ROBERT N. STANFIELD OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR SENATORSHIP

Republican Aspirant Tells Home Folk What His Platform Will Stand For

Stanfield, Or., Jan. 10.—At the annual community meeting of the agricultural and dairying interests of Umatilla county held here today, R. N. Stanfield, republican candidate for the nomination for United States senator, was the principal speaker. There were hundreds of his neighbors and life-long friends and acquaintances present and in the course of his address he stated the principles upon which he would stand in his campaign which are as follows:

1. To support the national administration and the heads of the government with all my ability and energy in the speedy and vigorous prosecution of the war to a peace satisfactory to the democracy of the world and compatible with the highest ideals of our civilization.
2. To a selective draft in practice as well as theory, which shall insure organization of the national army and at the same time reserve the necessary labor and supplies for the continuation of our industrial pursuits and commerce.
3. To an equitable control of regulation of food supplies, commerce and primary and the establishment of a primary market in Portland on equal basis with Chicago and eastern ports.
4. Nation wide prohibition and to all measures which shall make it practical and operative and not theoretical.
5. To permanently establish equal suffrage in both state and nation.
6. To establishment by the federal government of a naval base at the mouth of the Columbia river.
7. To effective rural credit legislation and administration with a particular view to its adaptability to the needs of Oregon.
8. To construction by the federal government of a military highway along the Pacific coast, and federal aid in the construction of permanent highways.
9. To see that Oregon participates, all things being equal, in national trade, commerce and industry, and that our state is given recognition in the federal expenditures made necessary by the war.
10. To legislation which shall bring to a settlement the public lands question, and the greater development of Oregon's natural resources including the development of water power, reclamation of arid, swamp and logged off lands.
11. To the organization and mobilization of all industrial forces, with just and proper consideration of the rights of labor, which shall guarantee co-ordination of American efforts during the war.
12. To legislation that will permit resources of the great west and Alaska to be used, at the same time being careful that these natural resources are used economically.
13. To the removal of the misunderstanding and opposition on the part of the federal authorities which has restricted Oregon's commercial expansion and retarded her industrial development.
14. To the development of Oregon's great shipping ports, through federal improvement of waterways and harbor, the maintenance of a merchant marine on the Pacific ocean, and a just recognition on the part of the federal government of the importance, value, commercial and industrial advantage of Oregon's location, situation and harbor, and shipping facilities.
15. To a policy of conservation and reconstruction which shall insure our national integrity, honor and commerce and the moral and civic purity of our people, which is typified by a conscientious and moral observance of true Christian civilization.
16. To have that high regard and consideration for the interests and progress of humanity and the nation at large, which should actuate the motives of every public man.

As to why he was a candidate and in respect to the issue raised, and in presenting his declaration of principles, he said:

"The great national duty of the hour is effective, intelligent and patriotic support of the government in a vigorous and successful prosecution of the war against Germany and her allies.

"The obvious political and commercial need of Oregon is competent and resultful representation in congress at Washington.

"I pledge myself, if elected United States senator, to respond to every appropriate call upon me for service to my country and similarly pledge myself, if defeated, to perform, to the limit of my ability and opportunity, every task which may be allotted to me as a citizen. I have sought always to do the latter; I hope I shall during my campaign be able to convince the people of Oregon that it is to the general interest for them to do the former. I do not assume that I have greater capacity, diligence or understanding than others; but I know, as all know, that there are many things to do which have not been done, and which I think I can help to do. For these reasons I offer myself to the people of Oregon as a candidate for United States senator at the republican primary in May.

"I am a farmer and a stock raiser. I am a native son of Oregon. I have had a modest part in its industrial, commercial and political life. I have had personal contact with some of its problems, and I have had a definite and growing interest in others; and I believe I know as well as another what is needed for development of the state's mighty resources. There should be helpful national legislation, an end of administrative neglect and discrimination, and a vigilant and persistent presentation, before the legislative and executive departments of the federal government, of Oregon's deserts and wants.

"I expect, if elected senator, to serve at all times every proper interest and to be at the command of every citizen with a rightful claim on the government's attention. I hope and expect at all time and in all practical ways to serve the whole public, so that there would no longer be a necessity, when a crisis or emergency arose at Washington of concern to Oregon, for chambers of commerce or commercial clubs, or public bodies of any kind, to feel obligated to protect their interest through private and unofficial representation. I shall also expect my acts to advertise me and my service, and I should not seek undue publicity before either action or accomplishment.

"I understand full well that the people of Oregon will not elect me senator, or to any office, unless there shall be good reasons for their action. They should not, and of course they will not grant me their favor because I desire it, or ask it, but they will, and they should, prefer that candidate who it seems to them can serve them best. If the nature of any duty or service is thoroughly studied and well comprehended, it is already partly accomplished.

