German Papers Again Discuss Russian Peace

Amsterdam, Feb. 6.—The internal strife trouble out of the way for the present, German newspapers have again resumed debate on the Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations.

Warning that wrecking of the negotiations with the Russians would align the Bolsheviks with Great Britain, was sounded by the Vossische Zeitung.

That Germany would have done better not to have entered the peace negotiations was the regret expressed by the Tagliche Rundschau.

In reply the Cologne Gazette had that the Brest-Litovsk negotiations had already achieved the dissolution of the Russian army.

The Neue Nachrichten takes the gloomy view that the prospects of peace with Russia are now much more slender.

Prices Were Irregular In Wall Street Today

New York, Feb. 6.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said:

Prices in today's stock market were irregular, with a tendency to lower levels. The market ebbed and flowed without much feature save for the attention paid by pool operators to this group and that, and to numerous individual issues. The opening was higher, but a reaction set in at the end of the first half hour. Thereafter there was unsettlement of a quiet order.

The high price and scarcity of tonnage was perhaps a more potent factor. The feature of the late trading was further broad advances in the shipping, with buying active.

Eight Cents Fixed As Bread Loaf Price

Portland, Or., Feb. 6.—As a result of Pacific coast states food administrators today establishing a minimum of 8 cents as the price for a 16 ounce loaf of bread to retailers and 12 cents for the 24 ounce loaf the retail price of bread has advanced a cent. Loaves were formerly sold retailers at 7 1/2 cents and retailers at 9 cents. Today Mr. Consumer must pay ten cents. A rise in the price of larger loaf is also expected.

AMERICAN OBJECTIVE IN FIRST CAMPAIGN IS CAPTURE OF METZ

That Is the Indication From General Pershing's Disposition of Forces

By J. W. T. Mason

(Written for the United Press)
 New York, Feb. 6.—The capture of Metz and the bending back of the German salient south of Verdun will be the first objectives of the American expeditionary army in France if General Pershing concentrates his major strength along the salient now held by the United States troops.

Camouflage, however, may be General Pershing's purpose in the disposition of his men, so as to keep Von Hindenburg in the dark concerning the direction of the main attack. Three months ago the Americans were located by the Germans along the Rhine-Marne canal, just across the French border from German Lorraine. Six weeks later, Switzerland formally requested assurances that American troops would not violate Swiss neutrality. The state department replied that America would respect the neutrality of Switzerland if Germany and the Swiss people themselves did the same. This was interpreted to mean that General Pershing's spring drive would be near the Swiss border in southern Alsace, about 100 miles south of the Rhine-Marne canal.

And now, six weeks later, still are indications that the Americans are holding part of the French front east of St. Mihiel, about 20 miles south of Verdun and not associated with either the Rhine-Marne canal or the southern Alsace front. So far apart are these three sectors that the German general staff dare not concentrate at any one of the points its newly formed armies, gathered along the Rhine to resist the forthcoming American offensive. Von Hindenburg can only wait until the attack begins before moving the mass of his troops forward from this present reserve position.

But if General Pershing decides to move forward from St. Mihiel area, his purpose will then be to plant the American flag over Metz, which would become the first German fortress to be captured during the war. Metz is the defensive center of the German system of railways that supply the army of the crown prince, and all the other German forces in eastern France. Its occupation by the Americans would bring about grave disorganization in the German army and would produce serious distrust of Von Hindenburg's invincibility among the Germans at home.

Re-Trial of Weinburg Will Not Be Delayed

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—There must be no further delay in the re-trial of Israel Weinburg, bomb case defendant; unless he is released on bail in the meantime his trial will start next Wednesday.

Superior Judge Cabanis made these announcements today when the defendants in the preparedness parade bomb plot cases appeared in his court for a hearing. Assistant District Attorney Louis Ferrari asked a continuance of all the cases excepting that of Thomas Mooney, saying Mooney ought to be the first of the defendants re-tried.

Defense Attorney Maxwell McNutt objected. Judge Cabanis sustained McNutt and said:

"Weinburg is entitled to a speedy trial. Furthermore, he is entitled to bail until his trial and to reasonable bail at that."

Ferrari declared he is not authorized to deal with bail and Judge Cabanis then said:

"All right. In that case Weinburg will go to trial next Wednesday without bail."

Garfield Will Continue Meatless-Wheatless Days

Washington, Feb. 6.—Fuel administrator Garfield today officially announced continuation of the "workless Monday" order.

There is no likelihood, he declared, that the order will be necessary after March 25 and with warmer weather the order may be lifted even before the ten Mondays, are passed unless floods interfere with transportation.

Mr. Garfield even expressed hope that with reasonable weather the fuel order might be rescinded after next Monday, but final action in this matter will not be taken until later, he said.

Profiteers Object of New Hoover Drive

Washington, Feb. 6.—Another blow was struck at food profiteering today by the food administration.

Middlemen who pass commodities along to each other, each taking out his profit and shifting the burden of the inflated prices to the consumer are the objectives of Hoover's latest drive.

Re-sales of commodities to other than retailers is forbidden except under reasonable justification. Regulations against hoarding are made stringent.

CONVICT OBJECTS TO STERILIZATION EDICT

Eugenics Board Has Ordered That Law Be Enforced In Four Cases

Herbert Merithew, a convict at the state penitentiary, has taken an appeal from the order of the state board of eugenics directing that he be sterilized under the provisions of a law passed by the last legislature, according to a letter received today by Attorney General Brown from Dr. A. C. Seelye, president of the board.

