Thanksgiving Day Thoughts

Contributed by distinguished Britishers and Frenchmen in response to the United Press query: "What has the world (or Great Britain or America) to be thankful for at this time?"

THE RT. HON. WALTER H. LONG, M. P., Sec. of State for the Colonies.

"Great Britain and England have to be thankful at this time for the union of the great English speaking races in the world."

ARTHUR HENDERSON, M. N., Labor leader, former member of war cabinet.

"I readily accept your invitation to associate with the American Thanksgiving day, because since August, 1914, the free democracies of the world have been subjected to their greatest trial; and it is cause for satisfaction that they have stood the test. They realize that the great world conflict into which they were called to enter was the inevitable fruit of autocratic government and unbridled militarism. Hatred to war had not dulled their perception of national and moral responsibility, for they were quick to realize that free, progressive democracy was not consistent with uncontrolled military despotism imposed by just for world domination. With unity, chivalry, and courage, they labored, fought, and sacrificed for a cause in which the highest ideals were involved. Today the great English speaking democracies of America and Britain are comrades in a common cause; and notwithstanding the appalling loss of human life, and the impoverished world by the destruction of property and material, they are determined that the war must be so concluded as to be the end of all wars; that such a victory must be secured by moral, political, diplomatic, or military means, accompanied by a league of nations, arbitration, and disarmament, as will make a recurrence of such a catastrophe impossible; by which alone the world can be made safe for democracy."

THE RT. REV. A. F. WINNINGTON INGRAM, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of London.

"I have never personally been thankful for anything so much as the entrance of the United States into the war.

"It seemed unthinkable that we should be fighting for the freedom of the world, and not have our brothers by blood fighting at our side. But now we have, and it is a great cause of thanksgiving, that we are now bound to one another in a bond of common self sacrifice which nothing can ever break.

"It is also a matter of great thanksgiving that the issue is so clear. No one can doubt for a moment that the triumph of our enemies means the downfall of all that we mean by Charity, Justice and Truth and that all our glorious sons who die for these causes die in the same cause for which Christ died. It must be our unflinching determination to see that their sacrifice is not in vain."

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE.

"The fact that every branch of the English speaking peoples is now shedding its blood upon a common battlefield with a common end in view."

"If America and the British Empire had been closer in their councils before the war this situation would never have arisen. If they remain close, it will never arise again."

ARNOLD BENNETT.

Both America and Great Britain have to be thankful that the idea of democracy is making progress throughout the world. Democracy means disarmament. The instrument of disarmament will be a league of nations; and we have also to be thankful that in both countries there are powerful men who understand the supreme importance of a league of nations."

JEAN FINOT, French author—Editor La Revue.

"One consequence of this war is a new discovery of the United States. The nation, once represented by its detractors as vowed to the cult of the Golden Calf, stands today revealed before God and man as the most meritorious of nations. Behind the ingenious money makers we have detected millions of noble souls led by an admirable chief, who is, indeed, the just man of the Bible. I refer to President Wilson."

"The decision of the old and new world is a thing of the past. In the future there will be but one fraternal group of people commencing across the ocean with the same respect for liberty and right. The people of the United States will have to their credit that of having aided this triumph of liberty and right. Without their intervention the fate of humanity would have been compromised for centuries to come. With their aid, humanity will be saved. In shedding their blood for the noblest cause of causes they will thereby retemper and strengthen their national unity."

"The months of war undertaken in common will accomplish the work of centuries in consolidating our country. Thanksgiving should be celebrated this year with the conviction that the great American nation has become the first and most loved of nations."

DISCOUNT BRYCE.

"America and Britain have to be thankful that they have both obeyed the voice of Duty which called to come forward in the cause of all mankind to defend the principles of Right, the sacredness of international engagements, the dictates of humanity which forbid cruelty and protect even in time of war innocent non-combatants."

"Britain has suffered sorely in discharging this duty. America in her turn will suffer. But it is better to suffer than to fail from cowardice or indifference at a moment when the whole future of the world is at stake."

"Never before have we had more reason to feel pride in our countries, and to love them."

Copyright Underwood & Underwood. GEN. MAUDE'S DEATH IN BLOWN TO BRITAIN—London. An official announcement issued today states that Maj. Gen. Frederick Stanley Maude died in Mesopotamia after a brief illness.

Celebrated writer, member French Academy.

"It has been said, 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?'"

"Evil disposed observers, especially on the other side of the Rhine, thought this saying could be applied to the United States. Did the citizens of the union, all powerful in material things, still preserve the high idealism of the Pilgrim fathers and of the heroes of the war of Independence?"

"The present war, which is a defiance thrown by force in the face of Liberty, of Justice and Humanity, but the American nation to the test. Provided it would consent to renounce its noble origins, religious and moral, it was practically assured of an enormous increase of prosperity and well being; whereas to stand up against the most formidable machine of destruction ever known, meant taking every risk."

"America, after profound reflection, realized the nature of the struggle and resolutely spoke up: 'Here I am!'"

"When duty whispers low: 'Thou must.'"

"The youth replies: 'I can.'"

"According to the poet philosopher, this interior motive, this absolute devoting of one self to a duty which whispers softly and exerts no coercion, is inspired by God himself."

"President Wilson has declared loudly, 'It was not the consideration of material advantages, the desire for obtaining any profit whatsoever which in April, 1917, guided the American soul; it was the spirit of our ancestors which had remained faithful to its sublime ideal.'"

"And it is for this triumphant action of Divine Grace in the American soul that the American people, and with it all those who are fighting for justice, should thank God in this year of trial which will, without doubt, be decisive for the future of humanity."

New Diseases Found In Prune Orchards

Commissioner B. F. Nichols is much concerned about the appearance of a new disease that is making ravages on prune trees in this county. At least, if the disease is not new, it is not understood by the government and college men, and there is no known manner by which it can be successfully controlled.

The disease, according to Mr. Nichols will first be noted by a small dent in the bark of the tree, perhaps as large as the finger nail. More developed stages show larger areas affected, until the limb or trunk of the tree has been encircled, after which it dies.

Where the dents appear, the bark will be found to be dead and dried, and where the dents attain the size of a dollar, the wood underneath will also be found to be affected. Sixty or more prune trees in full bearing died in Mr. Nichols' orchard, all of which were affected by this canker, or whatever disease it may be. O. A. C. horticultural men state that specimens sent to them were not within their category of treatment at this time, as they have not had any dealings with trees thus affected before. They promise to make an investigation.—Roseburg Review.

Too Sick To Work

Many Women in this Condition Regain Health by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Convincing Proof of This Fact.

Ridgway, Penn.—"I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my housework which is not light as I have a little boy three years old."

—Mrs. O. M. RAINES, Ridgway, Penn.

Mrs. Lindsey Now Keeps House For Seven.

Tennille, Ga.—"I want to tell you how much I have benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited."

—Mrs. W. E. LINDSEY, R. R. 3, Tennille, Ga.

Eugene, Or., Nov. 27.—Hugo Bezdek, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and University of Oregon football coach, will probably leave with his family for Chicago soon after Thanksgiving to prepare for the 1918 baseball season.

Owing to the fact that the University and Bezdek cannot agree on the latter's value as a football coach, Bezdek may not return here next fall. Bezdek probably will stop off at San Francisco on his way east and coach the Mare Island Marines for the Pasadena game.
