

WOOLEN CONDITIONS

The Government has taken over all the wool on hand and the 1918 crop besides. This will mean a famine of materials from which to make clothing for men and women in civil life.

It is almost impossible to buy staple woollens in the markets today at any price; and the quality and weights of what can be had are very inferior to former values.

I was very fortunate in having a large stock of high grade woollens on hand and am able to make up clothes at less than others must get. If you are in need of a suit it would pay you to place your order at once.

Don't delay but order that suit at once.

Oregon Institutions Conserve Wheat Flour

R. B. Goodin, secretary of the board of control, is rather proud of the fact that Oregon is one of the first states in the union to not only go 50-50 on the amount of wheat flour used in the state institutions, but to go one better.

In conference a few days ago with W. B. Ayer, federal food administrator for Oregon, Mr. Goodin told the food administrator that the board of control which formerly ordered 2800 barrels of wheat flour for the state institutions at Salem as the semi-annual order, was not using even half that amount now. As a substitute, flours of the following were ordered: barley, oats, rice, Irish potato, sweet potato, buckwheat, farina, Roman meal and Milo flour.

Mr. Ayer was so pleased with the action of the board of control in living up to the situation that he at once wired the facts to the U. S. food administration in Washington. Today he received a letter from the U. S. food administration which was well pleased with the action of the state officials of Oregon as it indicated they appreciated the situation. Also that many states felt themselves above the law and were not inclined to go 50-50 for the state institution supplies. "Oregon has the right spirit," the federal food administration wrote.

Lower Orange Prices Are Promised Soon

Los Angeles, Calif., April 27.—Present abnormal prices of California Naval oranges are explained in recent figures compiled by crop authorities. These figures show that only fifteen per cent of the normal naval crop of California came to maturity as a result of the heat wave last June, the most destructive in thirty years. As a result of the unusual heat, eighty-five per cent of the young naval fruit shriveled and dropped from the trees. The natural consequence has been larger oranges and a supply far below the demand and therefore higher than usual prices.

IN NORTH SALEM
To the Editor: As most everyone reads the pieces on "Need of Civic Pride," and the answer in Thursday's Journal, I want to say I have lived in Salem nine years and most of those years have been spent in Riverside addition.
It is a disgrace to Salem. Its streets and sidewalks have never been in good shape since I have lived here. The streets, especially Fourth street, is impassable in the winter; the wood wagons can hardly get to the north end
