other cities and villages as well. The workmen insist on making peace.

April 2, Feb. 2.

The situation is very critical in Germany, for at Berlin Leipzig and Jena a great many workmen have gone on strike.

Gunterhausen, Feb. 6. Thursday and Friday there was bread demonstination. The workmen from the factories went on strike and, watching to the city hall, demanded a more abundant food ration.

Nuremberg, Feb. 1.

The rich are afraid of a general strike on mass. People parade the streets now carrying banners with the motto: Liberty for Liebknecht (The socialist leader).

Plattling, Feb. 9.

The situation was critical here where we live for several days. You have undoubtedly heard of it. In nearly all the cities and villages the workmen went on strike. It is finished for the present, I am told. The socialists insist on making peace.

Nuremberg, Feb. 11.

I know nothing especially about a strike. At Aeginberg five orators spoke at the same time and the working men and working women paraded the streets carrying banners which read "peace and liberty!"

Alcoa, Feb. 10. I am told that Louis must leave for the front. He has quit the service of equipment. They are incorporating all the men here on account of the strike.

NO SHIPMENTS

San Francisco.

Great Lakes shipyards, hitherto unused for ocean tonnage owing to what was thought to be insufficient depth of the Welland canal to convey them to the seaboard, will now be worked full blast. Engineers have reported to Chairman Hurley of the shipping board that ships may be sent through the canal at turned on their sides. The canal, they point out, is forty feet wide and the vessels will not measure more than 36 feet in depth.

Build Concrete Vessels

San Francisco, April 4.—Preparations were under way today for the immediate beginning of construction of three concrete vessels of 7500 tons.

Further expansion of the concrete shipbuilding industry was declared by concrete men here today to be a certainty.

Following the successful launching of the 5000 ton concrete ship Faith on March 14 and inspection by government experts, the shipping board has authorized the San Francisco Shipbuilding company to start work immediately on three more concrete vessels fifty feet longer than the Faith.

The new vessels will be built at the Redwood City plant where the Faith was launched. Four months have been allowed for delivery. Designing and other preparations will occupy sixty days, it was estimated. The Faith was built in six months, but less time will be required for the completion of the others.

Alan MacDonald, designer of the Faith, declared his belief that concrete ships will solve the allies shipping problems. The plentifulness of concrete, the fact that skilled workmen are not required, the small plant necessary for putting together a concrete hull, and the time saved in actual completion are declared to be big factors in favor of concrete ship construction on a large scale.

The Faith was built in a small, hastily constructed plant by 150 men who had had no previous shipbuilding experience. The biggest part of the necessary plant is a battery of concrete mixers, MacDonald says.

The company which built the Faith offered the shipping board a contract to build and deliver 54 concrete ships of 7500 tons each in eighteen months at about half the cost of steel ships.

NO MORE ENLISTMENTS

Eugene, Or., April 4.—The government will do away with all existing in order to dignify the draft and remove the only opportunity for an odious comparison, according to President Campbell of the University of Oregon.

Addressing the student body and faculty, Campbell said that in line with this policy of relying upon the draft, he

Another meeting of the emergency board has been called by Governor Withycombe for April 9th, to consider the advisability of providing the funds requested by the Oregon Social Hygiene society and by Colonel Hagrader, representing the military department of the army in the northwest. The meeting will be held in conference with Colonel Hagrader and members of the society. Colonel Hagrader has been directed by the war department to work out a plan for the suppression of venereal disease among the soldiers and men subject to draft and has received the ready support of the Oregon Hygiene society. Statistics compiled by the government show that to one man who contracts a venereal disease after entering the army, 10 are infected before they arrive.

The record for the payment of state warrants was made by the treasury office in March. The total was over a million, the largest preceding month being $934,000 last August. One large contributing item in the expenditures for the month was $104,000 for the state accident insurance fund.
