SCANDINAVIAN CHURCH UNVEILS SERVICE FLAG

Eight Young Men of Congregation Now in Army of United States

The Swedish Tabernacle of the Methodist Episcopal church of Salem, generally known as the Scandinavian church observed patriotic day Sunday afternoon with the unveiling of a service flag of six stars and an address by Bishop Matthew S. Hughes.

The bishop complimented the Scandinavians upon the fact that as soon as they came to this country, they at once became good American citizens. He declared that in this country the fact that the Swedes were patriots was of greater importance than how the royal house of Sweden felt in this great world's war.

In regard to this country engaging in this war, the bishop said that we had stood enough from Germany to lose the self respect of a nation as we had not properly protested against the invasion of Belgium or for the sinking of the Lusitania.

Referring to loyalty, he said a German did not get it by the purchase of liberty loan bonds or war saving stamps, but that true loyalty must come from the heart. He had no use for any one who would throw even a straw in the path of the administration.

The Rev. John Ovall, pastor of the church, said he did not feel that Scandinavians should ever be called foreigners as they had discovered America 500 years before Columbus. From a historical standpoint, Swedes had always proven themselves most loyal, he said, citing men of the Revolutionary war, Captain Robert Anderson at Ft. Sumter in the beginning of the Civil war, the captain of the first ironclad the Monitor and the fact that one of the first young Americans to be killed in France a few months ago was a Swede.

Dr. R. N. Avison, pastor of the First Methodist church, spoke briefly at the close of the patriotic exercise.

The eight young men who have volunteered for service, members of the Scandinavian church in Salem are: David Hassel, Robert Anderson, Victor Erickson, Gust Ostrin, Henry M. Poirnie, Alexander Munson, Arthur Johnson and Ernest Ostrin.

fire was heard off Ventner shortly after noon today. Earlier a destroyer was seen about 20 miles off shore. Nothing official could be learned here.

There is a naval target range off Cape May, and it was believed the firing may have been practice shooting by American warships.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS

The marines are intensely keyed up. The wounded remonstrate strongly against being shunted into a hospital. At the field hospitals they practically all object to being removed farther to the rear.

The fight hasn't been taken out of the Americans by their wounds. One ambulance brought in a boche and three marines. They evidently had been in some sort of an argument, for despite the fact that they were all badly wounded, one of the marines invited the Hun to "hop out and fight."

The interference of the attendants was not required to keep the boche from accepting.

Owing to the constant fighting, few officers or men, either in the line or out, know the day of the week or the date. Many bets are made on this.

Call Them "Wild Indians."

New York, June 10.—C. C. Lyon, war correspondent representing the Newspaper Enterprise association, arrived in New York today from the front in France. He went to France a year ago with the first contingent of American troops and has spent all his time at the front.

"The only thing that counts in this war are bayonets and no matter how many millions America has in training on this side of the water, they are going to count for very little until they get to France and begin shooting," said Lyon.

"When Americans are in France in 'crushing numbers' the allies must make up their minds to heavy losses before the German military machine can be put out of business. We must use on Germany the same steam roller methods she has been trying out on us on the western front since March 21."

Lyon said the fighting spirit of the American troops was wonderful. He told a story of eight German soldiers who had deserted, but instead of surrendering to the Americans who were opposite them, gave up to the French, who were on the Americans' right.

"Why didn't you surrender to the Americans?" the French colonel asked.

"What to those wild men?" said the Germans. "Not much. There's no telling what those blood thirsty Indians would have done to us."

State House News

The State highway commission has started a survey of a road from Neskewin, running up that stream crossing the summit and then down the Salmon river. The object is to get a route along the coast from Lincoln into Tillamook county. The surveyors have located a new pass at which the road can cross the range at an elevation of only about 700 feet. The road will open up quite an extensive dairy country and will be built by the counties, the state making the survey only. The distance is about five miles.

The crop estimates received at the office of the Public Service Commission give the estimated wheat production at 931,000,000, with the statement that with favorable weather during the balance of this month the crop may go above the billion bushel mark.

Strong Lumber Market and Shipments Heavy

Buying is brisk, shipments are heavy stocks are low and the market is firm. This is the condition among the lumber manufacturers of western Oregon and western Washington as reflected in the weekly barometer of the West Coast Lumbermen's Association.

Probably the most significant element in the situation is the apparent shortage of stocks. While the government demands have kept the mills short of the upper grades for almost a year, it has not been until recently that the shortage made itself felt in commons. An informal gathering of representative lumbermen at Tacoma a few days ago revealed that many mills are well sold out. The yard congestion from which they suffered early in the Spring has almost entirely disappeared.

The short supply is accentuated by the continued heavy demand by retail buyers, who, apparently, are rushing into the market to avoid the increased freight rates which become effective June 25.

Orders at 138 mills contributing to the west coast report last week aggregated 81,463,916, feet, which was 3,901,377 feet above actual production in the previous week the orders exceeded production by 10,463,687 feet. As shipments have been keeping pace with orders, it is self-evident from these figures that the stocks at the mills are being fairly well drained.

Fruit Box Situation.

Fruit packers are facing a threatened shortage in box shooks for this year's crop.

Despite the heavy production of spruce box material as a by-product of airplane stock now being cut in Oregon and Washington, a recent canvass of the situation revealed that there will be not more than enough to go around. Some packers already are becoming alarmed. One California fruit agency estimates that the present supply is 60 per cent short of normal for this time of year.

Although the real demand for box material will not be felt for a few weeks, buyers now are active in the market and the price of shook lumber is tightening. The government itself is a heavy buyer. Tremendous quantities are used for packing and crating airplane engines and parts, munitions, food and other supplies going across the Atlantic.

"The national executive of this party desires to associate itself with the 37th convention of the American Federation of Labor in requesting new trials for Mooney and others convicted in the bomb case."

The Irish cablegram, signed by Charles Russell, Liberty Hall, Dublin, announced that an appeal for a new trial for Mooney had been sent to Governor Stephens.

Total Casualties Since War Begun

Washington, June 10.—Casualties among the American expeditionary forces thus far reported by General Pershing, including Saturday's list, total 7315, the war department announced today in making public the first of regular weekly summaries of casualties. Deaths in action and from wounds, disease, accidents and all other causes number 2927, while 4046 men have been wounded and 342 are missing in action, including men held prisoners in Germany.

The department's recapitulation follows:

Killed in action (including 291 at sea), 1033; died of wounds 310; died of disease 1192; died of accidents and other causes 292; wounded in action 4046; missing in action (including prisoners) 342.

Total 7315.

While no official explanation was given for the decision of the department to advise the country weekly of the exact total of casualties since the landing of American forces in France last June, it is understood that it resulted largely from widespread reports that casualties had been very heavy and that total figures were being withheld from the public.

The commanding officer in each instance reduced the sentence to 25 years.

A majority of the convicted men came from Texas. All will be sent at once to Fort Leavenworth to begin their terms.