Dr. Seelye asked for advice as to what steps the board should take next, but before the attorney general can reply he will ask a full record of the case.

The eugenics board has ordered that four convicts be sterilized and two of them have appealed, which means that the sterilization law will be tested in the courts. The appeal will go to the circuit court for Marion county and the law provides that the district attorney shall represent the eugenics board.

Merithew is serving a sentence of seven years for an attempted crime against nature, which was committed while he was serving a one-year term under the name of James Curtis for assault with a dangerous weapon. He was sent up for one year term from Multnomah county and for the seven year term from Marion county. He had also been in the penitentiary prior to these two convictions.

The only convict who has appealed from the order of the board is Tony Lagallo.

Submarine War Being Won Says Daniels

Washington, Feb. 6.—"The submarine war is being won," said Secretary Daniels this afternoon, commenting on the statement from London that a unique anti-U-boat method is being used by the British.

Daniels said many devices of an unusual character are being employed but that none of them are patented and that the safety of all will mean constant vigilance.

MRS. GILL'S CONDITION VERY SERIOUS TODAY

Struck by Automobile Last Night and Injuries May Prove Fatal

An extremely serious accident last evening at the intersection of Church and Court streets when an automobile belonging to Rev. G. F. Holt and driven by his daughter, Miss Juey Holt, struck Mrs. George W. Gill, living at 138 South Cottage street.

Mrs. Gill sustained a fracture of the base of the skull, besides a broken arm and several fractured ribs. She was taken to the Salem hospital where she is in a critical condition, having not regained consciousness up to press hour this afternoon.

The accident occurred about 8:30 o'clock last evening. Mrs. Gill, with another lady, were going east on Court street and were just crossing Church at the time. Miss Holt, with a party of friends were driving south on Church street on their way to the high school building. She was on her own side of the street and was driving slow, as the rain had partially obscured her vision through the windshield. The slow rate of progress of the machine, a Ford, made the lights very dim, and Mrs. Gill and her companion, doubtless not realizing the nearness of the machine, stepped out in the street to cross.

Mrs. Gill, when nearly out of harness, was turned and started back to the curb. Her companion went ahead and escaped.

The injured woman's condition is considered critical and serious fears are entertained that she may not recover.

TRADES FOR SALEM PROPERTY.

G. H. Campbell of Ten Mile has traded his fine 210-acre farm there to George Peed of Salem for four good houses and lots in Salem, a 35-acre farm near Salem and a substantial cash payment in addition. The Campbell farm has splendid improvements, including a new house and barn. Mr. Peed also gets all of the sheep, horses, cattle and other livestock on the farm, as well as the farming machinery, etc. The farm was valued at $14,000. Mr. Campbell and family will go to Salem during the coming week and will arrange to make their permanent home there. Mr. Peed is reported to have a family composed of himself and wife and two daughters. They will for the present make their home on the Ten Mile farm. The trade was made through the realty offices of Perrine & Marsters of Roseburg and Salem.—Roseburg Review.

GERMANS STRONGER ON WESTERN FRONT THAN EVER BEFORE

But General Maurice States That Allies Forces Are Still the Stronger

London, Feb. 6.—The Germans are stronger on the western front now than at any time during the war, but they are numerically inferior to the Franco-British forces, General Maurice, director general of operations, declared in his weekly interview today.

"The situation need cause us no anxiety," he said.

Replying to enemy propaganda, Maurice declared that the number of Tommies in England always exceeds one million. They are divided among sick, wounded, members of the staff, the supply divisions and men in training, he said. The latter division is the largest, numbering nearly 500,000.

Besides, he said there are 100,000 all-ways on leave.

"Our casualties in 1917 were over a million, hence the large number of men in training," declared Maurice.

Steamer Is Lost

London, Feb. 6.—Loss of a passenger steamer in the channel was revealed today by Admiralty Secretary MacNamara, replying to inquiry in the commons.

MacNamara reported the loss of fourteen men of a crew of 25 and 18 out of 20 army and navy men aboard. The name of the boat was not revealed. Neither was the cause of the sinking.

Enemy Raids Repulsed.

German Official Report.

Berlin, via London, Feb. 6.—Six enemy aeroplanes were brought down and one taken captive on the western front yesterday, the war office declared today.

President Wants Power to Co-Ordinate Work

Washington, Feb. 6.—President Wilson today took direct steps to obtain legislative authority for sweeping coordination of war work.

Without warning, he precipitated upon congress through Senator Overman a measure authorizing him to consolidate bureaus and commissions and "re-distribute the functions of any government agency to promote coordination and efficiency."

The measure was sent to the capitol through Postmaster General Burleson and after introduction by Overman was referred to the judiciary committee.

Signal Corps Soldiers Work In Sawmill

Raymond, Wash., Feb. 6.—A detachment of fifty signal corps soldiers arrived this afternoon to work at the Siler sawmill, producing spruce for airplane construction. Special barracks have been built for the men.

There are 100 soldiers now working in local mills, a detachment of 50 being at the Willapa mill.

Brewing Barley Soars In Portland Market

Portland, Or., Feb. 6.—Brewing barley soared to hitherto unknown prices this afternoon when the Merchants Exchange quoted it at $64 a ton. There were several sales made at $65 a ton.

Scarcity of barley suitable for milling, supplemented by the food administration's decree for wheat flour substitutes caused the raise.
