in Portland doing real work in the larger warehouses and store rooms, after which they will be turned over to the government for service. Information at hand seems to indicate that the class will be mustered November 10 and ordered to report to the United States arsenal at San Antonio, Texas. Salem has three men in this class—Karl E. Hinges, Kenneth A. Moore and A. J. Reinhart. In the class are 12 men from Portland, six from Eugene, two from Creswell, three from Newberg, two from Oregon City one from Albany.

Efforts are being made to organize a home guard. Some time last summer there was a call for such an organization but it was found that guns were not to be had. Today A. A. Hall, commander of Tia Juana camp, went to Portland to interview the adjutant general as to the chances of getting some of the old Springfield rifles for the use of the Home Guards. It is understood that each state is entitled to a certain number of rifles, and if this is the case, Salem would like to secure enough to organize. A meeting will be called the latter part of this week to hear a report from Mr. Hall.

The sum of $450 more is needed to close the annual campaign of the Y. M. C. A. for funds necessary for the work of the coming year. While the association has considerable of an income, each year it is necessary to raise by donations about $4,000 to maintain the work. Those on the committees of workers are being urged to put in some good efforts today and Thursday in order that by the luncheon to be given Friday noon, reports will show that the $450 has been raised. There are so many other things to claim the attention of the workers of the Y. M. C. A. that it is hoped the campaign will be closed Friday.

The good housekeepers need not as yet be alarmed about the supply of sugar and she need be in no hurry about laying in a supply for fear she will not get her share. While in some cities the purchase limit has been placed at $1, there is no limit in Salem. Grocers have not as yet been informed as to the various foods that will come under the care of the food conservation administration, but the probabilities they will soon be called on to report stocks on hand and amounts distributed. The object of the government seems to be to prevent hoarding of food stuffs, not only by the commission houses, wholesalers, but also by the government housekeepers. Also to prevent speculation in foods.

During the Y. M. C. A. drive for the war work fund, Dr. H. C. Epley will be in charge of a body of musicians who will be known as the Musicians' Flying Squadron. They will make visits

Patient Escaped From State Hospital Yesterday

William H. Christie eloped from the state hospital for the insane yesterday evening. He was employed with the working gang and was dressed in rough working clothes. He is about five feet eleven inches tall, medium build, gray eyes and about 45 years old. He is not dangerous and will probably make his way south as he came to the institution from the southern part of the state. He is possessed of the pleasing hallucination that he is John D. Rockefeller and in addition that he owns the Southern Pacific railroad, even though the ownership of that road only suggests incompetency rather than insanity. Despite his aggregate wealth William will probably be found walking, for it is a sure thing the conductors of the S. P. trains will not recognize in him the supreme boss of the road.

J. W. Sherwood, state commander of the Macabees and Ned Mungler, grand record keeper of the sick and accident department, both of Portland, will attend the meeting of the Macabees this evening and deliver addresses.

While all of the carriers of the Salem postoffice did some work in the selling of 2nd Liberty bonds, the premium workers were J. W. Bolin and L. D. Waring. These two men made a special effort, resulting in Mr. Bolin bringing in subscriptions to the amount of $7350 and Mr. Waring who went after the hesitating ones, the sum of $3800.

Justice Webster is holding the scales of justice with balances even in a suit in which W. M. Grant is plaintiff and C. S. Thomas defendant. The action is one of forcible detainer, and is brought to recover possession of 426 acres of land west of Rosedale, which plaintiff alleges defendant wrongfully occupies.

The Oregon Board of Pharmacy, of which Frank S. Ward, is secretary, at the October examinations just completed passed 11 candidates out of the 17 examined. Six young men were also granted papers by reciprocity as they had been registered in states of equal standing with Oregon. Those who successfully passed the examination were: J. L. Foreman, Charles H. Wood, Lowell B. Smith, Austin Stayner, Harold Albers and W. A. Black, all of Portland; J. Clifford Jeffcott of The Dalles; T. E. McGraw, Jr., of Gambleville, Idaho; Johan Holderson of Gresham; William Wood of Klamath Falls and Winnifred Brown of Falls City.

Since January 1, 1917, the local army recruiting office has enlisted 230 men. These enlistments have come mostly from Marion county, although the records show young men coming from Polk, Linn and Benton counties. Recruiting was rather slow until the declaration of war April 6. By months, the enlistments were as follows: January, 4; February, 7; March, 9; April, 51; May, 39; June, 29; July, 21; August, 27; September, 19; October, 24. All recruits received after June 30 of this year will be credited on the second draft, the number enlisting from each county being deducted from the quota of that county. Since June 30, the enlistments have numbered 91. While the young men are from Marion, Polk, Linn and Benton counties, three fourths of the number are credited from Marion county. When a young man enlists, the county from which he enlists is given credit.

Sen. McNary Addressed Six o'clock Club Last Night; Other Speeches Were Made Before speaking of the great problems of the day, in his address last evening before the Six o'clock club of the First Methodist church, Senator McNary called attention to the fact that Salem, Oregon, and the city of Washington were laid out on very much the same plan. The only difference being that the civic center of Washington was about two miles long. Then when the Salem folks could look across the river and see the beautiful Waldo hills, the people of Washington has about the same view in looking across the Potomac to the low lying hills of the Blue Ridge mountains. Hence, Washington in one respect had nothing on Salem. He predicted that Salem would be the city beautiful of the northwest and the one hundred men in attendance heartily agreed with the senator.

Prices Are Depressed On Stock Market New York, Oct. 31.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said: The nervous hang-over resulting from the sudden and effective German onslaught against the Italian front and the relatively poor showing by the quarterly returns of the United States Steel Corp. has combined today further to depress prices in the stock market. Selling of steel stocks, with the shipping running a close second, imparted a similar movement to the rest of the list scarcely without exception.

Among the rails, liquidation was accelerated by the menace of a country-wide strike of switchmen contingent on their demand for a wage advance of fifty per cent being granted within 30 days. In the last hour a rally of good proportions set in, in the course of which many of the earlier losses were recovered and in some cases substantial gains made on the day.

The Daughters of the American Revolution gave 25 books yesterday to the Salem public library to be forwarded to the soldiers' library at American lake. As many of the books were adapted to those who are studying, the books were forwarded direct instead of being sent first to Portland. "Salem people have been generous in giving books to the soldiers," said Miss Flora Case, librarian. "We have received and forwarded a total of 848 books and 691 magazines. The books were all of standard grade and just what the boys have been calling for." Those who have books may send them to the city library as this work of collecting will continue. Each person is permitted to write the name of the donor and some message in every book given.
