GERMAN AGENTS TO BEGIN TODAY

Campaign of Destruction and Frightfulness at All Ocean Ports of Nation

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—This is "Der Tag" set by alien plotters for the beginning of a "frightfulness" campaign according to information given federal authorities today. It is the day German agents set for the wholesale destruction of American shipping, their sabotage centering in San Francisco and New York and extending to all Pacific and Atlantic ports.

San Francisco is prepared. The guard which has been maintained by federal, state and city authorities since Saturday was doubled at important factories and shipping points. Under direction of police and military authorities, joint forces of troops and police maintained heavy guard lines and at some of the most important points admittance thru these lines was obtainable only by pass.

All outgoing vessels were given thorough search but the only result of this search so far was the confiscation of 200 rounds of ammunition and six automatic pistols found secreted aboard a Dutch liner.

All policemen and firemen on leave have been called back to the city, additional fire apparatus has been moved into the waterfront zone and guards have been placed at the water supply pressure tanks. The police department today transferred to the waterfront guard all men from the traffic and electric bureaus who could be spared.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Bread Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of this Hamburg tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoonful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

MAZOLA
for thrift and quality—in deep frying, sautéing, shortening and salad dressings

Mazola is more economical for general cooking than butter, lard or suet—because it can be used over and over again—does not transmit taste or odor from one food to another.

And Food Administrator Hoover asks you to save these animal fats.

Mazola is pressed from the heart of golden American corn—is as pure and sweet as the most delicate food cooked in it.

Thousands of housewives have solved the fat problem with Mazola—and so can you.

Get it from your grocer in pint, quart, half-gallon or gallon tins—the large sizes are most economical. Also ask for the free Mazola Book of Recipes, or write us direct.

Your money refunded if Mazola does not give entire satisfaction.

Oregon Guardsmen On Duty.
Portland, Or., Jan. 22.—First steps in utilization of the Oregon state guard was taken today when at the order of Governor Withycombe, fifty guardsmen began sentry duty at local shipyards, supplementing the city's heavy contingent of special watchmen. The motive for the extra precaution at all shipyards, factories and docks is still withheld.

SOCIETY

By CAROL S. DIBBLE

Yesterday was "Guest Day" at the regular meeting of the P. E. O. which was held at the home of Mrs. George E. Wood on North Church street. A short business session preceded the program of the afternoon. Assisting the hostess at the serving hour were Mrs. F. W. Selee and Mrs. B. E. Bower. Contributing to the pleasure of the guests was a piano selection by Miss Laura Grant and a vocal number by Mrs. W. H. Frank.

Inasmuch as the members of the P. E. O. have pursued, as their course of reading this year, the study of Oregon history and literature, the Oregon program given by Mrs. Anna Rogers Fish, consisting of selections from Oregon writers, was most apropos and highly appreciated by her audience. Mrs. Fish made a few remarks on the treasury of good reading, within the confines of our own state, much of it as yet in the discovery, but rich in returns, when once reclaimed from partial obscurity. She emphasized not only the conserving of material resources in these days of economy on every side, but the conserving also of the resources of the mind, lying nearest at hand—the conservation of Oregon literature. Against that inevitable enemy, half-hour of boredom, she advised the making and hearing of the old-time scrapbook, which might well be inaugurated with such selective bits from Oregon writers as those from the following program of the afternoon: Sam Simpson, "The Fur Country," "Beautiful Willamette;" Col. Cradlebaugh, Salem, "The Glory of His Coming;" Dean Collins, Portland, "Those Who Go Down to the Sea;" "Abraham Lincoln;" Ben Hur Lampman, Portland, "The Fish Story," "The Creed of the Road," "The Hostage of the Hills," "Earnest Seward Baker, Salem," "The Wander Song," "The Heart of the Last Frontier;" Mary Carolyn Davies, Portland and New York, "The Sea," "The Rabbit," "Six O'Clock," "Cloistered," "Songs of a Girl."

A pretty event of January the thirteenth, was the christening of Master Jack Diamond Stubbs, the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stubbs. Mrs. Stubbs will be remembered by Salem society as Elsa Diemel, having frequently visited here, as the guest of Miss Elizabeth Lord.

The christening took place at the home of the baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Stubbs, Market and Jackson streets. The Rev. J. W. Smith, pastor of the church, officiated. Present were the bride and groom, the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, the bride's great-grandfather, Chaplain R. S. Stubbs.