"A senator should be well informed as to every phase of Oregon's present development and future prospects; and he should have the wish, the will and the knowledge to act promptly and fearlessly on every occasion. I believe I know what should be done for Oregon, and I know the people know that much can be done that has not been done, I hope to convince them that I am sufficiently well equipped to perform the important duties of the senatorial office.

"In that spirit and with complete confidence in their good judgment, and with an abiding faith that their decision will be correct, whether it is for or against me, I submit my candidacy to the republican voters of Oregon, as later I shall submit it to the whole people if duly nominated."

"I would like to cite a few instances of the wrongs done Oregon:

Oregon was one of the first in supplying volunteers for the national army, but our boys must train at camps located in other states.

Oregon was prompt in complying with the selective draft, but the training camps are located in other states.

Oregon's patriotism was shown in being first "over the top" liberty bonds, but her money is spent in the markets of other states.

Oregon is doing her utmost in building ships for war needs, but the hulls must be taken to other ports for the placing of equipment.

Oregon was first in furnishing space for aeroplanes, but no aeroplanes are manufactured in Oregon.

Oregon was among the first, if not first, in subscribing her allotment in the Red Cross fund; in raising her soldiers' library fund; in raising her army Y. M. C. A. fund, but Oregon has neither cantonment, training camp, divisional headquarters, navy yards nor military market.

All these things have taken from the Oregon laboring man the right to participate in the payroll which he and the wealth of his state have provided.

Oregon whole heartedly complied with the appeals for food conservation and food production, but Oregon's wheat growers and food producers were penalized 20 cents a bushel for living in Oregon.

The commerce of our ports of the lower Columbia river, the greatest ports in the world, is retarded and strangled by red tape and federal indifference, misunderstanding and apparent prejudice. The immense food supply from the great store house of the Inland Empire comes rolling down a water grade to both fresh and tide-water harbors, but for all governmental purposes is diverted over mountain ranges to another port. All purchases of grain and lby for army purposes are made on the basis of Seattle delivery, thereby reducing the Oregon producers' price the amount of the added freight.

Oregon is one of the largest contributors to the reclamation fund of the United States, yet our arid lands lie idle and undeveloped while other states are richly endowed with appropriations from the fund to which Oregon has so materially contributed.

Much of the wealth of our forests, mines, river and harbors is locked up under a rigid federal supervision that makes development impossible.

Oregon has been exploited to ben-

EDUCATORS TO HELP
JUNIOR RED CROSS

New Field Workers Added to Development Staff of This Branch

Every state in the northwestern division will have an advisory committee of educators for junior Red Cross.

J. A. Churchill, Miss Ethel Redfield and Mrs. Josephine C. Preston, state superintendents of schools for Oregon, Idaho and Washington respectively, have each been asked to act as chairman of these committees for their respective states, and L. D. Henderson, superintendent of schools for Alaska, will head a live committee from that territory.

L. R. Alderman, city superintendent of Portland schools, and H. C. Seymour, state leader of boys' and girls' clubs, have been asked by State Superintendent Churchill to serve with him on the state advisory committee for Oregon. To this committee will be added a city superintendent elected by the state meeting of city superintendents and a county superintendent elected by the state county superintendents' convention.

The function of the state advisory committees will be to work for a large junior Red Cross membership and to determine to what extent suggested junior activities are suitable for classroom use.

New Field Representatives.

Two field representatives have been added to the staff of the Northwestern division of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Millie R. Trumbull, secretary of the Oregon Child Labor Commission, with offices in the courthouse at Portland, will act as a volunteer field representative for organization and home service.

quickly and easily."

The fight in the senate is expected to be hard and close, but with the president's aid suffrage leaders are confident they will win the necessary two-thirds there.

Suffrage leaders planned a great demonstration in the house this afternoon, when the vote is taken. Seats in the galleries were at a premium early. Many sat through the entire day to witness the first great victory anticipated after years of effort.

Miss Rankin Speaks

Washington, Jan. 10.—A woman—Jeanette Rankin—pleading the cause of equal rights for her sex as a war measure, today began the debate in the house, expected to result in passage before night of the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the constitution.

Cheered by hundreds of women who packed the galleries and applauded by enthusiasts on the floor, Miss Rankin proceeded in a calm, clear voice, and declared that votes against suffrage would lead the world to challenge America's creed of democracy.

Here was the first speech of a debate which promised to continue until 6 o'clock. It was preceded by one of the most unusual scenes in the house chamber's history. Early this morning long lines of women were before the gallery doors. Thousands were turned away when the galleries and corridors became packed. Miss Rankin's appearance, as leader of the republican suffrage forces, brought an ovation. But it failed to confuse her.

"How can we explain to the world," she asked, "if the congress that voted to make the world safe for democracy, refused to give this small measure of democracy to the women of the country?"

"Today, as never before, the nation needs its women—needs the work of their hands and their hearts and their minds. Their energy must be utilized in the most effective service they can give. Are we now going to refuse these women the opportunity to serve in the face of their pleas—in the face of the nation's great need?"

The house immediately after convening started the debate.
