THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Nitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as Nitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION—Although Nitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

Sargeant Russell Brooks Writes From French Front The following extracts are from a letter written by Russell M. Brooks, sergeant, stationed at headquarters company, 102d infantry to his mother, Mrs. Mildred B. Brooks.

"The Y. M. C. A. huts are everywhere just plain wooden buildings with a canteen at which you can purchase the ever present hot chocolate, smoking and chewing tobacco and sometimes candy but are never satisfied as you are with home products."

"After my insurance and allotment are deducted, I still have $17.30 per month for my own purposes which is far too much, so I am going to purchase a Liberty bond. Everything over here is priced in terms of francs. One not familiar with the money will spend two or three times as much as he intends to, because a franc seems small."

"Just received the box from home, rather the worse for the wear, but still the cakes, fags and soap were still in. The Palmolive soap was a real treat and the towel will surely help either as a muffler or to use after a bath, always providing you get 'Jimmie's' Elvin and have been with Dr. Donney who has completed a course of lectures in this district and now goes north. He will have to tell you when he returns. Our life isn't full of hardships here but as a Frenchman told us, this is the 'honeymoon' of the war, and by the looks of the specimen I see, I really believe it."

"Black veils are seen everywhere and they say this city has suffered the least of any of the French towns. The newspapers here, even the largest, have barely four pages, and the news of the battle line correspondingly small. Here we get very little news of the war, Sunday is a real holiday with the French here and I find a lot of amusement in watching the crowds."

"I have a very earnest French instructor who returns his knowledge of French for my English. Over here, one doesn't see the well dressed people we have in the states. All the people work. The hands of the women seem large and red, always soiled. After eating, I take my French book to the 'Jardin de Public' and study."

President Kerr of O. A. C. Makes Talk to Grangers President Kerr of the Oregon Agricultural college delivered an address last evening in the House of Representatives in an open meeting of the state grange. His line of argument was mostly on the critical condition of the allies and the necessity of this country furnishing food supplies.

The allies were almost exhausted, he said, and the United States was the only country able to continue the war, and that on America today rests the burden of fighting on to victory. He declared that the entire civilian population of this country must do its share in winning the war as the civilians of France and England are doing.

As to the food proposition, he declared that if the government had depended on the voluntary savings of the people, this country would not have been able to send food supplies to the allies. The food conditions in some parts of France are so serious that food riots have become common during the past few months.

It was the lack of food that demoralized the Russians as well as the Italians, or at least a contributing cause for the failure of the Italians last fall and in the utter demoralization of the Russians.
