DEMURRER IN FLAX CASE TO BE ARGUED

Crawford's Suit For $800 Bonus Comes Up For Hearing Thursday

At 4 o'clock next Thursday afternoon the attorneys in the case will argue a demurrer filed by Attorney General Brown in the suit brought by Robert Crawford, former superintendent of the penitentiary flax plant, against Governor Withycombe to compel the governor to approve his claim for $870 bonus, which is due him under his agreement with the state at the time he was employed if he made a financial profit of the flax business. Crawford was discharged last November by the governor, who offered to pay half the bonus but refused to pay it all. Crawford submitted a statement showing the state will make a profit of more than $30,000 off the flax he harvested. The attorney general, representing the governor, filed a demurrer to the alternative writ of mandamus raising the technical objection that the circuit court has no jurisdiction of the subject of the suit, and also alleging that the writ does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. A stipulation was filed admitting that Crawford had presented his claim to the governor and that the governor had replied in writing, offering to pay Crawford $400 on the so-called bonus.

CHIROPRACTIC There are so many contributing causes which lead to a defective spinal column, that to enumerate them would require an almost exhaustive review of life from cradle to grave.

The position assumed by the child at the school desk, or the man or woman while at work, suggests the tendency for abnormal spinal curvature; also a fall or bruise, no matter how slight, may easily throw the spinal column out of plumb, and these may cause the fatal pressure upon the nerves and throttle the life giving currents, leading to disease of the organs.

CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTS SPINAL DEFECTS It lifts the pressure from the nerves permitting them to nourish the famished and worn out tissues and organs. Nature is then able to bring about normal conditions, which mean health.

Let Chiiropractic put you in tune with the healing forces of nature.