Miss Lorena Parker, home conservation agent of Marion county, will go to Silverton tomorrow, where she will give a demonstration lecture at the Silverton high school. Miss Parker will be away the remainder of the week, demonstrating along the various lines of her work, and organizing classes in the numerous departments, covered by the home conservation movement of the county. Before returning to Salem on Saturday, Miss Parker will address pathfinders at Oregon City, Stayton and other community centers.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the Jason Lee church will meet Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. C. Brown, 1345 Broadway. This is the regular monthly meeting of the society, and an exceptionally interesting afternoon is anticipated by the members.

Mrs. N. A. Jones of Portland attended the installation ceremonies of the Silver Bell Circle Friday evening.

Miss Alice Schrank was hostess at a very pretty surprise party given at the home of her parents at 1213 Center street. The event was in honor of Miss Schrank's nineteenth birthday. The evening was spent in merry pastimes, including cards, music and dancing. A delightful luncheon was served later.

Those present were Miss Etta Sutter, Miss Avis Williams, Miss Clara Kates, Miss Joy Turner, Miss Myrtle Frame, Miss Edith Dietz, Misses Ida, Alice and Bessie Schrank, Vester Bones, Ray Hawthorne and Lester Frame, Mrs. M. E. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Schrank, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Schrank.

Steven Elmo Wright, who is now stationed at Vancouver, as a member of the aviation corps, visited his mother, Mrs. J. F. Dunlap, at her home on North Front street over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Pascal Tiglio were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Rohr of Portland.

The installation of officers of the Silver Bell Circle was held Friday evening at the lodge rooms. Following the business meeting, a short program was enjoyed including a vocal solo by Carl Beckett, a piano number by Miss Vesta Smith and a reading by Mrs. L. G. Curtis. Afterward, light refreshments were served by Mrs. L. W. Ache son, Mrs. E. R. Noyhart, Mrs. R. Simpson, Mrs. A. J. Bascy and Mrs. O. C. Kennon.

The following officers, who were installed by Mrs. Grace L. Reiner of the Royal Circle of Portland, assisted by Mrs. Helen Southwick and Miss Zoe Olmstead were: P. G. N., Mary R. Davis; G. N., Ellen J. Darling; adviser, Lillian Simpson; clerk, Julia A. Lytle; treasurer, Mary S. Moore; magnifying Mary J. Smith; attendant, Mary J. White; I. S., Mary E. Cass; O. S., Ida M. Keene; managers, Caroline Bushnell, Sarah Churchill and Edna Faadrich; musician, Ethel Hall.

LABOR PARTY BECOMES FACTOR IN GREAT BRITAIN

NOTE—The Nottingham conference of the Labor Party of Great Britain, which opens tomorrow will, according to British writers give Arthur Henderson, head of the Labor Party the greatest opportunity of his life. In an effort to learn what Henderson expects to develop from this opportunity and what general effect the conference will have on British political affairs, Lowell Mellett, United Press staff correspondent, recently interviewed the Labor Party leader. During the interview which follows Henderson made several startling predictions as to the future of "the party of the future."—United Press.

London, Jan. 22.—British writers, of a liberal bent, have written a great deal in the past several weeks about the conference of the Labor Party which opens tomorrow in Nottingham. Somewhere in the course of most such articles there has appeared the phrase "Arthur Henderson has a great opportunity before him." The United Press asked the head of the Labor Party today what he expected to develop from this great opportunity. He answered: "Resolution."

He spoke in a serious manner, his head down in the peculiar bulldog manner of British fighting politicians, but he looked up immediately and smiled.

"There's a revolution coming, all right," he explained; "but it will be a bloodless affair, entirely political. The British people are seeking the means for a swift transition from the old order of things to the new, but they wish it to be smooth as well as swift. We are reorganizing the Labor Party to make it the vehicle for the change."

The reorganization referred to is that proposed by the national executive whereby Labor Party membership will cease to be based exclusively on affiliation with a trades union, but will be open to any voter agreeing with the party's program.

"When the scheme comes into operation it will provide the people with the means of effecting a complete revolution in the control of the state. The revolution will have the thoroughness of the Russian revolution, but it will be open to any voter agreeing with the party's program. The British people have learned how to operate free representative institutions. They are skilled in the practice of political democracy.

"No people clings more stubbornly to rooted traditions, is more jealous of any infringement on liberty, or is more opposed to any change for the worse, than the British people. The British people have a stronger grasp on the realities of life or is capable of going so fast or so far when the signal moment has arrived."

