COTTON GOODS WILL SOAR PRESENT PRICE OUTLOOK

Cotton at Thirty Cents Pound Will Be Mainly Responsible For Raise
 The moral of this story is to buy your cotton goods now before the stores are obliged to sell on the market or on what it will cost them to replace their present stocks.

ing cotton goods below the market price and in many instances, below the actual wholesale price of today. This is an actual fact.
 Of course, not so many people are buying calico now a days, but it may be bought around 20 cents a yard. According to the market report of this morning, American prints are quoted at 22 cents.
 Toile du Nord is selling at around 30 cents a yard. That looks pretty high, but the wholesale quotation today for Toile du Nord in New York City is 30 cents a yard and very little on the market.
 Amoskeag staple ginghams are selling around 25 cents a yard retail. Now is the time to buy, as when present stocks are sold out, the store keeper will be obliged to go on the market and pay from 24 to 26 cents wholesale. The quotation today is 24 cents wholesale and an upward tendency in price.
 Now is the time to buy Fruit of the Loom while the buying is good. That is, if you can buy it for 30 cents a yard. Four years ago it retailed at 10 cents a yard. But the frugal house-keeper will be doing the right thing to buy at 30 cents as the wholesale price today in New York is 30 cents a yard and going up. This can be verified by today's market quotation.
 A C. A. ticking is worth 47 1/2 cents a yard today in the eastern wholesale houses. Hope domestic is quoted at 24 1/2 cents and when it goes anywhere, it will be up to a higher price. The poor cotton farmer down south is getting his at the rate of 30 cents a pound for cotton when formerly he felt fine when he was offered ten cents a pound.
 Gingham are travelling skyward also. The wholesale figure for Everett Classics today is 25 cents a yard and for Utopia also 25 cents and scarce on the market. Toile du Nord were off the market on today's quotation.
 Unbleached peppered sheeting, which formerly sold wholesale for nine cents a yard is now worth 28 cents, and Bates colored Damask, 75 cents a yard wholesale. For next spring delivery, Bates ginghams are priced at 32 1/2 cents. This gingham formerly retailed at 12 1/2 cents a yard. Now the wholesale is almost three times as much.
 The man who wears overalls or a cotton work shirt will also pay tribute to the 30 cent cotton. For many a year, he had paid $1.00 for the best brands of overalls. Today that overall costs the dealer $2.50 a pair at the factory and the retailer will then add on the freight of 10 per cent and then a little profit for doing business and then the purchaser will possibly have a severe chill. But it cannot be helped and the head of the house might save himself from the coming high figures by doing a little purchasing now.
 That old familiar blue chambray 50-cent work shirt, sold for two generations back, has disappeared for good. That is, while the shirt is still with us, the 50 cent price was buried at the beginning of the war. The retail store is now obliged to pay $1.13 wholesale for that shirt. Of course there may be a few left on hand at the price of a few months ago, but there is nothing doing in the old four bits line.
 To figure coming prices on cotton goods, turn back to what was paid four years ago and then multiply it by 2.50. Cotton was then ten cents a pound. It has been selling for 30 cents the past winter and there is an idea among cotton buyers that the price may climb as high as 35 cents a pound by while the buying is good.

THE POET'S CORNER

THE KAISER.
 Old Nick is now busy, his face all aglow,
 Preparing a place for the kaiser to go;
 Way back in one corner where darkness prevails,
 Where there's gnashing of teeth, misery and wails.
 Here he opened a pit, dug fathoms below—
 Preparing a place for the kaiser to go.

THE BIG PARADE.

Talk about your big parades;
 I've got one in my mind
 That puts to shame the C. A.'s shades,
 And leaves the stars blind!

It starts beneath the green trees,
 And over Wilhelm street,
 With banners waving in the breeze,
 And a tramp of 10,000 feet.

I see the British Union Jack,
 The noble flag of France,
 The Belgian red and gold and black,
 Flows by before my glance.

I hear the highland Scottish pipes,
 And—what is this I see?
 Ahead of all—the Stars and Stripes,
 The ensign of the free!

Tere's to The Day when this parade
 Shall march through old Berlin,
 To make all autocrats afraid,
 And welcome Freedom in!

MARCHING THROUGH GERMANY.
 Geo. H. Lowe, son of Postmaster Wm. Lowe, of this city, enlisted in the 63d Balloon company, stationed at Fort Omaha, Neb., sends The Daily Leader the following for the benefit of his friends at home:—Madison (S. D.) leader.
 Blow the good old bugle boys; we're coming right along,
 Make a great big racket, for we're many millions strong;
 Our watchword now is Victory, and that won't take us long.
 While we go marching through Germany.
 Hurrah! Hurrah! We're going to Berlin!
 Hurrah! Hurrah! They've got to let us in;
 And what we'll do to that old town will surely be a sin,
 While we go marching through Germany.
 Tell the world that we have got an army "out of sight";
 Men who want to meet the Boches, and show them how to fight;
 We can do it 'cause we know we're fighting for the right,
 While we go marching through Germany.
 We don't have to stoop to kill the women or the kids,
 Like the "cultured" kaiser and his "cultured" army did;
 All we ask is, show us where the devil now is hid,
 And we'll go marching through Germany.

