"Starving Persians Turn Up Cannibalism. Americans Contribute Freely to Relieve Situation." reads a headline in a morning contemporary. Pity the poor missionaries.

Someone suggests that when President Wilson's flock of White House sheep are ready for shearing, the Emergency Fleece corporation will be formed.

Instead of teaching German in the American schools, the purpose henceforth seems to be to teach Germany.

Ed Blankely, a well known Stayton boy, who has been working in a drug store at Tacoma for some time, was married Thursday last week to Miss Gertrude Millett of Junction City. Ed has many friends here who will wish him the best of luck in his union.

The Stayton Red Cross knitters are keeping busy, having turned out 35 pairs of socks, besides considerable other work last week.

Frank Thayer farm south of Kingston about two miles. This is a place of about 240 acres, and is a good ranch. Geo. A. Smith, Stayton real estate dealer, engineered the transaction.

Stayton Items

(Capital Journal Special Service) Stayton, May 11.--The city council has called a special election to be held June 10th for the purpose of submitting a proposed amendment to the city charter to the legal voters within the town and also to the voters residing within territory proposed to be annexed to the corporation. Several years ago some of the adjacent territory was annexed to the town of Stayton, and this annexation has proven to be illegal, hence the election. It is supposed that there will be little or no opposition to the territory being legally annexed to the town.

Salem Boy Enjoys Sailors' Home Club Visit D. L. Neiderheiser, one of the navy boys on the U. S. S. San Diego, while stationed at New York enjoyed the hospitality of a Sailors Home club. In writing to his parents he tells of his experience as follows:

"I was walking through the botanical gardens of the Bronx and on passing a lady and gentleman who were watching a waterfall, was noticed to such an extent that the only way I could keep from giving them the cold shoulder was to tip my hat, the white one we wear.

"The lady asked me if I was not lost. I told her no, that I was enjoying the view of the water. I was offered cigarettes and they were surprised to see me decline.

"She is president of a Sailors' home club or what is commonly known among sailors as 'Mothers Society'. After talking a while she asked me where I was from. I said, Oregon.

"She asked me why it was that Oregon gave more than any state and the best of the young blood. It was easy to answer. I said it was the spirit that our forefathers had in the building of the great west. I was invited to this club of hers. She called a taxi and took me over the park and also along the Hudson river."

DEATH OF MRS. WM. A. FASH. Mrs. Melvina Carson Fash, wife of William A. Fash, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Cowles, in this city, at 4 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon, May 7, 1918, in the 77th year of her age.

Melvina Carson was born September 12, 1841 at Bath, New Hampshire, where she received her education and was a school teacher when 15 years of age. She later moved to Peoria, Ill., where she also taught school and was there married to William A. Fash in 1858. She came to Woodburn in 1888 and joined Mrs. Fash here, who had preceded her a year and had entered into the furniture business in this city in 1887, rebuilding on the same site in 1896 and continuing until destroyed by fire.

Surviving Mrs. Fash are her husband, two daughters, six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren, one son, Jodie, having passed away in 1897. The daughters are: Mrs. Mary C. Moore and Mrs. Miss Carrie Millsbaugh of Portland. General secretary of the Woman's Home Mission work on the Pacific Coast, spoke at the Hayesville church on Tuesday evening.