"That moment is rapidly approaching; the war has stirred the British people to its depths, it has evoked a new vision of constructive possibilities; it has revealed essential defects in the structure of society; it has given democracy a consciousness of power. Political democracy will have no patience with any party or leader that seeks to serve the interests or preserve the privileges of a class against the common interests of all."

"The new constitution leaves the Labor Party solidly based upon the organized working class movement. From the trade unions which are the mainstay of the party—the bankers, in fact—neither their right of representation nor their voting power can be taken away. The party does not abandon its original basis as a federation of societies—trade unions, socialist societies, women's organizations, trades councils, co-operative societies."

"Becoming a national party we broaden the definition of the word 'labor' to make it include all who produce, whether by hand or brain, as distinguished from the classes that live on rent or interest, without making any productive effort to add to the wealth of the community."

Henderson said this appeal to others than trade union members had met with a wide response throughout the country. Young men of education and training in great numbers have indicated that they find this opening to political effort attractive.

"What part do you think the new Labor Party will be able to play in case of an election this spring?" Henderson was asked.

"With us," he said, "it is not a matter of winning the next election or any particular election. I know there is a certain expectation that Mr. Lloyd George will spring a general election on the people at the first seemingly favorable opportunity, notwithstanding the objections he once eloquently voiced to the principle of a 'khaki election.' An election on a stale register or even a new register and gathering their last atom of strength to avoid falling into the abyss of physical and moral collapse."

"The inhabitants will not be able to subsist much longer on their daily rations."

"Their food is hardly better than pigs' food in peace time. Every week the same meals are repeated and they are more than Spartan in their simplicity. Each person receives weekly 3-2 pounds of bread with little nourishment in it and a few potatoes, turnips and beets. The menus invariably potatoes mixed with sauer kraut or beets mixed with turnips, cooked in water without fat or butter. The tiny quantity of lean meat is sometimes added to this hodgepodge but very exceptionally."

Fats are distributed rarely—tuberculosis is on the increase and the workers are getting less fat all the time, particularly in the coal, metal and munitions lines, though the soldiers are better fed."

Agriculture and stock breeding have declined tremendously, the Dutchman reported. Harvests are poor with the exception of potatoes, though Germany sought to create an opposite impression.

"This picture," he said, in conclusion "is not exaggerated. I will never forget the impression those German people made on me. They were misery personified. I felt sorry for them and I am not afflicted with Germanophobia, either."

Washington, Jan. 22.—The republican national committee is "hard put" to find a man willing to undertake the job of raising money for politics during the war.

The reason is that Cornelius Bligh has resigned as treasurer of the committee, to take up an easier money raising job in the war council of the Red Cross. At headquarters it was stated a hard search is contemplated in getting Bligh's successor.

Man of the Use, weather conditions propitious tomorrow, will feel like giving the once over to the site of next summer's war garden.

Efforts to Find Sender of Warning Letters

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—Efforts to find the sender of the "T. N. T." death threat notes which have been received by state and county officials here during the last few days, were doubled today following the declaration of Theodore Kytka, handwriting expert, that he believes the notes were written by the author of similar threats which preceded the preparedness parade bomb explosion. "T. N. T." death threats have been received by Police Judges Althea Brady, M. Oppenheim and Timothy Fitzpatrick and three notes have come to the offices of the state council of defense. State officers at Sacramento also have been threatened.

Well, we're lucky for once in our lives. We don't have to pay any income tax.

EASTERN STATES

E. Williams, state fuel administrator, said today.

"With the snow today, however, it is difficult to say just what the situation will be in the future. I don't know how long it will be necessary to continue the 'coalless Mondays,' as I have no idea of what amount of fuel was to be saved, or how much has been saved under the conservation plan."

Raymond E. Durham, county fuel administrator, in an earlier statement said no real improvement in the coal situation could be looked for in Chicago before the end of this week.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—Curtailed passenger traffic to utilize engines for coal hauling meets the approval of United Mine Workers officials here today. John Lewis, vice president of the union, said he believed it is the best way to relieve the coal situation.

TELEGRAPHIC TABLOIDS

Santa Rosa, Cal.—Miller Vaughn came home on army furlough. His mother told him to turn in his uniform and stay on the farm. So well disciplined was he that he obeyed. Today he's en route to Camp Greene under guard as a deserter.

San Francisco—A cavalryman tied his horse to a "safety zone" sign on Market street today but a passing automobile took wasn't to the horse's liking. Away he went, the trailing "safety zone" sign assuring him a clear path through the traffic.
