Cohan Gives Use of "Over There" Title to Charles Richman

"Over There," George M. Cohan's stirring war song, is by far the most popular song of the decade. He has just sold it for $25,000, a record breaking price; but he has given the use of this rousing title to Charles Richman, who will appear at the Liberty theater on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week in the Select Picture of the same title.

Mr. Richman secured the use of this copyrighted title not only because of Mr. Cohan's great friendship for him, but even more because the king of America's song writers knew that no one could better portray the white heat of patriotism and loyalty which is sending the flower of our manhood to France to win the war that will end all wars.

SOLDIERS CELEBRATE NATION'S BICYCLE WEEK

Races Will Be Feature of Observance at Many Army Training Camps

National Bicycle Week, May 4 to 11 will probably be celebrated at a number of the military cantonments as well as in more than 1,000 cities and towns in the United States and Canada.

An effort is being made by the United Cycle Trade Directorate, under the auspices of which bicycle week is being held, to obtain permission for the soldiers in training at the various camps to hold bicycle races during the week.

The secretary of war will be asked to authorize camp commanders to sanction the holding of track and road races at or near the camps.

While a great many wheels are in use at the military camps, it will probably be necessary to ask civilian riders in nearby cities to loan their wheels in order to admit as many soldiers as will wish to compete.

Since the bicycle-racing season opened in Newark, N. J., it has been discovered that many of the crack riders who competed last year have been called to serve in the army, and they are distributed throughout the camps. It is likely they can be utilized as officials of the military bicycle races as it would not be fair to the soldiers to permit expert racing men to compete.

The military races must be held purely for the physical development of the men the same as other army sports are conducted.

It is not likely that any prizes will be allowed. Prizes are not desirable in military athletics.

The military authorities are interested in locating good wheelmen as the government has ordered thousands of "Liberty Bicycles" for the establishment of wheeling corps in France.

Races during National Bicycle Week could thus be helpful to the military authorities in picking men to serve in such organizations.

The bicycle has proved invaluable in the present war and expert wheelmen are in great demand in Europe. Bicycle corps are used for the advance guards and at the head of shock troops. There are also thousands of bicycle couriers for dispatch work across country where the motorcycle is useless and for the distribution of mail, along the front.

Medical men are taught to ride and the first-aid surgeons employ the bicycle to great advantage, carrying their emergency kits in special cases fitted to the frame of the wheel.

The Italian troops are equipped with ordinary and also with folding bicycles which are carried, when crossing rough country, like a pack on the back.

In many ways, the bicycle has entered into the war and for this reason Bicycle Week can easily be turned to good advantage by our men in training.

through the hills, occasionally going through a village. The food was bad and the water worse. Finally, after ten days, we were allowed to communicate with railroad men at Yuh-sien, and got some canned food for ourselves. We were then forced to write a letter to the magistrate at Yuh-sien saying that our heads would be chopped off unless troops, who by that time were in pursuit, were held off.

The next day they marched us through a village where 300 people turned out to watch us. As soon as we got through, the bandits turned and fired into the crowd. We later learned that about 25 people were killed. Chao explained to us that these people had fired on his band several days before.

"We knew nothing of the terms of our ransom," Parell said, "except that Chao told us he hoped to recruit 20,000 men and get enough guns and ammunition to supply them."

"It was on March 25 that we were awakened by shots. Pickets reported that 500 soldiers had arrived. "Kyle, Wu and I were rushed across a valley to some rocky hills. We lay there most of the day while intermittent shooting went on below us."

"Our guards finally tried to break through with us and get past the troops. We started down the hill on the run. The bandits split into three groups, and this was where we became separated from Kyle. Our bandit guards were deserting Wu and I one by one, and finally there was only one of them left. We easily persuaded him to go with us and surrender to the soldiers."

"Three days later we were in Yuh-sien. The following day we heard that the bandits intended to kill Kyle unless the soldiers were withdrawn. I since learned, however, that he was surrendered when the bandits were hard pressed by the troops."

ENEMY IS UNEASY.

By Frank J. Taylor (United Press Staff Correspondent)

With the American Army in Lorraine May 7.—The enemy is showing uneasiness along the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun sector). This is manifested every night by the use of brilliant lights and by much artillery and machine gun firing and aerial activity.

In the sector southwest of Toul there is heavy firing in the vicinity of Selchevrey (which the Germans especially captured recently but from which they were driven out by a Franco-American counter attack).

Plaintiff in Divorce Suit Receives Name Only

The somewhat famous suit of Thora E. Smith against Marjia E. Smith, et al., came to the surface again today when the sheriff of Multnomah county made return on an execution sent him for service. In the suit, which along with a demand for divorce also carried a side issue bringing into the question the ownership of the jewelry store in Silverton, which the court held belonged to the father of the defendant, and the latter had no interest in the same. The plaintiff sought to show that the defendant was half owner, but failed.

At the same time the court held that plaintiff was the owner of a certain diamond ring sued for, and was entitled to the possession of the same. The execution as returned by the Multnomah county sheriff showed that he had served a garnishment on one party and had recovered from him the sum of $4.50 all that was owing defendant, and of this the sheriff kept $2.50 as his fees and returned $1.75, which was turned over to the defendant. The sheriff certified that he had made demand on Martin E. Smith for the diamond ring aforesaid and also for the sum of $151.75 costs in the case, but that the defendant refused to sign over the ring, pay the equivalent therefor estimated by the court at $300, or to pay the costs or any part of them. In the decree the court adjudged that the plaintiff recover her maiden name, Thora E. Peterson. It seems the maiden name and $1.75 is all the returns the plaintiff has so far "recovered" from her suit. However, the end is not yet.
