Judge Webster, who recently passed his eighty-fifth birthday and has been justice of the peace for Salem for the past twelve years, left on the north-bound Oregon Electric train this morning for Champeog to attend the celebration and dedication of the pioneers' memorial building. The judge had decided all along that he would not go, but as the date drew nearer he began to feel uneasy about his decision and to have a greater longing to be there and meet and mingle with the old pioneers. Last night was a restless night for him and his head was filled with dreams and reminiscences of early days. So the judge got up bright and early this morning, came down to the office and looked over the morning's mail, and boarded the electric for Champeog.

The Portland Normal and Commercial school filed articles of incorporation today with the state corporation department. The school will give instructions in commercial and normal work. Capital stock is $3000.

J. O. Bailey, assistant attorney general, is in Washington to argue the Shasta arbitrary case which is to come up before the later-state commerce commission Saturday of this week. The northwest is vitally interested in this case. If the state wins, it will mean that the railroads will be forbidden to charge an extra $17.50 for eastern tourists who would prefer to return home by way of Oregon or Washington. As the rate now stands, summer tourists are obliged to return east from the Pacific coast by way of the deserts of Arizona and New Mexico and the long dreary ride across Texas. That is, they must return by the hot route, or pay $17.50 extra to travel in the finest summer climate on the continent. The state is endeavoring to remove this unjust arbitrary rate. The case was decided by the interstate-commerce commission at the first hearing in favor of the northwest, and later, the railroads secured a rehearing.

Will H. Bennett, state bank examiner and John H. Lewis, state engineer, returned this morning from an inspection of the Gold Hill irrigation district near Grants Pass, where they went as members of the Irrigation Securities commission. The other member, George G. Brown of the state land board, will make his inspection next week. It was found that the assessed valuation was considerably in excess of the proposed bond issue of $60,000, which the district proposes to use in irrigating 1500 acres. As soon as further detailed information is submitted, the Irrigation Securities commission will probably approve of the bonds.

Hoff, climbing into bed with his clothes on, with the comment that the sergeant was retiring in heavy marching order.

Roy Woolery, who has been in the county jail for several days charged with failing to register, was taken yesterday to Portland by the federal authorities. An effort had been made to show that he was beyond the draft age by falsifying the family bible, changing the date of his birth from 1891 to that of 1884. His father was in Salem a few days ago and acknowledged that his son is 27 years old. The family lives at Woodburn.

No More Boats Will Ply On Willamette River; Lack of Patronage Name of Nearest Relative In Casualty List

When the Grahamaons sounds the one long blast and one short blast about 10 o'clock next Monday morning, passing through the draw bridge of the Southern Pacific, the people of Salem will hear for the last time the old familiar toot of a steamboat whistle.

For on the return of the Grahamaona from Corvallis to Portland Monday morning May 6, the Oregon Transportation Co. will withdraw its service on the Willamette river. Lack of patronage from merchants in Salem and the valley and the cost of handling the line is given as the reason for ending the steamboat history of the Willamette, at least for steamers of the size of the Grahamaona.

The fleet is to be probably in part sold although it is likely that the larger boats like the Grahamaona will be put into service on the Columbia, running as far as Lewiston on the Snake river. Captain A. W. Graham is helping the Coast Shipping company with its vessels having been a master of deep water vessel on the coast before coming to Oregon.

The final river trip will be made by the Grahamaona which leaves Portland Saturday morning for Corvallis and when she leaves the dock at Salem about 10 o'clock Monday morning, the last chapter for steamboat history for Salem will have been written.

Notice has been served on the employees of the Oregon Transportation Co. that the service will be discontinued Monday. Today but little freight remains in the warehouse and by Monday or Tuesday the office and warehouse will be closed.

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Weak, thin people—men and women—are nearly always nervous wrecks; this conclusively proving that thinness, weakness, debility and neurasthenia are almost invariably due to nerve starvation. Feed your nerves and all these symptoms due to nerve starvation will disappear. Eminent specialists state that the best nerve food is an organic phosphate known among druggists as Nitro-Phosphate, a five-grain tablet of which should be taken with each meal. Being a genuine nerve builder and not a stimulant or habit forming drug, Nitro-Phosphate can be safely taken by the weakest and most delicate sufferer, and the results following its use are often simply astonishing.

Weak, tired people regain strength and vigor; thinness and angularity give way to plumpness and curves; sleep returns to the sleepless; confidence and cheerfulness replace debility and gloom; dull eyes become bright and pale, sunken cheeks regain the pink glow of health. Nitro-Phosphate, the use of which is inexpensive, also wonderfully promotes the assimilation of food, so much so that many people report marked gains of weight in a few weeks. CAUTION:—Although Nitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh. It is sold in this city by all good druggists.