Raul the fiendish kaiser out, we want to make him dance;
 Get a hickory paddle and we'll pound him on the pants;
 Fall in line and take your turn, for all will get a chance,
 While we go marching through Germany.

Meeting for worship and preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Thursday the 30th will be observed at a day of prayer, at 2:30 p. m. the churches of Rosedale and Highland will meet here in union. Service and a suitable program is arranged. Evening meeting at 8 p. m.

Lutheran.
 East State and Eighteenth streets. Sunday school at 10 a. m. Divine worship at 10:30 a. m. Subject "The Holy Christian Church." Luther league at 7 p. m. Leader, Miss Martha Corrodi. Evening service at 7:30 p. m. Geo. Kochler, pastor.

The American Red Cross

The Call From No Man's Land

The Spending of Your Hundred Million Dollars

Busiest Budget in All the World Is a Red Cross War Fund—Every Dollar Spent Alleviates Misery.

By WILL PAYNE

Last summer the public subscribed a hundred million dollars to the Red Cross. At the latest statement over eighty-five millions of it had been appropriated.

Where has it gone? you ask. For many months the world has been spending over a hundred million dollars a day for the destruction of life, limb and means of subsistence. Call up what you have read about the war's devastation. The American Red Cross' enormous job is to do whatever it can to alleviate that—not after the war, not after governments have deliberated and resolved; but right now, at the minute, on the spot. It's amazing that it has done so much with so little money.

Last autumn the Italian army fell back precipitately. On your war map that meant rubbing out one line and drawing another half an inch further south. Over there in Italy it meant thousands of poor families fleeing from their homes. Major Murphy, Red Cross Commissioner in Europe, rushed to the scene and wired: "Indescribably pathetic conditions exist, involving separation of mothers and children, cold, hunger, disease, death." In November and December the American Red Cross appropriated three million dollars for relief there—a large sum, yet small in comparison with the need.

Condensed Milk for Children.
 Soldiers are only a part of the Red Cross work—probably the smaller part. Every instant, somewhere in the vast flood of destruction, a hand reaches up in appeal. It is pretty apt to be a child's hand or a woman's. When the Red Cross commission reached Petrograd it asked the government, "What is the most urgent thing?" The government replied: "We must get condensed milk for the little children here." The commission got the milk. At one spot in France farm work was stopped by lack of horses. That meant more hunger. The Red Cross got in a big tractor and set it to plowing for the community.
 There are a million needs. Cold, wet and the deadly physical strain of the trenches undermine men's constitutions. A frightful scourge of tuberculosis has developed in France. The Red Cross has built sanatoria, provided over a thousand beds and nurses.
Thirty Millions for France.
 I have here a big sheaf of sheets filled with figures. One item is thirteen million and odd dollars—the amount which, up to that time, had gone to the local chapters of the Red Cross in the United States for local relief. Twenty-five per cent of the money subscribed through the chapters eventually goes that way.
 Over thirty millions have been appropriated for work in France. Here is a million and a quarter—in round numbers—for military hospitals and dispensaries; over a million and a half for canteen service, where French and American soldiers, relieved from the trenches, can get good food, a cot, a bath, and have their clothes disinfected—and so go on for their brief holiday clean, rested, nourished. There are over three millions for hospital supply service; half a million for rest stations for American troops.
 Aid of refugees—eleven thousand families—accounts for nearly three million dollars; care and prevention of tuberculosis takes over two millions; care of helpless children over a million; relief work in six devastated districts, including care of five thousand families and sufficient reconstruction to make houses habitable, required over two millions.
Misery on an Unparalleled Scale.
 These are all large items; but the Red Cross is grappling with human misery on an unparalleled scale—a world of it. The item for relief of the blind amounts to four hundred thousand dollars. The dispensary service sends supplies to more than thirty-four hundred hospitals. The Red Cross receives and distributes more than two hundred tons of supplies daily at Paris. For this distribution and its other work it requires a big transportation service of motors and trucks. This transportation service has cost a million and a half, and its operating expenses run to a million dollars.
 Every dollar it spends means misery alleviated. Its work is building abroad for the United States the best good will in this world. It is building the best good will among ourselves. Whatever else the war may produce, we shall be proud of our Red Cross.

I want to say to you that no other organization since the world began has ever done such great constructive work with the efficiency, dispatch and understanding, often under adverse circumstances, that has been done by the American Red Cross in France.

—General Pershing.
